

Establishment of the UCSD Board of Overseers and appointment of 39 San Diego citizens as charter members

December 6, 1973

The establishment of the University of California, San Diego Board of Overseers to "advise and assist in the university's continuing development" and the appointment of 39 San Diego area citizens as charter members have been announced by Dr. William D. McElroy, UCSD chancellor.

According to McElroy, the board will be asked to give independent advice on issues of its own choice as well as on those presented by the chancellor including the annual operating budget, capital projects and various policy issues of importance to both the campus and the community.

Herbert Kunzel, former president of Solar and currently president and chairman of the executive committee of the Westgate-California Corporation, who was active in the formation of the board, will serve as chairman. Board members will serve initially for two years. In addition to the appointed members, six ex-officio members representing campus service groups, the faculty, the administration and the student body will be added giving the board a working membership of 45.

"UC San Diego is honored and pleased that Herb Kunzel and such a distinguished group of San Diegans have agreed to render us their advice and counsel on our conduct of the university's planned programs and our resolution of its problems," McElroy said. "Each member is of stature in his or her own profession, as well as known for service to the community. We will do our utmost to justify their interest and support."

The ex-officio members of the board include McElroy, Dr. Clifford Grobstein, UCSD vice chancellor for university relations; Dr. Melford E. Spiro, professor of anthropology and a member of the UCSD faculty since 1968, and Miss Stephanie A. Harris, a Muir College sophomore and chairperson of the Undergraduate Student Council.
