

All day symposium "Congress and the American Constitutional System"

November 5, 1980

An all-day symposium on the theme "Congress and the American Constitutional System" has been scheduled for Monday, November 10, on the UC San Diego campus. It is open, free of charge, to the public.

The conference will feature speakers from leading universities and government. Lecturers and panels will "provide both historical and contemporary perspectives on Congress, its place in the constitutional order, and its future in the American system," according to conference co-chairman Dr. Harry N. Scheiber, professor of history at UC San Diego, Designated as this year's annual Earl Warren Memorial Symposium, honoring the late Chief Justice, the conference is co-sponsored by UC San Diego's Warren College and by Project '87, a scholarly agency that is funding fellowships and conferences to mark the U.S. Constitutional Bicentennial (1787-1987).

"We are especially pleased that UC San Diego has been named to host this, the first Project '87 conference on the West Coast following several held in eastern cities," Dr. Lea Rudee, provost of Warren College, said.

"It will be a major event for San Diego as well as a national gathering of scholars," Rudee said, "as members of the general public and many UC San Diego students and faculty will join with invited students and teachers from more than 20 area high schools."

UC San Diego Chancellor Richard Atkinson, Rudee, and Paul L. Murphy, professor of history at the University of Minnesota and a member of the governing board of Project '87, will represent the sponsoring institutions on the program.

Dr. Samuel H. Kernell, associate professor of political science at UC San Diego, is co-chairman of the symposium with Scheiber. The symposium schedule calls for lectures and panels at four time slots through the day, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Detailed information is available from the Warren College Provost's Office, 452-4350.
