Sabina's Corner

This takes us to the next point: why where the Papuans not allowed to determine their own future? Was there ever a referendum to determine if the Papuans wanted to united with New Guinea to form a so-called country or a state? And if they did not, then how are they considered bound by this union if they never gave their consent in the first place? Right now, the Papuans are the most abused regional group of people with their land gone to the dogs and their women and children abused by unruly people from elsewhere.

The PNG Government does not belong to the ordinary people

We said in this column just recently that the business of government in this country is conducted along the lines of a private business enterprise with the State ministers constituting the Board of Directors, the prime minister being the Chairman of the Board. We should add that the rest of the members of parliament and their Departmental Heads are like shareholders in the business enterprise. And more recently we also said in this column that this government does not consider the people of this country as partakers in the economic life of this country, rather the partnership is between the government and foreign capital.

And the readers of this column will note that all along we have been asking one question: Where do the people of this country fit in within the economic equation pursued by this faceless entity called, the "national government" of another faceless institution called, "the independent state of Papua New Guinea"? And if we proceed to remove these two masks, what do we get? Yes, the answer is, "people" of course, and "real people" for that matter. At the bottom of it all, are the people; real people all lumped together under two faceless entities wearing masks.

Before the white man arrived on these shores with his way of life, we were a thousand tribes peaking a thousand languages but each tribal grouping, was distinctive in the sense that each tribe had a name by which to distinguish itself from its neighbours and each tribe occupied a geographically distinctive landmass as its habitat and each tribe had certain characteristics peculiarly its own, which distinguished it as a people thereby giving itself a sense of identity distinctive from its neighbouring tribes.

Then came a totally new concept whereby we were told that the people of the whole landmass then called Papua and New Guinea had to come under one umbrella called the independent state of Papua New Guinea. We were then given a political document called the Constitution and then informed that we had to re-order ourselves into units called provinces and districts and then join a bigger union called the independent state of Papua New Guinea. And as for each one of us individuals, we were given an official name tag called "citizen" with certain defined rights, freedoms and liberties, on paper, anyway.

Having come this far, let us now ask ourselves if there was any rationale for our being lumped together in a single unit and if so, we must now ask what that rationale might be? Ultimately, the underlying question must be: For whose benefit and on whose behalf were we thrown together under one umbrella?

This takes us to the next point: why where the Papuans not allowed to determine their own future? Was there ever a referendum to determine if the Papuans wanted to united with New Guinea to form a so-called country or a state? And if they did not, then how are they considered bound by this union if they never gave their consent in the first place? Right now, the Papuans are the most abused regional group of people with their land gone to the dogs and their women and children abused by unruly people from elsewhere.

Likewise, how is a Tolai bound by this union if the Tolais never gave their consent as Tolais, to such a union? And how is a New Ilander bound by this union if the New Ilanders never gave their consent as New Ilanders to this political marriage? And if it is suggested that the Constituent Assembly gave that consent, then let us ask if the Assembly had our consent to act for us? Sir Julius is the only politician who can see the reality behind this farce so he wants New Ireland to go solo. Why not, Sir J? Bon Voyage.

We can repeat this question over and over again and yet we shall never get any satisfactory answer because there is no satisfactory answer to our questions. The only plausible explanation for this union is "administrative convenience" for somebody at our expense apart from the historical fact that all modern people transact business under the umbrella of statehood with a government performing all state functions.

The concept of statehood was a noble idea of uniting people under a single political, social and economic unit. And the idea that we should all place our resources in a common pool for the common good is also a noble idea.

However, these are only ideas and concepts which laid the foundation for the framework of statehood and the machinery of government. The only way these ideas can be made to bear fruit within the given framework is through human intervention or facilitation and this is where we have failed as a people; this is where we have failed as a nation of a thousand tribes; and this is where we have failed as a stone age culture making the leap into the information age. The people at the helm to steer the ship of state to greener pastures haven't got the hearts to make us realize the dreams embodies in those National Goals and Directive Principles.

Was there any other way of achieving the same goal? We will never know because we never explored any options to what we were offered. The so-called 'Bully Beef Club' never really had a political manifesto for the people. They had nothing to offer by way of an economic policy for the nation in the making.

There were individuals like Sir John Guise who was a true nationalist except that the white man did not accept him because he was half white and half black. They wanted to hand over leadership to a black face, so they offered it to Somare on a silver platter.

Somare boasts that he fought for independence, but there is nothing in the PNG history books that say Somare was ever beaten up and sent to gaol by the white man nor did he lose an arm and a leg because he fought for independence like Mandela fought for the black South African. Thus, what is Somare boasting about?

For whatever it is that Somare did, he has already been knighted Sir Michael Thomas Somare and as if that is not enough, he has also been made a Grand Chief of the Order of Logohu. What exactly is this Order of Logohu? We are not aware of any historical or cultural basis for this so called Order of Logohu. And how does one merit such an award and what is the essence of the Order of Logohu? Does the Order of Logohu have any meaning at all?

In any event, independence was no big deal. And after 38 years of independence, there is nothing to show for it except for a life of poverty, destitute, lawlessness and total neglect experienced by the people. Where are our roads linking all our villages to towns and cities; where are our village clinics built by the white man before self government and what has happened to the state of our schools and hospitals? We have not improved on any services delivery to the people. We have not built that welfare state promised under the National Goals and Directive Principles.

In fact, there has been a total neglect and decline in services over the last 38 years. And one wonders what it is that we are celebrating for when all we've got at independence were black faces in place of white colonial masters. And most people will say that life under colonialism was far better and fairer than it is now, under our black brothers. Thus, here we are, close to 40 years after independence and with nothing to show for it except corrupted politicians and lots of poor, illiterate and destitute citizens in the country.

And whose idea was it that we should all form this union called, 'the independent state of Papua New Guinea'? Well, let us call it 'a legacy of colonial' for lack of a better term. It is a reminder that here we are, a people coming out of a stone age culture to find that other human beings elsewhere had already advanced to higher levels of development where they were living in social groupings under a organized system of government which we had to copy in order to partake in the new and modern order of things.

But imagine the leap from Stone Age to Information Age; the gap is far too big. Little wonder we are in a hurry to exhaust our natural resources like timber, gold, copper, silver, oil and gas because before the white men came, all we ever found was stone to mould into implements for use in our daily lives and pigs and sea shells for items of wealth thus the attraction for white man's goods including money and the white man's way of life.

In conclusion, all we can now ask ourselves is: what is there for the people under the umbrella of statehood and the machinery of government?

We said earlier in this column that the people of this country were pooled together and formed a union called the independent state of Papua New Guinea. And what is this entity called 'the state'. Does the state have a face, and how many arms and legs does it have?

There is no such tangible thing as a state therefore applied in our case, there is no such thing as the independent state of Papua New Guinea without people. It is only a name, a legal fiction, applied to describe the people, their landmass and a conglomerate of faceless public institutions with diverse functions to control, direct and supervise our people and their lives as a single social unit to exploit the people en masse.

It is essence, a control mechanism. In the wrong people's hands, it becomes a tool for manipulation; a means by which to serve personal interests; and a vehicle for exploitation of the masses. However, the independent state of Papua New Guinea is a name applied to describe real people, real human beings, their landmass with its abundant resources and the faceless institutions created to exert control, exploit and steal from the people.

Thus, seen in the above context, it is a myth to suggest that the government of this country belongs to the people of this country. Yes, in theory only the government does belong to the people. However, in practice, the government belongs to the members of parliament, the civil servants and heads of various statutory institutions in the country. This is the reason why the bulk of the money appropriated each year by way of the annual budgetary process is spent on salaries, perks, travelling, allowances and other administrative costs.

Very little is spent on roads, bridges, schools and hospitals. For example, a CEO of a statutory corporation in Port Moresby receives close to K1.5 million a year in salary plus perks excluding what he steals from the institution that he runs.

Come the 2012 National Elections, please, use your vote wisely. Do not allow the candidates to buy your vote. Vote for an upright candidate; an upright and God-fearing man. Your vote means something. Do not give it away to the pigs and dogs for nothing.

'Revolutionising our roads'

Take the power from drivers ...

FOR the majority of the MVIL 'Road Safety: it's Not a Game' campaign we have the need to focus on the drivers of our PMVs, trucks and other vehicles. This is of course with good cause as the vast majority of accidents can be eliminated through better driving practices. What is not considered so often perhaps is that even as a passenger on a PMV the power is YOURS to greatly reduce YOUR chance of being involved in an accident.

As passengers on a PMV have you ever questioned whether you should be pushing and squeezing to be the last on? Or perhaps you have decided to stay a passenger even upon noticing the driver is affected by drinking or is constantly speeding or driving erratically. In such situations the answer is simple.

If you are uncomfortable with what you see before you board a PMV or during the journey, remember you have the right to say no.

That is, to say no to placing yourself or your loved ones in a dangerous situation by hopping on, or decide to get off and go if the situation becomes dangerous once already aboard.

The most likely reason you would not accept a lift will be to do with how many fellow passengers are already on board, or are waiting to board. As many PMVs registered in the recent Driver Competition, it is now easier to distinguish an overloaded vehicle thanks to the clearly posted passenger limit stickers.

Even without a limit sticker, if there are clearly more people taking the ride than there are seats, ask yourself – is it worth the risk?

Statistics prove the chance of your being involved in an accident in a PMV is very real. Whilst unseated on an overloaded PMV the likelihood of being thrown with great force into other passengers in the event of an accident, or even being thrown outside the PMV, prove the worth of waiting for a ride that allows you to be seated safely and securely.

Further findings from an independent research company have found that a majority 96% worry about being safe on the roads when they are a passenger. Why then are so many overloaded PMVs continuing to get around on PNG roads?

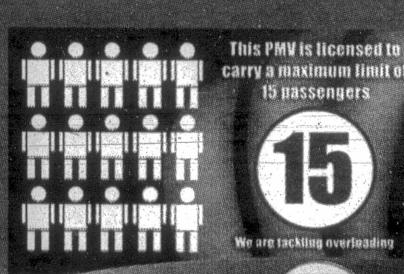

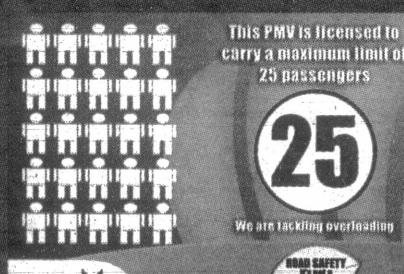

If we know we worry about our safety as passengers, we must now start acting on these worries!

You do have the right to say no when you feel unsafe on a PMV. If you feel you or your family is in danger when boarding or at any time during a PMV journey, exercise your right to say no and get off and go.

PARTING WAYS: The Beatles
John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Star: the four most iconic names in pop music.
Parting Ways examines the phenomenon that was Beatlemania, but also looks at the ups and downs of the fab four since their heyday. From John Lennon's relationship with Yoko Ono to his untimely death; from Paul McCartney's solo career to his knighthood; from George Harrison's stabbing to death; and Ringo Starr's rise above being 'just a drummer'. Parting Ways treats The Beatles with the respect they deserve, and detail their lives since the world's number one band fell apart.
