CIA AT UCSD

LETTER FROM COLBY TO SAXON

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20505

23 August 1975

Dr. David Saxon, President
University of California
Berkeley, California 94720

Dear Dr. Saxon:

For some time this Agency has been actively engaged in an effort to increase minority representation among our employees. Although our efforts have been directed broadly across the United States, we find that minority recruitment remains low. This is true even though the general volume and quality of applicants for Agency employment have never been higher.

Last year we attempted to address this issue by bringing to the Agency representatives of about a dozen small schools with nearly total minority student populations. We described the work of CIA and the typical activities of its employees. Our visitors went to various offices where they could observe the working environments and talk to employees. They also made some suggestions to improve the success of our minority recruitment effort.

This year we have decided to focus our attention on publicly funded institutions with strong graduate programs and large minority student populations. We plan to hold a two-day conference (23 and 24 October) at our Washington headquarters, following such the same kind of agenda that I outlined above. We hope to expand the program to increase visitor contact with employees, and to increase the time allotted for discussions with Agency officials.

This program is in no way intended to be a substitute for the working relationship which our recruiters maintain with placement officers at many universities throughout the country. We would continue to have the recruiters conduct the interviews and handle the referrals resulting from this expanded effort.

I invite you to nominate two or three people each from your Berkeley, Los Angeles, and San Diego campuses to represent you at the October conference. I suggest that they be selected from people in your institution who are concerned with affirmative action or with student placement. You might consider sending a faculty member (minority or not), a college dean, or even a student as one of your representatives. You need not be too concerned about their substantive specialties since the nature of foreign intelligence work requires that we employ people from virtually all of the academic disciplines represented in the major universities. The only special request that I wish to make is that your representatives be interested in minority employment problems and that they be in a position to reach broad student and faculty audiences.

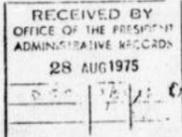

Of course, we will reimburse your nominees for travel and certain other related expenses. In order to facilitate hotel and travel arrangements, may I have their names, titles, addresses, and Social Security numbers by 25 September? My manager for this conference will be Gary Foster, Coordinator for Academic Relations. Questions about the conference will be more quickly answered if addressed to him at Room 3E63, Central Intelligence Agency, Washington, D. C. 20505. He may also be reached by telephone (collect) at (703) 351-1100 ext. 6929.

I feel very strongly about the need for CIA to reflect the diversity of American society. I hope that our conference will interest you, and that your representatives can help us meet this objective.

Sincerely,

W. E. Colby

CIA NEEDS MINORITIES & WOMEN

WE ARE LOOKING FOR A
NAME TO REPLACE
'NATTY DREAD'.
WE WOULD LIKE READERS
TO SUBMIT SUGGESTIONS
FOR A NEW NAME.

On the name "Natty Dread" .....A
Collective Self-Criticism

Since our last issue, we have received much criticism over the name NATTY DREAD. After careful evaluation of the situation, we agree the name should be changed. The question we still need to answer is: TO WHAT? We need further help from our readers in arriving at a new name for NATTY DREAD. We need suggestions for a new name since our numerous discussions have not provided an adequate one.

In arriving at a new name, certain things are being considered:

Our reasons for changing from NATTY DREAD are to make the general orientation of the paper as relevant as possible to the situation today in 1975 in San Diego. While we, as a collective feel strong solidarity with revolutionaries in the Third World, we believe that the struggle in the industrialized countries has to deal with qualitatively different conditions than in the developing nations. Specifically we refer to: 1) Different economic structures, (mass production of luxuries vs. minimal production of necessities) which, although they are interdependent, present different environments in which to achieve change, 2) different indigenous cultures (mass commodity culture vs. a more organic nature-based) and 3) different social classes (monopoly bourgeoisie and large working class vs. client bourgeoisie and peasant-majority).

'Good Writing Skills' Sought by CIA

The Central Intelligence Agency made a tentative step towards re-establishing a working relationship with UCSD career counselors last week. Apparently it was a success. The people initially asked by the administration to attend the conference refused to go. However, two persons were found who would accept the invitation: Ray Dye, Special Assistant to the Chancellor on Affirmative Action Programs, and Rowena Reno, Academic Advisor to Third College. Ray Dye appropriately elected to take a vacation immediately upon his return from the conference, and we have not been able to contact him. We were, however, able to interview Rowena Reno.

Throughout the interview, Ms. Reno displayed a remarkable naïvete about the functions and roles of the Central Intelligence Agency. This is due, no doubt, to her past association with the State Department's official propaganda radio station, "Voice of America." In Ms. Reno's own words, "My main thing was that this is an additional opportunity for minority students." Apparently, Ms. Reno saw nothing more to the conference than that. She goes on to say that the CIA's "...only concern was that they are just one of several institutions, or several agencies, who would like to employ minority students, and they indicated to us that what they were interested in is to make sure that we knew the kinds of academic backgrounds that they looked for and the kinds of people they looked for as far as employment is concerned." Apparently, Ms. Reno views the agency as some sort of benevolent bureaucracy looking to hire clerks and scientists. For example, "...the Agency emphasized good writing skills." was a phrase repeated several times by Ms. Reno in the course of the interview.

She also seemed impressed with the CIA's ability to run a conference, for she called the conference "...well organized, very professionally handled and very smooth." Ms. Reno was particularly impressed with the integrity of then CIA director Colby, "...who was probably the most direct and most honest of all the speakers that we had, and of course, you...he would have to be if this is where he's at." The CIA, besides needing agents with "good writing skills", also expressed an interest in economists, particularly agricultural economists.

ANTI - CIA COALITION

On Oct. 23rd and 24th, two Lumumba-Zapata (3rd) college administrators enjoyed an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., to meet with representatives of the Central Intelligence Agency. The purpose of that trip was to initiate lines of communication between the CIA and 3rd college for the purpose of recruitment. Why 3rd college? The CIA needs people of color and women to act as their operatives. Thus, because of its unique character, because it addresses itself to Third World people, the revolutionary college that was Lumumba-Zapata has become a recruitment depot for the most repressive arm of the US government.

Unified in our opposition to all CIA activity, we have formed the Anti-CIA Coalition. Recent events in Chile and revelations from the Watergate hearings have shown conclusively the despicable actions of the CIA in other countries as well as in the US. We will be holding workshops on the CIA in the near future. Currently, the coalition is committed to the expulsion of the CIA from UCSD.

We endorse the demands presented by the Chicano Studies Program Committee, which are:

- THAT CIA RECRUITMENT OF MINORITY STUDENTS, AS WELL AS ANY AND ALL CIA ACTIVITIES ON THIS CAMPUS CEASE IMMEDIATELY,
- THAT ANY AND ALL CIA-UCSD RELATIONS, SUCH AS SPECIAL PROJECTS, FUNDING, ETC., BE MADE PUBLIC.

Concerned faculty have called a special meeting of the Academic Senate for Tuesday, November 11th, to discuss this issue. It is imperative that all members of the University opposed to the CIA meet and express to the Academic Senate their outrage at this action.

SPECIAL ACADEMIC SENATE MEETING TO DISCUSS CIA INVOLVEMENT AT UCSD. TUES. 11-11-75 HSS 2250 3:30

EDITORIAL ANALYSIS - CIA

This overt attempted recruitment of minorities and women by the CIA speaks to two issues. The first issue is the need of the CIA to intensify exportation of repression to the Third World.

The need to intensify exportation of repression to dependent economies is a reaction to the tactics used by the organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. This cartel focused national attention on the ability of Third World countries to disrupt the international economic order directed by the multinational corporations.

The CIA's program of recruitment will also serve to "stabilize" the political process in the United States. Racial minorities and women constitute major political forces in this country.

WE would like to think all of those people who participated in the creation of this weeks Natty Dread...they are... Rick, Ann, Marcus, Ruth, Cookie, Mark, Rojo, Susan, Lincoln, Kevin, Betsy, Big Ben, Bibi, David, Che, Maia, Ala Cruz, Hershe, Peter, Amuffo, BroGeorge, Marco, Gina, Monty, California, SAB, Billy, OB, Nosis, Chief...and to... struggle in Jamaica in particular and The Third World in general. In consideration of the differences above, however, we see that solidarity with our brothers and sisters abroad is not simply a mechanical unity but involves developing massive political struggle here in the U.S.

We see this newspaper as a vehicle through which UCSD and the people of San Diego in general can find analysis of relevant social issues that affect and control our daily lives.

If you have suggestions for a new name, call us at 452-2016 or leave them with Sandy at Student Organizations office in the Student Center.

When a friend reported a pile of Natty Dread burning in one of the hallways of UCSD's Undergraduate Science Building last week, some of us took heart. We knew we must be doing something right to produce this incendiary effect. Some people are so used to reading the San Diego Union and UCSD's UCSD's Trite-On Times (T.T.) that they become upset when someone interjects reality into their mental territory.

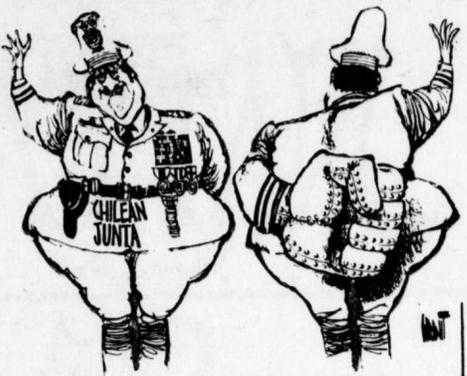

culture and taking something from them (in this case a slogan) while giving little or nothing in return. Our intent, of course, was expression of unity with the disenfranchised classes (The Natty Dread) of the world. But constant confusion regarding our name isn't our desire. We are thus seeking ideas from our readers for renaming Natty Dread (unless a lot of people object to changing it).

and Sometimes, newspapers was obscurely titled "Merger" (of what?) and run at the opposite corner of the page. Another example is the "Chicano Studies News" which was really about a UCSD Chicano Retreat and Conference.

Natty Dread is a recognized publication of the UCSD Community Board. The views of our paper do not necessarily reflect those of the Board or UCSD community. Our address is: Natty Dread, Student Organizations, 8025, P.O. Box 109, La Jolla, Ca. 92038. We welcome articles, letters, suggestions, and especially criticism from all our readers.

APOLOGIES

NATTY DREAD would like to extend its apologies to Ujima, for not putting a byline of recognition on the Third College/Lumumba - Zapata article; to the Union of Jewish Students for printing calendar events that were not to be printed; to the SLA Women for not printing a recognition of their communique, and to EDNA for not thanking them for the calendar they supplied us with.

LAURA ALLENDE

"Hablare sobre el facismo porque es correcto hablar del facismo". "I will speak about facism because it is correct to speak about facism."

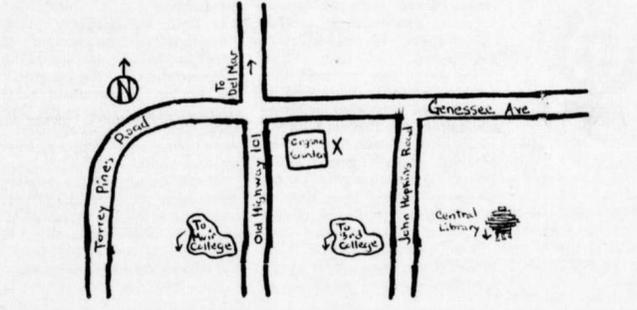

Laura Allende, senator in exile from her native Chile, came to speak here last Tue., Nov. 4th. She was introduced by Herbert Marcuse who emphasized, "The horror of Chile today should be a lesson to us all."

Satsang

SISTERS AND BROTHERS - JAI!

Got your garden growing yet? We certainly hope so! If not, check out last week's Satsang in Natty Dread, Vol. 1, No. 2 (11/3/1975). This column is a long one, but when we are dealing with such critical and important information, the energy flow is hard to stop (and shouldn't be stopped).

Now that you have hopefully become interested in the view of applied ecology, we would like to tell you about some of the activities that you can get involved in around our campus. One is the Food Cooperative on Muir Campus in the Vacant Lot.

Former UC Student held as political prisoner in Argentina

Today, a mass demonstration is being held at the Los Angeles Argentine Consulate's office to protest the U.S.'s failure to act, with regards to the Argentine Government, which, a year ago, landed Olga Talamante - a 25 year old Chicana from Gilroy, California - in jail with an estimated 3,000 other political prisoners.

The Organic Gardening Society also wants your help. Come visit the garden! (see map) O.G.S. is open to the students, faculty and staff of the university. O.G.S. is building a better greenhouse and fixing up their lath-house.

For now we would like to leave you with some "food for thought". The great vegetarian artist and scientific inventor, Leonardo da Vinci, stated, "Truly man is the king of beasts, for his brutality exceeds theirs. We live by the death of others. We are burial places!"

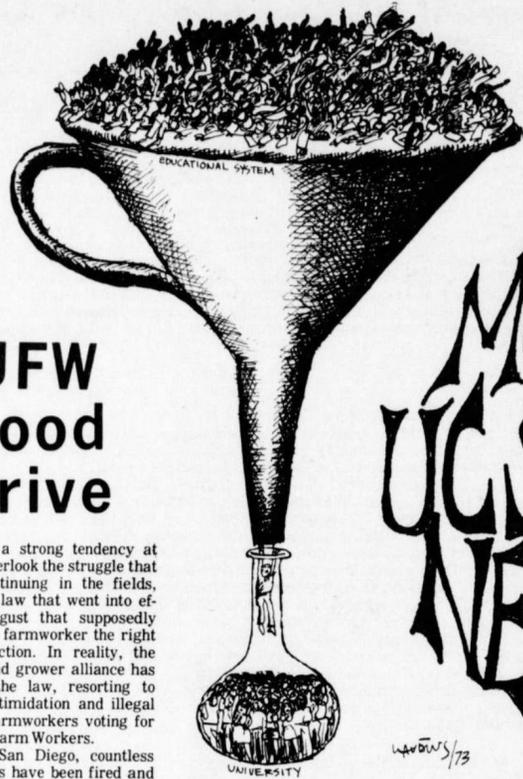

- 1. Health Secrets from Europe by Paavo Airola, 2. The Poisons in Your Food by William Longgood, 1969, (Pyramid Books, 919 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022) paperback $9.50. Good chapter on "test-tube meat".

The enormous support already shown for Olga and fellow prisoners in the past months has surely saved their lives and brought much attention to the suppression of democratic rights in that country, but a much greater effort is necessary.

For those who will not just see this as one of many issues that is simply passing by, are requested to strike a blow for humanity and do one or all of the following: -organizations and groups are urged to pass resolutions of support; -inform others through media

UFW Food Drive

There is a strong tendency at UCSD to overlook the struggle that is still continuing in the fields, despite the law that went into effect in August that supposedly assured the farmworker the right to free election. In reality, the teamster and grower alliance has subverted the law, resorting to violence, intimidation and illegal firings of farmworkers voting for the United Farm Workers.

Here in San Diego, countless farmworkers have been fired and still their allegiance to the Union continues. As a result, their struggle to survive becomes basically an economic one. There is currently a county-wide drive to assist these farmworkers by collecting canned goods, other non-perishable items, clothing, etc. The Support Committee here on campus will set up a table on Revelle Campus as a pick up point for your items. Monetary donations for food will be gladly accepted. Chicano Studies on Matthews Campus, Qonset Hut 313 will also be used as a drop off center. Your support in helping the cause of the farmworker is greatly needed.

Feminists Organize

The Feminist Coalition is a newly-formed group with two main goals. One, understanding and development of feminist ideology through political study groups, and two, coordination of workshops, discussions and distribution of information relevant to the women's movement. Hopefully, the group can function as a coalition, and bring together feminists with different political orientations.

We are in the process of defining ourselves as a group and developing specific objectives. Meetings are held Thursdays at 7:30 pm in the Women's Center (lower Muir Commons.) Faculty, staff and students are welcome. It is important to mention that although we are using their facilities we are not affiliated with the Women's Resource Center on campus, but are an independent student organization.

A workshop dealing with the topic of "Racism and Feminism" is planned for Thursday, November 20. Call X4636 (Edna) for more information.

UCSD STUDENT CO-OP

The UCSD Undergraduate Student Cooperative meeting of November 3 swiftly and thoroughly covered the several varied items on the agenda.

One major decision was concerned with election or approval procedures for students desiring to either coordinate or work collectively within particular action centers. (with the exception of the Budget Resource Group and the Chairpersons pool which will be considered separately.) At the meeting, individual nominees for particular action centers emphasized that they wish to work collectively rather than compete for an exclusive (?) coordinatorship. Thus elections were not necessary, and the Co-op formally approved these interested students as collective members of various action centers.

After some discussion on whether these groups have been working effectively this year, each action center agreed to explain its function, goals and progress to all other Co-op members at the November 10 meeting.

It was also mentioned that the present action centers only represent areas of coordination defined so far. Any time students express the need for a particular area of coordination, a new action center may be created.

A vote on the chairpersons pool was not appropriate at this meeting because the time commitments of a chairperson have not yet been clearly established. A motion is on the floor for the November 10 meeting which would require each chairperson to have attended the previous meeting in order to chair. Through this commitment, the chairperson would be fully aware of the continuity between items discussed one week as 'new business' and acted upon the next week as 'old business'.

For some reason the Educational Program Committee representative requested Co-op approval of his opposition to the Moscone Bill recently vetoed by Governor Brown. The bill would make it illegal for a state university or government agency to maintain secret files. The Academic Senate is violently opposed to this bill because it feels that critical evaluation of faculty is not possible unless it is confidential. There will be more discussion on this issue at the Nov. 10th meeting. Another major agenda item was

The Board of Overseers report presented by the Board's student representative, Ruth Quirk. The Board of Overseers is a highly influential advisory board on university policy upon which the Chancellor and La Jolla money are represented. At the meeting, a workshop for presentation and discussion of proposals to develop the stables and bluffs property was scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 5. Quirk stressed the need for student opposition at the workshop to these totally unnecessary proposed developments.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 6:30 in the north Student Center Conference room. New faces and ideas are always welcome so please attend.

*(Collective Note) An action center is a project or several projects, such as a group studying low cost housing for students or another dealing with affairs in San Diego County, each of which was in the past coordinated by a single person.

The following is a reprint from The Black Payback of October 21, 1975, which is one of UC Santa Barbara's alternative campus publications:

'No Comment' Boycott Invoked Against UCSD Triton Times

By Murv Glass

For the past two years, UCSB's Daily Nexus has been the center of heated controversy and continual criticism. Dissatisfaction with the paper reached an all-time high this past spring, when numerous articles and cartoons printed during election week were felt by many students to be not only biased, but racist in origin and intent. Demonstrations soon began on a number of issues, with one of the main demands being the firing of Nexus Editor-in-Chief James Minow.

The Press Council and the Administration, however, refused to take any type of action against Minow, although the Chancellor did publicly criticize Minow and the Nexus for the abandonment of the journalistic qualities of civility, sensitivity and responsibility.

UCSD BOYCOTT

It appears, however, that the controversy and discontentment with the so-called established college campus newspapers is not just limited to UCSB. At UC San Diego, a coalition of student groups, numbering ten at last count, is exercising a policy of "no comment" to the Triton Times. The Times, which publishes three times a week, is accused of "frequently taking racist, sexist and pro-liberal corporate establishment mentality positions" by supporters of the boycott.

The group also contends that "it [the Times] is recognized by the Chancellor and his 'advisory committee,' the Student Communications Board, as being the 'one and only official' campus newspaper." An examination of the disclaimer in the Times' Editors' box appears to bear this charge out, as it reads, in part, "the Triton Times is recognized as the official student newspaper by the Communications Board of

UCSD."

Proponents of this boycott also contend that the paper is supported only "by the elite La Jolla business community," and points to their paid advertising as proof of this. It must be noted that the Times' business manager, in a letter published on Oct. 8, wrote that "we desperately need, therefore, readers who are willing to support the establishments that advertise in your newspaper." The Business Manager also requested support for the Times, citing the fact that the Times may lose the few advertisers it has without it.

TIMES RETALIATES

The Times appears to have retaliated against the boycott by lashing out at its critics in the form of editorials. An editorial in the Oct. 8 edition criticized the Co-op Steering Committee, UCSD's version of student government, for barring the Times from its meetings. The Co-op Steering Committee is also supporting the boycott against the Times.

The Times has had a stormy and controversial history. Two years ago, Times Editor-in-Chief Dave Buchbinder was fired by UCSD Chancellor McElroy upon a recommendation from the Communications Board. Buchbinder was fired for allegedly being "unsympathetic to people of color" and for his paper not being "representative of the campus." Buchbinder was eventually reinstated one month later by the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs after taking legal action against the University.

In the meantime, the present controversy between the Times and student groups seems to be just the beginning and will probably continue, as the boycott has picked up added support.

'Enter the Interns'

Let's face it. To the uninitiated, this campus looks like an administrative jungle. Behind every Eucalyptus tree lurks some administrative officer or ubiquitous staff person waiting in prey. Even to those who have a vague idea of what's-what or who's-who, it still is an awesome bureaucratic monster that will be here long after we're gone.

Enter the interns. What are interns you may cleverly ask? (Go ahead, ask!) Interns are students (undergrads) that are selected to work in eleven administrative offices on campus and learn what goes on. They are there to provide 'student input' to administrators who otherwise wouldn't know a student if one bit them, learn about the office procedure and bureaucratic system, work on projects relating to the office and group projects (they just sponsored the GSU administration Forum last week), and communicate to students all the stuff that's going down at UCSD. The interns are in a unique position to help students also with hassles, projects, provide information, and act as student-administration liaisons-ombuds-persons. Because of the information they come in contact with, the interns are a good source to utilize when you want to get something done around here.

The interns are paid approximately $1100 a year for the work they do by either the office they work for, Student Affairs or some esoteric combination of the two. Although they are only paid for 11 hours a week of work, they frequently put in many times that amount so don't be turned off if you can't get a hold of one right away. The student center intern is responsible for keeping track of the program, facilitating the weekly meetings (10AM on Fridays in the Student Organizations Conference Room), and getting in touch with the interns should you have a problem doing so. The program is in its third year of operation and is only now starting to live up to its potential as an information dispersal resource. For further information about the program or the campus bureaucracy, contact Ron Green, ext. 4023, the Student Center Intern, or leave a message with the EDNA desk.

THIRD COLLEGE STATEMENT ON CIA

TO: Dr. William D. McElroy
Chancellor

FROM: The Third College Council
We, the members of the Third College Council of UCSD want to make clear our position on the University of California's participation in the recent affirmative action conference held by the Central Intelligence Agency. We as representatives of the Third College community regret that our University took part in the conference. As a College vitally concerned with the Third World we oppose any cooperation with the CIA whose history has been directly inimicable to the independence, peace and development of so many Third World countries. This is not meant as a criticism of the staff members who attended the conference or of their supervisors. Rather we want to communicate our strong opposition to any involvement of the University with the CIA.

CHICANO STUDIES PROGRAM STATEMENT ON CIA

TO: Dr. William D. McElroy, Chancellor
FROM: Chicano Studies Program Committee

We have recently learned of UCSD's participation in the CIA's efforts to recruit minority students on this campus, and we are opposed to any UCSD cooperation with this agency. The CIA has been engaged for many years in subverting foreign governments and Political movements, especially those which are struggling for independence and national liberation. CIA activities in Chile, Portugal, Angola, Guatemala, Cuba, and many other countries are well known. Their tactics have included bribery, torture and assassinations. We can only conclude that Chicano students are being recruited to further these purposes in Spanish speaking countries.

In view of these considerations, we demand:

- A) that CIA recruitment of minority students, as well as any and all CIA activities on this campus cease immediately
- B) that any and all CIA-UCSD relations, such as special projects, funding, etc., be made public.

cc. Vice Chancellor George Murphy, Sheldon Schultz, Chairman of the Academic Senate

'GOOD WRITING SKILLS'...

According to Ms. Reno, she would never mention the CIA to minority students in her capacity as a career counselor -- she claimed that all she would do is give them information if they expressed an interest in the CIA. According to Ms. Reno, no student has ever asked her specifically about the CIA during all her years as a career counsellor. She also stated that "...what they would like us to do was to see if we could talk to students as they enter into the four year institutions, not so much about the CIA itself, but about the fact that there are jobs available in highly technical fields.

As examples of the positive aspects of the CIA were its good employment benefits, and that the CIA's biggest negative aspect was its bad public image. The New York Times, October 25, 1975, described the purposes and efforts of the CIA conference. "...CIA recruiting is done from ten regional office across the country which are said to be in contact with four hundred campuses. Until the anti-war protests of the late nineteen-sixties, the recruiters went on campus to conduct their interviews, the way corporate talent scouts do.

Later they retreated to well-secured federal buildings, but now, gradually, it is said, the climate is easing and the CIA is cautiously starting to send its recruiters back to the campuses.

In the last year, officials say, the recruitment prospects for the agency have improved markedly, despite the revelations of the CIA's illegal domestic spying activities and the well-publicized investigations these generated. In fact, it is said, the publicity has helped, not hurt."

SDG&E PART II

In the first part of this article, printed in the Nov. 3 "Natty Dread", I briefly summarized the private profit-making motives for SDG&E's rate increase proposal. I also stressed the fact that these increases were not needed to benefit the rate-payers but rather were a means for SDG&E to increase its capital and expand its corporate interests. This company's strategy is extremely harmful in that consumer services are basically ignored, and environmental quality will be destroyed in addition to the skyrocketing costs that we, as consumers, will pay. I cannot emphasize strongly enough the fact that SDG&E's profits do not and will not benefit rate payers, but will only serve to perpetuate their capitalist investments, corporate interests, and continual rip-off of residential utilities users. Tom Hayden summarized this very well when he stated, "The private energy corporations are obtaining 'advance payments' from rate payers for their interests on loans to finance explorations - without any guarantee that a single cubic foot of gas will ever be delivered. If the consumers are going to be expected to pay for the classical risk taking function of the entrepreneur, then we ought to share in the benefits or go into business for ourselves."

The statement rises from two blatant examples of private subsidiary dealings. Strong consumer criticism led to a report from a UCSD physics professor who worked with the Energy Coalition to expose these dealings. The results of the Energy Coalitions report proved to be very interesting: The New Albion Resource Company (NARCO), Japutal, and Applied Energy, are SDG&E's three subsidiaries. NARCO was incorporated to explore and mine for coal. SDG&E contends that NARCO protects the rate payer from risks and that any losses will be carried by the stockholders, since they developed NARCO to assure the company adequate supplies of coal. However, the fact that mineral exploration is a risky operation means that NARCO probably could not borrow the money it gets in loans from SDG&E on the open market. So rate payers are the actual subsidizers, NARCO, doesn't guarantee that coal will be available. Without that guarantee when coal is actually mined, NARCO will be able to sell coal to the company at whatever the world market price is, and pass the profits on to stockholders. So, in essence although we pay for the initial exploration, any discoveries will not lead to our gaining anything.

SDG&E's other two subsidiaries, Japutal and Applied Energy, buy and sell land on behalf of SDG&E and manufacture thermal energy equipment for company use. SDG&E claims that their subsidiaries are not established to provide goods at high costs and pass profits to stockholders. They claim the PUC would not allow this.

A little history of the PUC would lead one to wonder about the validity of this statement. One example is the recent PUC decision to allow Southern California Gas Corporation to charge its customers the cost of underwriting $700 million in interest on loans from First National Bank of New York, to the ARCO corporation. (Atlantic-Richfield Corporation) This money will subsidize ARCO's drilling for oil in Alaska, also giving Southern California Gas Corporation first rights to negotiate for any gas it may find.

Although Walter Zitlau, president of SDG&E is "sure" energy sources will be found through subsidized exploration, and that these discoveries will lead to better energy generation, there are many who feel that rate payers are subsidizing great risks and should reap the profits. Councilman Floyd Morrow raised the idea of public ownership in 1970. Consumer activists see no end to this growth-oriented rip-off until gas and electric utilities are publicized. Already, we have public water and sewer systems. Urging by organizations such as the Energy Coalition has led Zitlau to state that these proposals for public ownership "was nothing more than an unabashed attack upon the very fabric of our American socio-economic political structure."

With that statement, it seems clear the stage has been set. This is an attack on the socio-economic political structure, but it is not unabashed. Public control is a right which all ratepayers should be entitled to. It is our money that buys services, and the first priority of a utility operation should be the satisfactory service of its consumers. SDG&E does not do this. When rate increases are denied to them, they lash out like an angry child. Instead of considering viable alternatives, by laying off 300 workers and closing business offices. They hope to scare consumers into giving up the fight against rate increases. This corporation terrorism will not keep consumers under control. For the Energy Coalition, and utilities consumers, the struggle has just begun. They were able to stall SDG&E's first increase proposal through what a PUC staffer called

"one of the best presentations she had ever seen by a consumer group. But this is not the end of the debate, for as long as SDG&E continues to whine to the PUC, we must be ready to counter-act them. Their Needs are not ours! Certainly the people of San Diego are stronger than the handful who control SDG&E. We must use this strength to gain control of our own utilities - we must control our own utilities, or we are no more than flunkies."

Senate Bill 1 Would:

- Allow wiretaps of any political leader
- Allow police to break up political demonstrations
- Allow prosecution of persons who expose corruption
- Allow government to prosecute news media for publishing classified material
- Allow prosecution of those who plan political demonstrations
- Allow government to arrest you if your demonstration "annoys" someone

Demonstrations: Virtually every kind of peace, civil rights or other protest action would be in jeopardy with severe penalties based upon a series of infringements on the right of assembly. This includes a ban on the right to demonstrate near any place officials declare to be the "temporary residence" of the President. It would be illegal to engage in any demonstration that would "harm, EMBARRASS or ANNOY" another person. Under SB1 federal officers could halt political demonstrations, because certainly any political demonstration annoys someone and, besides, it may "impede pedestrian traffic" or even be "tumultuous" in nature. Demonstrations in and around courts would be stopped. It would become a federal crime to demonstrate within 65 yards of a federal court building or make "noise" in order to disrupt a courtroom.

Leading a Riot: "Movement of a person across a state line" in the planning or execution of a riot would draw a three year term and/or a $100,000 fine. Under the definition of SB1 a "riot" could involve as few as 10 people whose conduct "creates a grave danger of imminently causing" damage to property. This extends federal authority down to bar brawls. The most startling new addition to the federal riot laws involves the INTENT of the persons involved. Use of the mails and interstate travel with the intent of rioting is currently prohibited. With SB1 that has been expanded to include use of mails to promote a peaceful demonstration that somehow became "tumultuous."

Sedition: A 1957 Supreme Court decision (Yates vs. U.S.) rendered inoperative the 1940 Smith Act. SB1 simply redrafts the Smith Act and provides for 15 years imprisonment and/or up to a $100,000 fine for allegedly inciting "other persons to engage in imminent lawless conduct that would facilitate" the destruction of any state government. Also, there is a seven year term and a $100,000 fine for being a member of a group that you know has such a purpose.

Entrapment: Convictions would be allowed even though the accused was induced by a police agent or extra-judicial pressure to commit the crime. SB1 shifts the burden to the accused to prove that he was "not predisposed" and was subject to "unlawful entrapment."

Sabotage: SB1 has tacked on an all-encompassing definition to the present sabotage laws. If a person engages in activity that "damages, tampers with," "almost any property or facility" "used in or particularly suited for national defense" or service that is or might be used in the national defense, with intent to "interfere with or obstruct the ability of the U.S. or an associate nation to prepare for or engage in war or defense activities," he is subject to the death penalty or life imprisonment in some cases, or up to 30 years and a $100,000 fine in other cases. The wording of the section on sabotage obviously places every public demonstration, regardless of how orderly or peaceful, within the realm of the law.

Insanity: Under SB1 the law governing insanity takes a major step backward. Insanity as a defense would be allowed ONLY if the insanity caused a lack of "the state of mind required as an element of the offense charged. Mental disease or defect does not otherwise constitute a defense." To rule out such a defense is to ignore the relevance to guilt of moral responsibility and the power to choose.

Obscenity: Recent Supreme Court rulings would become statutory law and thus thrust federal enforcement into minor local offenses. It rules out as a defense that the material in question might be lawfully produced and distributed under the applicable state and local laws.

Editor's Note: Special research and material was supplied through Frank Wilkinson, director of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation, and Norval Morris, Dean of the University of Chicago Law School.

COME TO THE SPECIAL ACADEMIC SENATE MEETING TO DISCUSS CIA INVOLVEMENT AT UCSD TUESDAY 11-11-75 HSS 2250 3:30

Illegal Evidence: Here, SB1 incorporates provisions that would make "voluntary" confessions admissible even if the confession was given after secret police questioning, without an attorney present, or the other guarantees outlined in the Supreme Court ruling in the Miranda case. Also, SB1 would allow all eyewitness testimony to stand, regardless of prior police irregularities in suggesting identification.

To catalogue all the problems and conflicts within Senate Bill 1 would take as much space as the 735-page bill itself. An excellent summation was presented to Congress by Brown Commission Director Louis B. Schwartz. "SB1 expresses the view that the crime problem can be solved by extending government's power over individuals. This extension can take the form of wiretapping and other secret surveillance, of giving broad discretion to officials in decisions about punishment, of authorizing exceptionally severe sentences, or of restricting access to critical information about government operations. The other school of thought, represented by the Brown Commission, is skeptical about the gains in law enforcement that can be expected from such measures, and more concerned about impairing the quality of civic life by needless restraints on liberty."

Congress Considering Police State

by G. Guy Gibson

Congress is considering the most repressive legislative proposal in its history. On January 15, 1975 a 735-page revision of the U.S. Criminal Code was introduced in the U.S. Senate. Senate Bill 1 (SB1) would constitute an unparalleled disaster for the system of individual rights in the United States.

The length of the bill, its lack of intense exposure in the mass media, and its support by a curious mix of liberal and conservative senators have sustained the possibility that our fundamental freedoms and democratic way of life will be significantly and permanently altered with little chance for debate.

History of Pending Repression

How we arrived at the dangerous juncture of SB1 will illustrate the encroaching nature of "police state" by legislation. The U.S. Criminal Code, last revised in 1909, is a hodge-podge of conflicts, contradictions and outdated law. Legal scholars and jail house lawyers alike have long recognized the need for major revisions.

President Johnson appointed a National Commission on Reform of Criminal Laws in 1966. The bipartisan Commission had 12 members: three federal judges, three senators, three representatives and three members at large. Chairperson was former California Governor Pat Brown. The Brown Commission had a 14 member criminal law advisory committee, headed by Texan Tom. C. Clark.

The Brown Commission labored for over five years and produced a comprehensive study draft with majority approval. Interestingly, the three senate members were constantly in the minority.

Minority Report Shaped SB1

For some undefined reasons the three senators—Sam Ervin, John McClellan and Roman Hruska—turned against the majority of the Brown Commission and used their leadership of the Senate Subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Procedures to introduce their dissenting views as SB1 on January 4, 1973. The Brown Commission report lay in 'oblivion on President Nixon's desk. Thus, in a bizarre twisting of democratic principles, a minority report was introduced as the proposed revision of the U.S. Criminal Code.

But the greatest law and order duelist of all time, Richard Nixon, wasn't about to accept either proposed revision. He put two of his Attorney Generals to work to rewrite the Brown Commission's final report. In March of 1973 the task was accomplished and the Senate got the administration's Criminal Code Reform Act of 1973.

Director of the Brown Commission, Louis B. Schwartz, said, "The Nixon program contradicts in every respect... the recommendations of the National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Laws... The President has taken a position far to the right of the Senate Subcommittee's proposal... widely regarded as 'very tough'... a program of primitive vengefulness."

Consolidation hearings were held by Senators Hruska and McClellan. Thousands of pages of testimony were heard during the hearings that ended in August, 1974. But Watergate and the impeachment hearings were grabbing headlines daily and the press, unable to focus on multiple issues for a sustained period of time, all but ignored the alarming aspects of the Code revision.

The consolidation of the Nixon Administration proposals with the SB1 written by Irvin, McClellan and Hruska was completed under President Ford's Administration. The merger of the two bastardized versions of the original Brown Commission report is what stands today as SB1. A comparison of the rhetoric used by Presidents Nixon and Ford in introducing their respective bills is pertinent.

Nixon: There are those who say that law and order are just code words for repression and bigotry. This is dangerous nonsense. Law and order are code words for goodness and decency... the only way to attack crime in America is the way crime attacks our people—without pity.

Ford: I do not talk about law and order... I turn to the Constitutional guarantee of domestic tranquility. For several years, the federal government has engaged in a massive effort to reform the federal criminal laws... This effort was recently introduced in Congress, with wide bipartisan support as SB1. I urge the Congress to pass this kind of comprehensive code reform... this is not vindictive punishment of the criminal

I call upon Congress to act swiftly...

The rationale of the two Presidents varies from the standpoint of civil liberties construction; both, however, are equally deceptive.

What's Repressive About SB1?

A preface to the charge of repression might come from a few leading newspapers who have awakened from years of lethargy concerning the Code revision to sound the alarm.

"Senate Bill 1 is a dangerous piece of legislation... it is about as blatant an attempt to violate the First Amendment as yet has come along... The Senate has strayed a long way... It needs to be pulled up, and soon."

Memphis Commercial Appeal
—June 15, 1975

"Sleeper... SB1 quite laudably advanced as an effort to codify, revise and reform federal criminal law, actually goes far beyond that rather innocent description and proposes a number of far reaching changes that raise some very real threats to civil liberties... It's probably necessary to keep ringing the alarm bells loud and often... Senator Bayh says he signed on so as to be in better tactical position to amend the measure—an explanation that for credibility has to rank with Nelson Rockefeller's statement that he didn't oppose the Vietnam War all those years for fear of hurting New York State's chance for federal financial aid."

Wall Street Journal, Allan Otten
—June 5, 1975

"A grave danger to freedom of the press... The United States has no need for a law that would help officials conceal their mistakes far more often than it would hide anything from a foreign enemy."

New York Times
—May 6, 1975

"Not since the Alien and Sedition Act has a more sweeping assault been mounted in this country against democratic self-government... The first target is the First Amendment."

Los Angeles Times
—May 18, 1975

"Some are willing to sell their birthright for a police state. A bill now before the U.S. Senate is a sign that that kind of a disease did not disappear with the departure of Richard Nixon from the White House."

Atlanta Journal
—February 25, 1975

"Lest we sound like a frenzied Paul Revere wearing a press hat, let us put this bill in its best perspective... There is a chronic vagueness throughout... An executive branch, given the formidable powers of SB1 might turn such powers against Congress as well as against the media and the people."

Chicago Tribune
—June 1, 1975

"Whatever the merits of the overall code revision... it would practically repeal the First Amendment."

CBS News, Dallas Townsend
—June 1, 1975

Police State Features of SB1

Marijuana: No matter how small the amount for personal use, the first conviction would get you 30 days imprisonment and/or a 10 thousand dollar fine. Second conviction would carry a six-month term and/or 10 thousand dollar fine.

Sex: It would become a federal crime to solicit a sex act, to engage in any form of prostitution or pander. But, prostitution out of a private residence, by a single person, would be exempt.

Wiretapping: Reaffirms the 1968 law, including the ambiguous Presidential authority to wiretap domestic activities where a "danger to the structure" of the government is involved.

SB1 expands the areas where wiretapping is permitted as part of the investigatory processes.

Wiretap authority is given to uncover who is leaking "classified information" or "national defense information" to the news media or anyone else. It doesn't matter whether or not the "information" is harmless. Anything can be classified by the Executive Branch. Also, the government can wiretap without a court order if it believes "an emergency situation exists."

Secrecy: First Amendment freedoms would be supplanted by government secrecy and the democratic decision making outlined by the Constitution would be reversed. SB1 says penalties, from up to three years and $100,000 fines to death, would be imposed for revealing "national defense information." Fifteen-thousand employees in 47 executive departments have authority to classify documents. Over one billion documents are currently classified. SB1 would codify an official secrets act with a very vague description of "classified information" and "national defense information." Life imprisonment or death could be given as a sentence "in time of war or during a national defense emergency" for collecting or communicating "national defense information" with the knowledge that it "MAY be used to the prejudice of the safety or INTEREST of the United States, or to the advantage of a foreign power." This would seem to mean that the exposure of government corruption by a government employee or news reporter could be cited as a violation. Communicating "national defense information" to a person "whom he knows is not authorized to receive it" would subject a defendant to 15 years in prison and a $100,000 fine. Both Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo would fall into this category.

Another interesting addition under SB1 is called "Mishandling National Defense Information." Here, you could get seven years in prison and a fine up to $100,000 if you "receive national defense information" and "fail to deliver it promptly" to a federal agent. This would have allowed prosecution of both the New York Times and Beacon Press for possession of the Pentagon Papers.

The final and ultimate suppression of information would be handled by Section 1124 of SB1: seven years and up to a $100,000 fine for passing "classified information" to a person who is not authorized to receive it." This notion in particular and the provision for secrecy in general would have prevented the following stories from being told: Lockheed cost overruns, Cambodian bombing, SALT talks, American "policy" in India-Pakistan war, Pentagon Papers, Ellsberg psychiatrist breakin, CIA domestic spying, CIA opening mail, CIA assassination attempts, FBI mishandling of Oswald note to FBI before Kennedy murder, Glomar sub incident, Korean Nuclear Weapons Security story revealed by Iconoclast, books about the CIA by Agee and Marchetti, etc.

Death Penalty: SB1 would provide mandatory executions for certain crimes under specific conditions. This would circumvent the 1972 Supreme Court decision which held that capitol punishment was cruel and unusual punishment because it had been "so wantonly and so freakishly imposed (Furman vs. Georgia).
