ENTURIES before the beginning of Medical Science, natural mineral springs were eagerly searched for by mankind because of their wonderful curative powers. People flocked to these springs to drink and to bathe in their healing waters. Thruout the ages certain springs were found to be more beneficial than others and people came from all parts of the world to renew their health and strength by these magic waters.

It has now been definitely proven that the healing agent in these natural waters is Radium and the more strongly activated, the higher their medicinal value. Thousands of sufferers visit the springs every year in their search for health and renewed energy, just as thousands journeyed from far places back in the dim ages before there were any doctors or any knowledge of medicines.
