5. Access and Use. Access to the Service shall be controlled through the use of Internet Protocol (IP) addresses, passwords/usernames, or both. Customer is responsible for providing valid Internet Protocol (IP) addresses to Elsevier, issuing and terminating access codes and/or passwords/usernames (if used), and verifying the status of Authorized Users. Customer is responsible for taking reasonable measures to ensure the security and integrity of the Service, ensure that access to and use of the Service is limited to Authorized Users and prevent access by unauthorized persons to the Service, ensure that passwords are issued only to Authorized Users, and immediately terminate any unauthorized access or use of which it becomes aware and prevent recurrence.
