Kiki Lowrey

As UCSD moves into the 1990's it is a growing and changing place. Unfortunately, students seem to be getting lost in the shuffle. As an RCC member I will work to gain student input into important issues. I also feel that Revelle students should be well informed of campus changes so that situations like parking lot destruction and Urey Hall construction don't come as a surprise. I also feel Revelle College needs to strive to support a diverse community through funding for a wide variety of activities, seminars, etc.

William Mohler
Junior

First, I feel more should be done to open communications between students, faculty, and staff. The best way RC could do this is by establishing easy methods to increase student input. This may include petitions, mail, meetings, and discussions. Students at Revelle should have more opportunities to meet faculty and establish methods by which students can advance their academic career. Since students are molded by their college experiences, more programming and events should be planned. This can best be done by establishing methods to allow more interested students propose and plan events without necessarily joining a committee.

Attention Revelle Leaders:

The Student Committee for Cultural Appreciation cordially invites you to attend Revelle College's first annual Racial Awareness Retreat. The retreat will be held on April 21, 1990, from 9:00am - 5:00pm in the Price Center Cove Room.

As the population at Revelle College becomes more diverse, Revelle leaders need to keep abreast with the demands of a changing population. Revelle leaders are, therefore, strongly encouraged to attend. The Facilitator will be Lillian Roybal Rose, who has received national coverage for her work in promoting cross-cultural communication.

If you are interested in attending this free workshop on the 21st, please RSVP at the Revelle Dean's Office by Friday, April 13. Space is limited so reservations are on a first come first served basis.

A Birthday Party for Roger Revelle

Despite Roger Revelle's recent surgery and current recovery status, the students, faculty and staff at the college of his namesake recognized and celebrated his 82nd birthday.

The party on the plaza included plenty of cake, a card to sign, the UCSD Pep Band and a performance by the UCSD Cheerleaders.

Mrs. Revelle was present at the party in lieu of Dr. Revelle who was still in the hospital. Their daughter accompanied her. She spoke to the students on his behalf and greeted many of them individually.

Many students expressed their deep concern for his health and their hopes of a speedy recovery. Currently, Dr. Revelle is resting at home, making a few public appearances as his health allows.

O.L.'s Busy Training for Summer Work

By Lisa Deines

Spring is in the air, and with it comes love, birds, and...orientation. Orientation? Already? Yes, sir, that's right. Orientation may be in summer for the incoming freshpersons, but for the Orientation Leaders it starts in spring. This year's Orientation Leader Team consists of Patrick Burke, Toni Cacciatore, Michael Connor, Brad Fields, Holly Foust, Cynthia Freeland, Lara Hustana, Tracy Johnson, Sunny Lee, Nicole Mason, Matt Newsome, Douglas Olken, Linda Reynolds, Cyndi Shadoan, Mathew Pizza, Rosalind Young, and Lisa Willet.

We all know what orientation is because we've been through it. But do you also remember your O.L.? They're always friendly, energetic, and well-informed, and this year's team is no exception. Orientation is scheduled for June 22-25, 27-30, and September 18 and 19, but the O.L.s meet now every Thursday from 5-7p.m. to train and to do group bonding. Some of their training includes brainstorming for icebreakers, situation exercises, and academic advising skills. They are also deciding on a theme to make orientation interesting.

But not all of their time together is task oriented. The O.L.s are also spending a lot of time getting to know one another so that they work together as a cohesive team. Toni Cacciatore stated, "Everyone is really comfortable with each other." Rosalind Young agrees. Her favorite meeting was their second gathering in which everyone started talking and then slowly began to really open up to each other. Speaking with other O.L.s the high energy level is evident. As one of them said, "Everyone's enthusiastic." The O.L.s are not alone, however. Assistant Dean Anthony Jemison and last years O.L.s, including Armin

Phone-a-thon Held

By Rosalind Young

Convincing prospective students to choose UCSD or Revelle College is not always an easy task. However, Revelle students and staff are trying to do whatever they can to help prospective students make the most informed choice.

On Wednesday, April 4, the Student Affirmative Action Committee (SAAC) and Revelle College conducted a phone-a-thon to high school students who have been accepted at Revelle. Student to student contact was the goal of this activity - and personal contact often pays off.

The SAAC aimed to reach 261 students, concentrating on the African-American, Mexican-American, and American Indian students. Some were not home, others were in the shower or doing homework, but those contacted were very willing to talk to enrolled students. The phoners had a survey that they went through with the prospective students and also gave them a chance to ask any questions about dorm life, student involvement, almost anything.

Arvin Saluta converses with a prospective student.

Basically, the program goal is to build a good working relationship between the Student Outreach and Recruitment (SOAR), and the colleges. Its major benefit, however, is drawing semi-interested high school students to the different colleges at UCSD. Most newcomers to the University system are full of questions that they don't feel comfortable asking administrators or school officials. Personal contact with another student who has been in a

Ethnic Studies Requirement Draws Closer for Future Revelle Students

By Helke Farin

Education changes to meet the needs of a growing, ethnically enriched society. Because of the need to deal more comfortably with different cultures, the Revelle College Executive Committee has proposed an Ethnic Studies requirement. In light of the increasing diversity of the population of America, or more specifically California, Revelle's officials, along with many students, show a renewed interest and greater concern for the level of interaction between the various cultural groups in American society.

During the recent Ethnic Studies Forum, a discussion of the incorporation of ethnic courses into Revelle's curriculum was launched by a distinguished panel consisting of Dr. Bond, Revelle's Provost, Anthony Jemison, Revelle's Assistant Dean, Dr. Carmel Myers, the Assistant Vice Chancellor, Tracy Johnson, the chair for Revelle's Student Committee for Cultural Appreciation, and Priya Jayachandran, a member of the Revelle College Council (RCC). If adopted, the American Cultures course would replace one of the three sequential social science classes already required.

The need to sensitize students to other ethnic groups stems from the enormous cultural mixture present in the world and at UCSD. According to Dr. Bond, "There are tremendous contributions of other societies that are being ignored." In order to transform cultural ignorance into appreciation, the Revelle Faculty recommends that each student seriously consider the idea of ethnic studies courses, which would be comparative, theoretical, and both historical and contemporary in nature. An American Cultures requirement would hopefully promote cultural awareness. As Tracy Johnson states, "I have seen it become a building issue."

In 1988 the Smelser Committee suggested that "campuses should develop curricular changes and other policies that enhance the international, multicultural, and global learning experiences of students." Because of the desire to keep up with today's rapidly changing society, Revelle College wants to provide its students with a foundation in the necessary comprehension and cooperation present in a functioning multicultural society. As Dr. Bond states, "How we can make the melting pot work better is one of the main issues."

A wide range of courses will be offered to the

New Intern Positions

By Toni Cacciatore

Changes are being discussed regarding next year's Dean's Interns at Revelle. Until the upcoming year, the Dean's office has hired one student to act as Editor-in-Chief of Revellations, and one three students to chair the Commuter Advisory Board (CAB), Noon Programming Board (NPB), and the Faculty-Student Programming Board (FSPB), respectively.

Under the new plans, there would be four interns, but their responsibilities would change to varying degrees.

The Revellations editor would be in charge of publishing the college newsletter just as he/she is now. In addition to this, all other publications from Revelle College would have to go by the Publications Intern and the committee which will possibly be appointed instead of being made up of volunteers.

The position of CAB Intern will be, for the most part, unchanged. This intern will focus more on involving first year students who are commuting involved with campus programs, activities and student government. This intern will also implement the Commuter-Resident match initiated during Orientation.

The third intern would be the General Student Programs intern. This is not so much a new position as it is a combination of our present FSPB and NPB internships. This student would act as advisor to FSPB, NPB and RPB (Revelle Programming Board), and would monitor the budgets of these committees.

The final intern position being considered is that of a Cultural Awareness Intern. This intern would work with the Student Committee for Cultural Awareness (SCCA) and with Clare Hansen, who is the Language House Director and Cultural Program Coordinator, to raise the awareness of Revelle students.

This change in the Dean's Intern positions will allow the interns to be able to monitor actions of the committees that serve with them rather than being the one responsible for each activity. In doing this, the Dean's staff is hoping to promote more interaction between the committees as well as a greater generation of ideas among members in each committee.

Also being considered is the hiring of a student as a student administrative assistant to advise and work directly with the interns.

The goal of the new plan is to allow the student interns to not only work more closely with the committees they advise, but to work more closely with the administration and to become "adjunct members of the Dean's Office staff," according to Dean Eric Mort. The interns would not necessarily be the chair of the committee, but advise it and be a liaison between the students and the administration.

Kaplan, New RCC Appointee

By Karen Wilson

There is a new addition to the Revelle College Council: Dave Kaplan. Council members are normally elected, but Dave was appointed because an opening became available in the middle of the year. He is a political science major, perhaps a double major in Biochemistry, and is in his second year at UCSD. Dave humorously describes himself as a "power-hungry megalomaniac" bent on world domination, he believes that the Revelle College Council is the first step.

Dave explains that as a councilmember, he will be involved in the allocation of funds to Revelle committees, appointments of members to these committees, and advising the entire campus about Revelle concerns. He says that the Council is very powerful behind the scenes because of the large amount of money that the Council controls, but he is "still trying to figure out" all of the things that go on in the Council.

A major concern of the Council at this time is the loss of student parking at Revelle because of construction. Dave favors equitable losses of parking among faculty and students. That is, students should not be the only ones to lose spaces. If the losses are shared equally, no one group will have to suffer a severe loss alone. He also favors student only parking spots during the Urey Hall construction to insure that the few remaining spaces will not be filled by faculty.

Dave is also concerned about the effects that this construction could have on student life at Revelle. He hopes that the Council could become more influential about campus matters at UCSD. For example, although the Urey Hall construction is located at Revelle and impacts Revelle students, the RCC and other Revelle groups were not given the change to voice an opinion on the matter. The council could work with the university in a more active way to see that life at Revelle is not adversely affected by university decisions. Dave plans to work hard this quarter. He is still new in the position but he is taking an active part in the council and has many good ideas. He is very open to comments, criticisms, or concerns of the Revelle students he represents, but you have to get to him this quarter, he will "be partying in Israel" next year.

REVELLE COLLEGE

Traditions of Excellence...

... Changing Traditions

Students Participate in Phone-a-thon

Scholar students accepted to Revelle for this fall were contacted during a phone-a-thon in February. Part of Revelle College's special program for scholar students includes an Honors Seminar every quarter as well as special trips. Revelle Provost, Dr. Thomas Bond has welcomed these scholar students to drop by the Provost Office between 3:30 - 4:30 daily to chat with him.

The SOAR office representative Patricia C. Oosterveen and Mary Bedia (a representative from Revelle Financial Aid) helped to train the student phoners. Revelle Students Julissa Bravo, Adrienne Brown, Brian Hopper, Tracy Johnson, Sunny Lee, Arvin Saluta and Rosalind Young manned the phones throughout the evening. Nancy Groves from Revelle's Academic Advising and Assistant Dean Anthony Jemison answered questions and helped to coordinate the event.

Of those contacted, most students frequently voiced their concerns regarding the college structure, the quarter system, financial aid, scholarships, choosing major and dorm life. Receiving a phone call from another student was a thrill for most of them.

The SOAR office will continue this phone-a-thon to follow-up on students that they were unable to reach during the scheduled times of the event. More specific questions will be followed through with the admissions agreements.

students if the Ethnic Studies requirement is eventually implemented into Revelle's class listing. Some possible themes are immigration experiences or focuses on specific ethnic groups. Each course will attempt to inform students about the different cultures which play an increasingly more prominent role in the world's affairs.

The Ethnic Studies requirement for now is just a proposal. In order to officially instate the course requirement into Revelle's curriculum, the Revelle Faculty and the Academic Senate must pass the proposal. If the requirement receives the necessary vote during this academic year, the proposal will go into effect in 1991 for incoming first-year students and 1994 for transfer students. The ethnic studies courses will not completely prepare each Revelle student for the cultural diversity in today's world, but as Anthony Jemison stated, "Even though this is a beginning, it is going to be a good beginning."

In hopes of broadening the knowledge, heightening the compassion, and strengthening the bond between students at Revelle College and the vivid array of the world's cultures, the Revelle Faculty encourages the incorporation of the Ethnic Studies requirement into Revelle's educational framework.
