HAPPY NEW YEAR from OCEANIDS

FORUMS ON UCSD ARCHITECTURE PLANNED

Plans are underway for a series of University-sponsored evening forums on UCSD architecture and related community problems, to be held during the middle of February.

Two lectures are scheduled and each will be followed by open discussion. They will be held in Sumner Aud.

The first will be concerned with UCSD-Community planning, during which latest information on the state of planning for housing in the area east of Matthews campus, schools and shopping centers will be discussed. Recent University land acquisitions, plans for University House and a variety of similar topics also will be included.

The second forum will present University architects in a discussion of existing and planned University buildings, college architecture, landscaping, parking areas and updating of the UCSD Master Plan.

Watch for definite dates and more information in BEAR FACTS next month.

NEWCOMERS PLAN WHALE HUNT

The OCEANIDS Newcomer Group will join the great California whale hunt this month. For their January meeting, the group has chartered a boat for a whalewatching expedition to provide a close-up view of the mass migration for members and their guests.

The hunt is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 21, at the peak of the season when the great grey whales make their way south to spawn in Scammon's Lagoon in Baja California.

It's an exciting trip and Newcomer's chairman Frieda Urey advises participants to bring cameras and, for maximum comfort, dress in very warm clothes.

The group will meet at the Seaforth Fishing Pier on Mission Bay, 1641 Quivera Rd. (off Ventura Blvd.) and those going on the expedition should arrive before 10 a.m. Prices are $2.50 for adults; $1.50 for children.

Make your reservations early by calling Frieda at 454-1640 or Ruth Newman at 454-2563. Additional information is available by calling the same numbers.

SECOND MEETING ON RACIAL IMBALANCE IN S. D. SCHOOLS PLANNED

Mrs. Marie Widman of Morse High School PTA, and Mrs. Ellie Simon, League of Women Voters, led a lively discussion of the Equal Educational Opportunity Report at the December meeting of our Community Concerns Interest group, according to chairman Peter Sargent.

Both speakers are members of the Citizen's Committee on Equal Educational Opportunity set up by the Board of Education last year to make recommendations on problems of racial imbalance in the schools.

All UCSD women, especially those too overwhelmed by Christmas preparations to attend the first, are invited to attend the next study meeting on the Report proposals, scheduled Wednesday, Jan. 11, 10 a.m., at the home of Mrs. Harold Simon, 2422 Via Sienna, La Jolla.

Copies of the Report will be available for study at the meeting.

BRICE EXHIBITION TO OPEN AT UCSD GALLERY

A collection of drawings by William Brice, UCLA professor of art, will be the first exhibition of the new year at the UCSD Art Gallery in John Muir College (Matthews Campus).

The exhibition will open with a reception on Sunday, Jan. 15, from 6:30 to 9 p.m., sponsored by OCEANIDS, which is open to the public.

Gallery Director Donald Lewallen has collected figurative drawings from both the east and west coasts, representative of work executed by the artist from 1955-66.

Described as a distinguished draftsman, with a unique blend of the highly skilled and the unstudied in his work, Brice studied at the Art Students Leaque in New York and Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles. He is represented in many outstanding collections including the Metropolitan and Whitney Museums of Art and the Museum of Modern Art.

Those who wish to renew their memberships in OCEANIDS may send checks to Membership chairman Jerry Huang, 5527 Ia Jolla Hermosa, Ia Jolla 92037. Make checks for the $3 dues payable to OCEANIDS. Be sure to include your correct address and zip code. All women associated with the University are eligible to join, and new members will be welcome.

THE CALIFORNIA GREY WHALE by Dr. Theodore Walker

California Grey Whales are now passing San Diego on their annual visit to coastal lagoons which indent the outer coast of the Baja peninsula. The "spouts" of these magnificent mammals can be easily seen from any promontory since the animals swim often just beyond the kelp The sighting of the spout from the crows nest produced the whaler's cry, "Thar she blows", which heralded the beginning of the hunt.

In the middle of the 19th century, whalers were also directed into position to hunt the grey whale by observers stationed atop of Point Loma. At this place now exists a whale observatory where visitors may learn the art of whale spotting. This free public service is provided by the interpretative branch of the National Park Service of the Cabrillo National Monument.

Once one has seen these picturesque animals from afar, one will want to go aboard one of the excursion boats which leave from Mission Bay or San Diego Harbor to meet and follow the whales, often as close as two hundred feet.

The California Grey whale spends the summers in the cold waters of the Bering Sea and the Arctic Ocean feeding; the winters in temperate waters. In order to do this the whale swims 8,000 to 12,000 miles round trip, arriving on schedule. The exact route is still unknown. Scientists do not yet know why the whales make this extensive trek, although we know that throughout the winter months the summer habitat is covered over with ice by the southward extension of the icecap. The coastal lagoons into which the whales retire for the winter also afford an ample supply of food. To feed the Grey Whale dredges its food from the bottom, flushing the mud back out the mouth, retaining burrowing animals, such as worms, shrimps, and mollusks, by means of a mustaschelike brush which hangs down from the sides of the upper jaw.

The winter months are also the season in which the whales mate and bear their young. Mating is more frequently observed in and around the lagoon, but now and then courtship can be seen off San Diego.

The gestation period is one year, and any one female will be in season every other year. The pregnant females travel alone on migration and they do not tarry, so they pass San Diego during the early part of migration, which extends from Christmas until mid-February.

The whales which travel in groups on migration are composed of one or more non-pregnant females followed by several males. These animals are more commonly seen the latter part of January. Stragglers which are

DR. SIGURD BURCKHARDT

We extend our deepest sympathy to former BEAR FACTS EDITOR Peggy Burckhardt whose husband, Dr. Sigurd Burckhardt, Professor of German Literature, succumbed on December 15.

A colorful new display of marine tropical fish is brightening up the tanks at Scripps aquarium-Museum. They were collected by Bob Kiwala during a recent expedition to Puertocitos in Baja California, a tiny fishing village on the Sea of Cortez just below San Felipe.

Most spectacular are the Cortez Angel Fish, with standard Angel Fish, Sargent Majors, and Big Puffers also on view.

The new display of Triderna Maxima, so called "maneating", clams has been causing much excitement but no serious feeding problems to the Aquarium staff. Though in nature this species attains a width of 18 inches, the new Aquarium residents are only eight-inch juveniles and it is generally accepted that their nourishment is obtained from photosynthetic action of symbiotic algae growing in their mantles, rather than people.

The species derives its name from its reputation of slamming shut on the feet of unlucky swimmers who get tooclose, though closure of these shells on contact with anything is purely a reflex action of defense. And once shut they are practically impregnable. They do present a danger in tropical areas as they like to bask in sunlit reef shallows.

They were obtained through the efforts of Scripps' Dr. Francis Haxo and the crew of the Alpha Helix during the ship's recent expedition to Australian waters.

Aquarium director Don Wilkie reports that there is still a need for Aquarium association volunteers in the decents program. Those interested in joining the group's educational program may call 453-2000, ext. 1580.

seen toward the end of the migratory period are yearlings which follow every indentation of the coast. This behavior suggests unfamiliarity with route. Adult whales generally steer a course which cuts from one headland to the next.

Although the pregnant female prefers to have her baby in the lagoons, occasionally the baby is born enroute. In which case the mother continues her trip, keeping, howevery, close to the surf-line. The mother will protect the baby, if it is molested by the use of her powerful tail, or by ramming with her massive solidly constructed head. The baby stays alongside mother frequently resting, partially propped up by its or its mother flippers.

The mothers chose the shallowest waters of the lagoon to care for their young, since while feeding, their tails extend to the surface allowing the baby, which does not dive as readily, a chance to stay in contact at or near the surface. When the mother is satiated, she sleeps

FROM THE GOODS

For their December meeting the Supper Group enjoyed a typical Jew hosted and prepared by Joan and Following is a recipe for Sweet Carrot Tzimmes, which was one of the meal.

1 2-3 lb fresh brisket of beef

- 2 tbsp brown sugar
- 1 tbsp orange juice
- 1-1/2 c water
- 3 large sweet potatoes

Brown onion and brisket in dutch meat generously with seasoned salt and garlic powder. When meat is brown on both sides, add water and sliced carrots and cook for one hour on top of stove. Remove and add peeled, cut-up sweet potatoes, placing them under the meat. Baste with liquid in the pan. Cover pan and place in 350 degree oven for 2 hours or until meat and sweet potatoes are done. Then remove meat and about 1/2 cup of gravy from pan. Mash the potatoes and carrots together (not fine, leave some pieces solid), adding brown sugar, salt and orange juice. Slice meat, adding any small pieces to potato mixture. Meat can be reheated in gravy separately or placed on top of potato mixture and the whole reheated in oven.

Note: Joan reports that fresh, good-quality brisket of beef can be found regularly at the White Front Supermarket for about 79¢ per pound.

CONSIDER CHANGES FOR OCEANIDS BY-LAWS

The OCEANIDS board is considering appointment of a committee to consider possible changes in the by-laws. It would be appreciated if members feeling a need for any changes would contact Louise Arnold, 453-0232, or Marge Ahlstrom, 222-3454 before Jan. 15.

WE'RE SO SORRY, THE NEXUS VINDICATED

We didn't realize that the owner was away and not minding the store when we tried to find BEAR FACTS at the NEXUS last month. We are happy to report that the owner has returned and BEAR FACTS is again very much in evidence. The NEXUS has always been a good friend to BEAR FACTS and we appreciate it greatly.

YOU MEET SUCH INTERESTING PEOPLE WORKING ON A NEWSPAPER... Wouldn't you like to join the staff of BEAR FACTS? Easy hours, interesting work and lots of fringe benefits. Call Tanya Holm-Hansen, 453-2576 if you are interested.

EXCURSIONS FOR WHALE-WATCHERS

Whale-watching excursions offer an exciting prospect during the month of January to those interested in viewing the great migration southward to Scammon's Lagoon in Baja California at close range.

Trips are available weekdays, Saturdays and Sundays from the Mission Bay area and all cruises offer expert commentary on the ocean-going mammals. Prices are rather constant, at $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children, with the H & M Co. offering $1.25 for children under 13, for a two-hour cruise.

Though mornings are less windy, old salts state that vision is better during noon or afternoon runs. Whale-watchers are advised to dress warmly, at least in warm outer clothing which can easily be discarded if weather conditions permit.

Weekend excursions do become crowded, with sometimes as many as 60 to 70 participants, so we advise, if possible, taking advantage of the weekday schedule. All firms listed in the schedule below offer charter service, which, if enough people participate, can lower the rates considerably.

Whale Watching excursion schedules are: MISSION BAY SPORT FISHING, 1551 Ventura Blvd, 222-1164. Weekdays 1 p.m.; Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Narrator to be announced.

SEAFORTH SPORT FISHING, 1641 Quivera Rd., 224-3383. Weekdays, 1 p.m.; Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Narrator, Dr. Ted Walker.

H & M SPORTFISHERS, Fenelon and Scott, 222-1144. Weekdays, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, 10 a.m., 12:30 and 3 p.m. Narrator to be announced.

DADA REVISITED

An evening of Dada entertainment on Jan 8. will mark the beginning of an exhibition of Dada art assembled by design students at Southwestern College.

Students also are presenting the entertainment which is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in Room 801 at the college. Admission is free, and Dada-type refreshments will be served before the program.

The program will feature Bob Glaudini formerly of the Actors Quarters, reading Dada poetry; Richard Allen Morris, a San Diego painter, reading his own. A film by Lou Sanders and one by Tom Moschetti, made especially for the occasion, will be shown to the accompaniment of Dada sounds created by John Baldessari, Southwestern art instructor, which will be heard throughout the program. Bob Matheny, instructor of the design class, has arranged a Dada performance to be acted by the design exhibition students.

Reproductions of original Dada art, along with some reproduction of Neo-Dada examples, will be included in the exhibition, which will run through Feb. 3.

down. Daytime siestas are the rule. The nighttime behavior is not yet known.

The California Grey whale is considered the most primitive of living whales. It is now found only in the North Pacific and there are two separate populations: a Korean herd which summers in the Sea of Okhotsk, calving in the open sea off the Eastern shore of Korea; and a Californian herd which summers in the Bering Sea, on both the Siberian and Alaskan sides, and calving along Baja California. The Korean herd may now be extinct, because of indiscriminate whaling by the Japanese.

The California herd has been brought to near extinction by shore and lagoon whaling three times, and has miraculously recovered. Although the herd is not whaled, frequently, the whaling industry is considering the desirability of this in view of impending extinction of the other species which have been supporting them in the 20th century.

The products of whaling are fats, meat and fertilizer products. It is estimated that there are no more than 5,000 to 7,000 Grey whales and these are by no means all fully grown. Inasmuch as regulation and conversation of whales is arbitrarily controlled by the whaling interests, one can see little hope that any of these marvelous creatures will survive for future generations at admire.

*Scripps Scientist last winter showed for first time that the whales feed in the lagoons.

HOW TO HANG OUR NEW CALENDAR

We have received queries on how to hang our newlyarranged Calendar so that all sides are easily visible as was the case with the old one.

For easy demonstration we have drawn two black dots on this month's calendar, one on the fold, the other directly to the right of the fold. By punching a hole through the fold dot and inserting a string, tying it and looping string over tack on bulletin board, the Calendar can be easily hung and takes up much less space than a full sheet, which is why we created the new design.

Or, you can attach it to your bulletin board by inserting the tack through the right-hand dot and all sides readily visible. --T. H-H.
