

This image depicts a Saturday night sunset at Black Beach Cliffs just next to UCSD. To me this represents the cultural climate in terms that it displays vast amounts of room for development but all has a central focal point of the sun, success. The waves, barriers and struggles, may be choppy leading up to it, but will eventually result in a beautiful overall experience.