Gentlemen:-

I have your letter of June 12th referring to the analysis of paint rock sent you and its non-value as a paint product, for which I wish to thank you.

Yours very truly,

Gentlemen:-

We have had an analysis made of the samples of Palagonite which you submitted and find that they have no value whatever as Paint Pigments.

Very truly yours,

Gentlemen:

Under separate cover we are sending samples of palagonite which we wish you would analyse and advise us as to its value as a base for mineral paint. We would like to be informed not only as to its value to you as a paint, but also as to its quality so that we may be able to ascertain just what proportion of the rock is productive of the proper constituents acceptable to the buyer.

There is considerable of this rock in the locality of our holdings and while we are not in the mining business, would like to know definitely if it would have any value laid down at your plant in this form and how much that value would be. Will you kindly advise us as soon as convenient.

Yours very truly,

TPE:K
