National City, CA 92050

Dear Mr. Baca:

You are quoted in the San Diego Union of Wednesday, August 3, 1983 (page A-2) as having made certain remarks about the Federation for American Immigration Reform (FAIR). The remarks attributed to you include:

"[FAIR is] a standing joke in the Chicano community."

"There's not a shred of legitimacy in anything FAIR says... It has the reputation to live down as racist and a front organization of the INS."

These statements are clearly libelous. Attributing a libelous statement to some other person and then repeating the libelous statement is not a defense to the tort of libel; repetition of a libelous statement is a republication of libel and creates liability for both the original tortfeasor (speaker) and the person who repeats the libel. The context of the quoted remarks along with prior statements about FAIR attributed to you could easily prove the malice required for a successful prosecution for libel against FAIR.

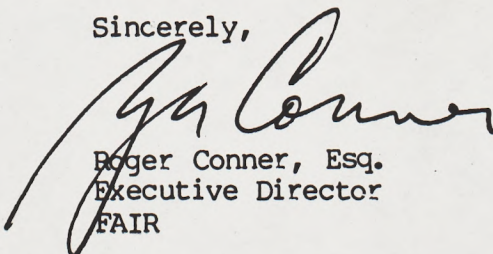

FAIR has consistently endeavored to maintain an objective discussion of the deeply emotional issues involved in immigration reform. We welcome thoughtful and reasonable discussion of immigration with people who disagree with our points of view; we have often modified our positions on specific issues in response to well-reasoned criticism of our policies. This intellectual honesty in our discussions leads us to react strongly to statements such as those attributed to you.

If you did not make the statements attributed to you, you should write the San Diego Union and request a correction immediately. Please send us a copy of any such letter to the Union.

If you did make these statements, we believe that you owe FAIR both an apology for the statements and a promise that you will not make libelous statements about FAIR in the future.

We suggest that you send such a request or apology and promise immediately. Otherwise we shall consider taking appropriate legal action.

Sincerely,

Roger Conner, Esq.

~~Dear~~ Mr. Conners

It has now been over 40 days since I received your letter dated August 17, 1983 in which FAIR threatens to sue <sup>ME I.E.</sup> (the Committee on Chicano Rights Inc.) for making the following statements: <sup>(SEE ATT.)</sup>

- ' FAIR is a standing joke in the Chicano community'
- 'Theres not a shred of legitimacy in anything FAIR says
- 'It has the reputation to live down as racist and a front organization of the INS'

Since 40 days has elapsed since I received your letter and no suit has been forthcoming, I either have to conclude that you are forced to agree with me that Fair is a "joke" and that there is not a shred of legitimacy in anything you say( including your letter). Either that or that you are failing in intestinal fortitude (GUTS) to sue me. Whatever it is, it must now be clear to all those involved in the Immigration issue, that any statemt or report that FAIR issues is to be considered suspect <sup>or</sup> as coming from a dupe <sup>or</sup> (front organization) of the INS/Border Patrol.

The Committee on Chicano Rights still maintains that in spite of any double talk, double speak or misinformation (such as your recent Vietnam type poll) <sup>(SEE ATT. ## HOLLINGS TAKES PRESIDENT TO TASK ON POLICIES OF CONCERN TO HISPANICS

WASHINGTON--Democratic Presidential contender Fritz Hollings today said that President Reagan's wooing of the Hispanic community during Hispanic Heritage Week "was a cynical attempt to mask his administration's policies which only demonstrate insensitivity to and ignorance of the real concerns of Hispanic America."

"I am appalled. Here we have a President from the great State of California, where roughly one-fifth of the population is of Hispanic descent, and his administration was the one that tried to abolish bilingual education and legal services, originally opposed extension of the Voting Rights Act, and cut billions of dollars from education and health programs which help millions of poor Hispanics. Instead of opening the doors of opportunity to Cuban-Americans, Mexican-Americans, Puerto Ricans and other Latino-Americans, he has shut doors.

"In 1982, 15% of all Americans lived below the poverty line. In that same year, 30% of all Hispanic Americans lived below that same poverty line.

"And yes, Mr. President the appointment of Ms. Ortega to serve as Treasurer of the United States is commendable. But your removal of Blandina Ramirez from the Commission on Civil Rights is disgraceful.

"And yes, you have appointed 35 other Hispanics to full-time jobs in your administration. But approximately 15% percent of all Hispanics remain unemployed, not including 28% of all Hispanic teenagers.

"In terms of program cuts, the President will say he's just trying to save the taxpayers money and balance the budget. Yet, his administration has given us the largest deficits in our history. So, not only does he propose taking away opportunities from our people today, he proposes letting our children and grandchildren bear the burden of those budget deficits tomorrow."

Hollings continued, "Now, I'm not one who wants to throw money at everything. I believe government has its limits, as well as its responsibilities. And I have offered a detailed plan to reduce the budget by $750 billion over five years. But I don't accomplish that by turning my back on the people and closing the doors of opportunity.

"We must provide equal opportunities to all, before we can be serious about improving the economic well-being of any," said Hollings.

Hollings, a South Carolina native, has been one of the severest critics of President Reagan's economic policies. In 1982, he was the first Democrat to offer a detailed economic alternative to the President's budget. The Hollings plan would freeze most entitlement spending, freeze defense spending at 3% growth (our NATO commitment), and cancel the 10% tax cut of July 1983. The Hollings plan would save approximately $750 billion over five years without cutting spending or raising new taxes. Savings are found by canceling cost-of-living adjustments and not losing revenue to a new tax cut. Hollings has referred to his proposal as "a plan for shared sacrifice." He says, "If we're going to put this country back to work, we'll have to pull together for the common good of the country. It'll be tough. It'll require some sacrifices. But in the end, all of us will win."

HOLLINGS REPRENDE AL PRESIDENTE EN CUANTO A LAS POLITICAS QUE INTERESEN A LOS HISPANICOS

WASHINGTON--Fritz Hollings el contendiente democratico para la presidencia dijo hoy que el Presidente Reagan recién comenzaria a hacer uso del galanteo del voto hispanico durante la Semana de Herencia Hispanica; "Esto es un atentado cinico para ocultar las politicas de su administracion lo cual demuestra insensibilidad e ignorancia de lo que verdaderamente queda dentro de los intereses de America Hispanica.

Quedo horrorizado. Este es un presidente originalmente del gran Estado de California donde casi un quinto de la poblacion es de descendencia hispana, y donde su administracion ha sido la que ha tratado de abolir la educacion bilingue y servicios legales; ademas se opuso originalmente la prolongacion de la ley de los Derechos de Votar; y tambien redujo en miles de millones los dolares de los programas de salud y educacion que ayudarian a millones de hispanos pobres. En vez de abrir las puertas de la oportunidad a los cubanos-americanos, mejicanos-americanos, porto-riquenos y otros latino americanos se las ha cerrado!

"En 1982, 15% del total de los americanos vivia por debajo de la marca de la pobreza.

"Y si, Sr Presidente es comendable el nombramiento de la Senora Ortega para servir como Tesorera de los Estados Unidos, es recomendable. Pero con la remocion de Blandina Ramirez de la Comision de Derechos Civiles Ud. Produjo una desgracia.

"Y, si, clara, nombro a 35 hispanos mas en trabajos "full-time" en su administracion. Pero aproximadamente el 15% del total de los hispanos aun estan sin empleo, sin incluir el 28% de todas las adolescentes hispanos.

"En terminos del recorte de los programas, el Presidente va a decir que solo ha estado tratando de ahorrar el dinero de los contribuyentes (tax payers) y de equilibrar el presupuesto. Sin embargo su administracion nos ha llevado a los mas profundos deficits de nuestra historia. De tal manera, no solo nos propone quitarnos las oportunidades a nuestro pueblo hoy, sino que ademas nos propone que nuestros hijos y nuestros nietos se encargan de arrastrar la carga de esos deficits de presupuesto mañana."

Hollings continua diciendo, "Ahora no soy yo el que quiere derrochar dinero en cualquier cosa. Yo creo que el gobierno tiene sus limites, asi como tambien sus responsabilidades.

Y yo mismo he ofrecido un detallado plan para reducir el presupuesto en $750 mil millones en un termino de 5 anos. Pero no voy a cumplirlo dandole la espalda al pueblo y cerrandole la puerta a la oportunidad.

"Nosotros debemos proveer igualdad de oportunidad para todos antes de poder hablar seriamente de la mejora economica del bienestar de alguien," dijo Hollings.

Border agents ask probe of Baca claims

By JAN COOK

Angry Border Patrol agents here are asking Congress for an on-site investigation into "totally unfounded" claims that they are murderers and rapists of illegal aliens.

Ron Farber, Western Region vice president of the National Border Patrol Council Local 1613, said today he has sent a telegram to Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., urging a quick probe of the allegations made public by Herman Baca.

Baca, president of the National City Committee on Chicano Rights, has asked Holtzman and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to probe what he calls "documented cases of illegal and unconstitutional acts by patrol officers during the past 10 years."

Baca has accused agents of murder, rape and physical abuse of illegal aliens.

Farber said the union welcomes a probe because "it will prove that Baca's irresponsible claims are completely without foundation."

He said agents have remained silent in the face of the charges until they are "fed up."

Charges Anger Border Patrol

By DAVE POLIS

Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

SAN YSIDRO — Border Patrol agents say they are fed up with criticism of their efforts from both sides of the border, and have decided to do something about it.

"We're being accused of murdering and raping illegal aliens, and the patrolmen have really had a bellyful of it," Muriel Watson, spokeswoman for the National Border Patrol Council, said yesterday.

Watson, whose husband has been an agent for 24 years, said the tendency had been to ignore charges against the Border Patrol.

"The feeling was that we shouldn't lower ourselves to answer some of these charges — but when it begins infringing on our communities, on our families, then we think it is time to do something about it," she said.

The National Border Patrol Council intends to answer these charges at a press conference at 10:30 this morning at Swiss Park in Chula Vista. Watson said Robert Faber, president of the local chapter, and other officers will be present.

Agents are particularly upset with statements being made by Herman Baca, chairman of the National City-based Committee on Chicano Rights, Watson said.

Baca's group wrote Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., demanding a congressional investigation into what he termed "documented cases of illegal and unconstitutional acts which have been committed by the Border Patrol over the past 10 years."

Those acts, he said, included alleged shootings and killings, beatings, rape and sexual abuse of women, breaking into houses and strike-breaking.

In the letter, Baca charged the Border Patrol "is now totally out of control and is nothing but a lawless agency which is accountable and responsible to no one."

Watson said Baca and others have been quoted making similar charges

in the Mexican press.

Baca made his charges against the Border Patrol on March 21 following an incident where Agent Dan Cole killed one illegal alien and wounded another. Cole said the two men, who were handcuffed to each other at the time, jumped him and that he shot the men in self-defense.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office said the results of an investigation into that incident are expected next week. The investigation is to determine whether the shootings were justified, or whether charges should be brought against Cole, a supervising agent.

"My own children won't admit their father is an agent," Watson said. "They feel they would be putting themselves in jeopardy because of the animosity toward patrolmen."

The council represents about 80 percent of the agents who are eligible to belong to the union, she said. She said first-year agents do not normally join the union, since they are on probationary status.

Poll shows minorities back immigration curbs

By Benjamin Shore
Copley News Service

and Don Williamson
Staff Writer

Most blacks and Hispanics support stronger national laws to stem the flow of illegal immigrants into the United States and limit legal immigration, according to a private poll released yesterday.

The poll, commissioned by the California-based Federation for American Immigration Reform, was conducted between June 24 and July 12 by Peter D. Hart, who specializes in Democratic issues, and V. Lance Tarrance, a Republican pollster.

Charles R. Stoffel, a member of FAIR's national advisory board, said the survey proved that black and Hispanic leaders are "totally out of step" with their constituency on the immigration issue.

"What this shows is that it's not a race issue. It's not perceived that way by anyone," Stoffel said at a Sheraton Harbor Island news conference in San Diego yesterday. Stoffel called for black and Hispanic leaders to support the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration reform legislation pending before Congress.

"As I traveled around the country, I kept hearing Hispanic and black leaders say it was wrong to have immigration reform," said Stoffel. "But my mail from Mexican Americans said they were glad someone was finally supporting reform."

The summary prepared by Hart and Tarrance noted that 69 percent of Hispanics and 51 percent of blacks believe illegal immigrants take jobs that Americans might fill.

"Low-income blacks are particularly likely to feel an economic threat from illegal immigration," the pollsters said.

Also, substantial majorities of both groups supported the Simpson-Mazzoli bill's provisions for strong penalties for employers who hire undocumented aliens, and they endorsed major increases in federal spending on border enforcement.

"This poll explodes as a myth the assertion made by Hispanic lobbyists that Hispanic-Americans are opposed to immigration controls," said Roger Conner, executive director of FAIR, at a similar press conference held yesterday in Washington.

But Arnold Torres, chief Washington lobbyist for the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the nation's largest Hispanic political organization and an opponent of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill, said the results of the poll are not surprising.

"Hispanics and blacks want our immigration laws reformed," Torres said, "but the poll doesn't address what we believe will be the adverse effects of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill. I don't think Hispanics and blacks (who were polled) understand the ramifications of what they're supporting."

Herman Baca, chairman for the local Committee on Chicano Rights, questioned the validity of the poll and called FAIR "a standing joke in the Chicano community."

"There's not a shred of legitimacy in anything FAIR says," said Baca. "It has the reputation to live down as racist and a front organization of the INS (Immigration and Naturalization Service)."

The legislation was approved by the Senate last May but is stalled in the House. Hispanics, organized labor and growers have been lobbying to keep the measure from coming up for a vote in the full House.

The bill would make it illegal to knowingly hire an undocumented alien, grant legal residence to potentially millions of undocumented aliens who have established permanent homes in the United States, streamline the process for importing foreign farm workers if enough Americans are not available, and strengthen border enforcement.

The poll, which used random sampling by telephone, included 800 Hispanics and 800 blacks. Nearly a third of the interviews with Hispanics were conducted wholly or partially in Spanish.

Legalization for undocumented aliens received strong support from Hispanics. A majority of blacks supported the proposal.

Ceremony To Honor Border Patrol Fizzles: They Stay Away In Drove

It was billed as the biggest morale booster in Border Patrol history.

Citizens recognizing that their border patrol officers are "facing problems much more severe than those faced by patrolmen of any other nation" would rally in a show of support.

It was to be "the first event of its kind in the history of the U.S. Border Patrol." People would be demonstrating in support instead of against the patrol.

But the show of support, scheduled yesterday morning, proved to be a major disappointment to organizers. Only a handful of members of the Lakeside Frontier Riders kept the demonstration from being a complete flop.

Dan Emrich, a retired Air Force colonel who organized the event, said he was disappointed at the turnout, noting that those being honored — the border patrol — failed to respond.

"I let them know about it," he said.

Emrich, the San Diego and Imperial counties representative of FAIR (Federation for American Immigration Reform), said a couple of patrol officers on their way to work stopped by for a few minutes, but had to leave before the ceremony got under way.

About the only border patrol presence was overhead in the form of a helicopter that drowned out efforts to read a proclamation supporting the service.

Emrich said he organized the demonstration, staged on a bluff overlooking the San Ysidro border crossing, because of recent reports that border patrol officers are attempting to operate under severe gasoline and mileage restrictions.

"Our border patrol is undermanned and has too little equipment," Emrich said. "As if that were not enough, mismanagement by INS (Immigration and Naturalization Service) establishes new records for blundering every day of the year. A recent example was running out of fuel for patrol vehicles.

"The officers were directed to patrol on foot for many days. Results were easily predictable. Apprehensions fell by more than 90 percent."

FAIR's August newsletter commented on the gasoline shortage and related budget crunch, citing a directive from an unnamed Southwest field station last month eliminating trail spotters, curtailing vehicle operations, allowing officers to respond only to reports of large numbers of illegal aliens sneaking into the country and even limited horseback operations.

All this, the FAIR newsletter said, comes at a time when alien traffic is the heaviest.

The proclamation Emrich had hoped to present to the patrol noted that the "borders are besieged far beyond anything ever recorded in the peacetime history of the world."

It said officers "daily face significant problems, and that despite insufficient manpower, inadequate funding and constant peril, patrolmen continue to stand and courageously serve."

Emrich said the vast majority of Americans support their efforts.

Floyd Decker of the Lakeside mounted group said Emrich had approached him asking for support. He said members of his group wanted to help and agreed to send a mounted color guard.

"I feel their budget should be a little more to give them more flexibility," Decker said.

Emrich had planned to have young girls on horseback present the assembled border patrol officers roses for their wives. Because there was no one there, a bouquet of flowers was left on the ground at the demonstration site.

The reading of a "Citation of Meritorious Service" lost its significance due to the overwhelming noise of the border patrol helicopter circling overhead.

Plans to make a symbolic delivery of gasoline to the nearby border patrol headquarters were scrubbed when patrol officials reportedly informed the group they would be barred from the property and the gasoline would not be accepted.

"There's not a shred of legitimacy in anything FAIR says," said Baca. "It has the reputation to live down as racist and a front organization of the INS (Immigration and Naturalization Service)."

The legislation was approved by the Senate last May but is stalled in the House. Hispanics, organized labor and growers have been lobbying to keep the measure from coming up for a vote in the full House.

The bill would make it illegal to knowingly hire an undocumented alien, grant legal residence to potentially millions of undocumented aliens who have established permanent homes in the United States, streamline the process for importing foreign farm workers if enough Americans are not available, and strengthen border enforcement.

The poll, which used random sampling by telephone, included 800 Hispanics and 800 blacks. Nearly a third of the interviews with Hispanics were conducted wholly or partially in Spanish.

Legalization for undocumented aliens received strong support from Hispanics. A majority of blacks supported the proposal.

A parade of attest, not protest

Dubbed as "a tribute to the troops on the line," a parade to honor the U.S. Border Patrol is slated to step off at 10 a.m. today in San Ysidro.

About 40 persons plus spectators are expected to ride and walk along East Beyer Blvd. near the San Ysidro trolley stations, then off the road to the Border Patrol site labeled point E-1.

A flower girl will ride a mule while about nine young adults will ride horses. A couple of the walkers will carry a banner reading, "Support Our Border Patrol."

The parade, sponsored by the Federation for American Immigration Reform (F.A.I.R.), is planned as a complete surprise to border patrol agents, according to Dan Emrich, local volunteer coordinator for the organization. Formed in 1979, the membership-supported group is headquartered in Washington D.C. With more than 15,000 members, the non-partisan organization lobbies for reform of immigration laws.

"We hope to draw national attention to the plight of the border patrol," said Mary Rubacha, a South Bay member of F.A.I.R.

Once the parade arrives at the border patrol office, a citation will be given to personnel "for duties above and beyond the call," said Emrich.

"It will be a tribute to the troops on the line," he added.

He said the troops don't get "the support they need from management." One example is the reported restrictive mileage imposed on the patrol because of a fuel shortage. The patrol officials, however, deny there is a fuel shortage, saying the matter has been resolved. "They claim the problem has been solved," said Emrich "but that's not the truth."

To illustrate the fuel crisis, he had hoped his organization could come up with an antique wagon pulled by two mules in the parade. The idea was scrapped however, because club members felt it might be a "downer" on the festive occasion, said Emrich.

Ceremony To Honor Border Patrol Fizzles: They Stay Away In Drove

It was billed as the biggest morale booster in Border Patrol history.

Citizens recognizing that their border patrol officers are "facing problems much more severe than those faced by patrolmen of any other nation" would rally in a show of support.

It was to be "the first event of its kind in the history of the U.S. Border Patrol." People would be demonstrating in support instead of against the patrol.

But the show of support, scheduled yesterday morning, proved to be a major disappointment to organizers. Only a handful of members of the Lakeside Frontier Riders kept the demonstration from being a complete flop.

Dan Emrich, a retired Air Force colonel who organized the event, said he was disappointed at the turnout, noting that those being honored — the border patrol — failed to respond.

"I let them know about it," he said.

Emrich, the San Diego and Imperial counties representative of FAIR (Federation for American Immigration Reform), said a couple of patrol officers on their way to work stopped by for a few minutes, but had to leave before the ceremony got under way.

About the only border patrol presence was overhead in the form of a helicopter that drowned out efforts to read a proclamation supporting the service.

Emrich said he organized the demonstration, staged on a bluff overlooking the San Ysidro border crossing, because of recent reports that border patrol officers are attempting to operate under severe gasoline and mileage restrictions.

"Our border patrol is undermanned and has too little equipment," Emrich said. "As if that were not enough, mismanagement by INS (Immigration and Naturalization Service) establishes new records for blundering every day of the year. A recent example was running out of fuel for patrol vehicles.

"The officers were directed to patrol on foot for many days. Results were easily predictable. Apprehensions fell by more than 90 percent."

FAIR's August newsletter commented on the gasoline shortage and related budget crunch, citing a directive from an unnamed Southwest field station last month eliminating trail spotters, curtailing vehicle operations, allowing officers to respond only to reports of large numbers of illegal aliens sneaking into the country and even limited horseback operations.

All this, the FAIR newsletter said, comes at a time when alien traffic is the heaviest.

The proclamation Emrich had hoped to present to the patrol noted that the "borders are besieged far beyond anything ever recorded in the peacetime history of the world."

It said officers "daily face significant problems, and that despite insufficient manpower, inadequate funding and constant peril, patrolmen continue to stand and courageously serve."

Emrich said the vast majority of Americans support their efforts.

Floyd Decker of the Lakeside mounted group said Emrich had approached him asking for support. He said members of his group wanted to help and agreed to send a mounted color guard.

"I feel their budget should be a little more to give them more flexibility," Decker said.

Emrich had planned to have young girls on horseback present the assembled border patrol officers roses for their wives. Because there was no one there, a bouquet of flowers was left on the ground at the demonstration site.

The reading of a "Citation of Meritorious Service" lost its significance due to the overwhelming noise of the border patrol helicopter circling overhead.

Plans to make a symbolic delivery of gasoline to the nearby border patrol headquarters were scrubbed when patrol officials reportedly informed the group they would be barred from the property and the gasoline would not be accepted.

PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY

Charges Anger Border Patrol

By DAVE POLIS

Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

SAN YSIDRO — Border Patrol agents say they are fed up with criticism of their efforts from both sides of the border, and have decided to do something about it.

"We're being accused of murdering and raping illegal aliens, and the patrolmen have really had a bellyful of it," Muriel Watson, spokeswoman for the National Border Patrol Council, said yesterday.

Watson, whose husband has been an agent for 24 years, said the tendency had been to ignore charges against the Border Patrol.

"The feeling was that we shouldn't lower ourselves to answer some of these charges — but when it begins infringing on our communities, on our families, then we think it is time to do something about it," she said.

The National Border Patrol Council intends to answer these charges at a press conference at 10:30 this morning at Swiss Park in Chula Vista. Watson said Robert Faber, president of the local chapter, and other officers will be present.

Agents are particularly upset with statements being made by Herman Baca, chairman of the National City-based Committee on Chicano Rights, Watson said.

Baca's group wrote Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., demanding a congressional investigation into what he termed "documented cases of illegal and unconstitutional acts which have been committed by the Border Patrol over the past 10 years."

Those acts, he said, included alleged shootings and killings, beatings, rape and sexual abuse of women, breaking into houses and strike-breaking.

In the letter, Baca charged the Border Patrol "is now totally out of control and is nothing but a lawless agency which is accountable and responsible to no one."

Watson said Baca and others have been quoted making similar charges

in the Mexican press.

Baca made his charges against the Border Patrol on March 21 following an incident where Agent Dan Cole killed one illegal alien and wounded another. Cole said the two men, who were handcuffed to each other at the time, jumped him and that he shot the men in self-defense.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office said the results of an investigation into that incident are expected next week. The investigation is to determine whether the shootings were justified, or whether charges should be brought against Cole, a supervising agent.

"My own children won't admit their father is an agent," Watson said. "They feel they would be putting themselves in jeopardy because of the animosity toward patrolmen."

The council represents about 80 percent of the agents who are eligible to belong to the union, she said. She said first-year agents do not normally join the union, since they are on probationary status.

Border agents ask probe of Baca claims

By JAN COOK

Angry Border Patrol agents here are asking Congress for an on-site investigation into "totally unfounded" claims that they are murderers and rapists of illegal aliens.

Ron Faber, Western Region vice president of the National Border Patrol Council Local 1613, said today he has sent a telegram to Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., urging a quick probe of the allegations made public by Herman Baca.

Baca, president of the National City Committee on Chicano Rights, has asked Holtzman and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to probe what he calls "documented cases of illegal and unconstitutional acts by patrol officers during the past 10 years."

Baca has accused agents of murder, rape and physical abuse of illegal aliens.

Faber said the union welcomes a probe because "it will prove that Baca's irresponsible claims are completely without foundation."

Poll shows minorities back immigration curbs

By Benjamin Shore
Copley News Service

and Don Williamson
Staff Writer

Most blacks and Hispanics support stronger national laws to stem the flow of illegal immigrants into the United States and limit legal immigration, according to a private poll released yesterday.

The poll, commissioned by the California-based Federation for American-Immigration Reform, was conducted between June 24 and July 12 by Peter D. Hart, who specializes in Democratic issues, and V. Lance Tarrance, a Republican pollster.

Charles R. Stoffel, a member of FAIR's national advisory board, said the survey proved that black and Hispanic leaders are "totally out of step" with their constituency on the immigration issue.

"What this shows is that it's not a race issue. It's not perceived that way by anyone," Stoffel said at a Sheraton Harbor Island news conference in San Diego yesterday. Stoffel called for black and Hispanic leaders to support the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration reform legislation pending before Congress.

"As I traveled around the country, I kept hearing Hispanic and black leaders say it was wrong to have immigration reform," said Stoffel. "But my mail from Mexican Americans said they were glad someone was finally supporting reform."

The summary prepared by Hart and Tarrance noted that 69 percent of Hispanics and 51 percent of blacks believe illegal immigrants take jobs that Americans might fill.

"Low-income blacks are particularly likely to feel an economic threat from illegal immigration," the pollsters said.

Also, substantial majorities of both groups supported the Simpson-Mazzoli bill's provisions for strong penalties for employers who hire undocumented aliens, and they endorsed major increases in federal spending on border enforcement.

"This poll explodes as a myth the assertion made by Hispanic lobbyists that Hispanic-Americans are opposed to immigration controls," said Roger Conner, executive director of FAIR, at a similar press conference held yesterday in Washington.

But Arnold Torres, chief Washington lobbyist for the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the nation's largest Hispanic political organization and an opponent of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill, said the results of the poll are not surprising.

"Hispanics and blacks want our immigration laws reformed," Torres said, "but the poll doesn't address what we believe will be the adverse effects of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill. I don't think Hispanics and blacks (who were polled) understand the ramifications of what they're supporting."

Herman Baca, chairman for the local Committee on Chicano Rights, questioned the validity of the poll and called FAIR "a standing joke in the Chicano community."

"There's not a shred of legitimacy in anything FAIR says," said Baca. "It has the reputation to live down as racist and a front organization of the INS (Immigration and Naturalization Service)."

The legislation was approved by the Senate last May but is stalled in the House. Hispanics, organized labor and growers have been lobbying to keep the measure from coming up for a vote in the full House.
