SECTION 14: OFFSIDE

When offside 1. A player is offside except when he is in his own in-goal if the ball touches, is touched, held or kicked, by one of his own team behind him.

Out of Play 2. An offside player shall not take any part in the game or attempt in any way to influence the course of the game. He shall not encroach within ten metres of an opponent who is Retire ten metres waiting for the ball and shall immediately retire ten metres from an opponent who first secures possession of the ball.

Placed onside 3. An offside player, is placed onside if:

(a) an opponent moves ten metres or more with the ball.

(b) an opponent touches the ball without retaining it.

(c) one of team in possession of the ball runs in front of him.

(d) one of his own team kicks or knocks the ball forward and takes up a position in front of him in the field-of-play.

(e) if he retires behind the point where the ball was last touched by one of his own team.

NOTES

Catcher claiming 1. A player who catches the ball near an offside player must not go out of his way to make interference in play by the offside player unavoidable. He should proceed with normal play and rely on the referee to penalise the offside player if the latter interferes with play. If the catcher deliberately and unnecessarily runs into the offside player then play should proceed.

Accidental offside Where the referee is satisfied that interference with play by an offside player is accidental he should order a scrum.

Interfering with catcher 2. Any offside player who remains within five metres of an opponent who is set to catch a kick up field by an opposing player shall be deemed to be interfering with or attempting to interfere with the catcher and shall be penalised.

"out of play" as 3. Players who are out of play at a play-the-ball (Section 11), opposed to "offside" a scrum (Section 12), a kick-off or drop-out (Section 8) a penalty kick (Section 13) are not put "onside" in the manner described in para 3 above. (See appropriate sections).

Examples of offside player retrieving ball 3. (e) Player A kicks the ball and opponent B attempts to catch it. He drops the ball which rolls behind him. His colleague C who was originally in front of him drops back to retrieve the ball. When he gets to it he is behind the point at which it was played by B.

Indicated by the line XY. and is not offside.

Player A kicks the ball and opponent B fails to catch it, the ball bouncing forward off his hands. Player C is offside if he plays the ball unless B advances in front of the ball before C reaches it, in which case a scrum would be ordered for a knock-on.

Rank doesn't
with Brad...

BRAD FITTLER rates marking Mal Meninga in State of Origin an easy task compared to his latest challenge at Penrith.

Taking on a new image is proving a tough test for the usually unflappable "Freddie".

Coach and mentor Phil Gould wants him to stop being Brad Fittler the champion bloke, and start being Brad Fittler the elite champion.

The Panthers are at the bottom of the competition ladder and Gould is looking to Fittler to help the club through their rebuilding phase by setting the standard.

"A lot of blokes came to Penrith to play with Brandy (Greg Alexander) and me and we haven't been playing the role we should have been," explained Fittler.

"Gus' wants me to detach myself more." It was the way things were at Penrith when Fittler first burst onto the scene as a precociously talented schoolboy back in 1989, and one of the reasons the club developed into the force which contested back-to-back grand finals at the beginning of this decade.

"Penrith is missing players like Royce Simmons, Chris Mortimer and Peter Kelly," says Fittler.

"I used to turn up to training and only talk to a few blokes who I knew. I wouldn't have a beer or a joke with blokes like 'Simmo' and that - they wouldn't give you the time of day."

"It seemed real arrogant, but I realise now it was a good thing."

"You'd strive high to get into their class and they only let you in when they were sure you were good enough."

It's a very different set-up at the club now. A massive clean-out at the end of a drama-filled 1992 and an alarmingly-high injury toll has resulted in an overwhelming turnover of players in the first grade side.

And Fittler, by his own admission, was uncertain what role he should play. Adding to his confusion was the fact that, with so many new faces around, the place didn't feel much like home.

"It was like being at a new club," he said. "All the blokes who came from Parramatta were more comfortable than us."

"You saw blokes, like Col Van der Voort, who have been at the club for years walking around the place looking lost because they didn't know anyone. It was strange - we felt more out of it than the new fellows."

As is normally the case with Fittler, it didn't take long for him to get on with his new chums. But in hindsight he reckons doing what comes naturally for him wasn't in the best interest of the club.

"It's never been happier at Penrith but it's one of the reasons we're losing," he said. "Blokes in the under-21s feel as much like first graders as we do and that's wrong. Everyone seems to be worried about being mates - footy seems to be the last thing on people's minds."

Showing his teeth and snarling, though, is a new trick this "old" bluey is having trouble learning, despite the fact he knows Penrith would be better off if he did.

"I'm too busy being everyone's mate to even think about being a role model."

"I don't know if they expect me to walk around the place giving people advice or what Gus told me to be arrogant. I'd like to - I tried to - but it only lasted for a training session. It's too hard ... it's just not me."

"There are too many good bloke ad we need a cranky head. I like the other atmosphere - getting everyone together for a beer ... I'm good at that."

If not being able to play the "bastard" is Freddie's only real inadequacy as a footballer, then it's not surprising he currently has the world at his feet.

While everything has seemingly fallen into place for Fittler, his has been by no means a charmed run.

His enormous character shone through following the death of his close mate Ben Alexander nearly a year ago.

While time stood still for many of the Panthers, Fittler pushed on.

Typically, he played down the way he handled the situation and typically he defended those players who reacted differently to him.

"Blokes took it different ways. They didn't handle it worse than me ... just differently. From the public's point of view it seemed as though I did the right thing."

"No way was better. The only way to get on with life I thought was to play footy."

Fittler's iron-clad defence throughout the State of Origin series was fuelled by the same simple, yet so effective, philosophy. "They kept running at me ... you've gotta tackle 'em I suppose."

Big Jack Gibson, the coach who blooded Fittler in State of Origin and dubbed him "Freddie", would have proudly claimed that response as one of his own.

It was the improvement in Fittler's defence this year which prompted Peter Sterling to declare he had joined the game's most elite players.

Freddie is conscious of the fact he is reaching his prime. With Meninga starting to wind down Fittler knows he can set up a long and fruitful stay at the top.

The Test series against New Zealand looms as a tremendous chance for Fittler to cement his place in the Australian side, well in advance of some of his challengers.

And, later in the year, he has the opportunity to set himself up at Penrith as well.

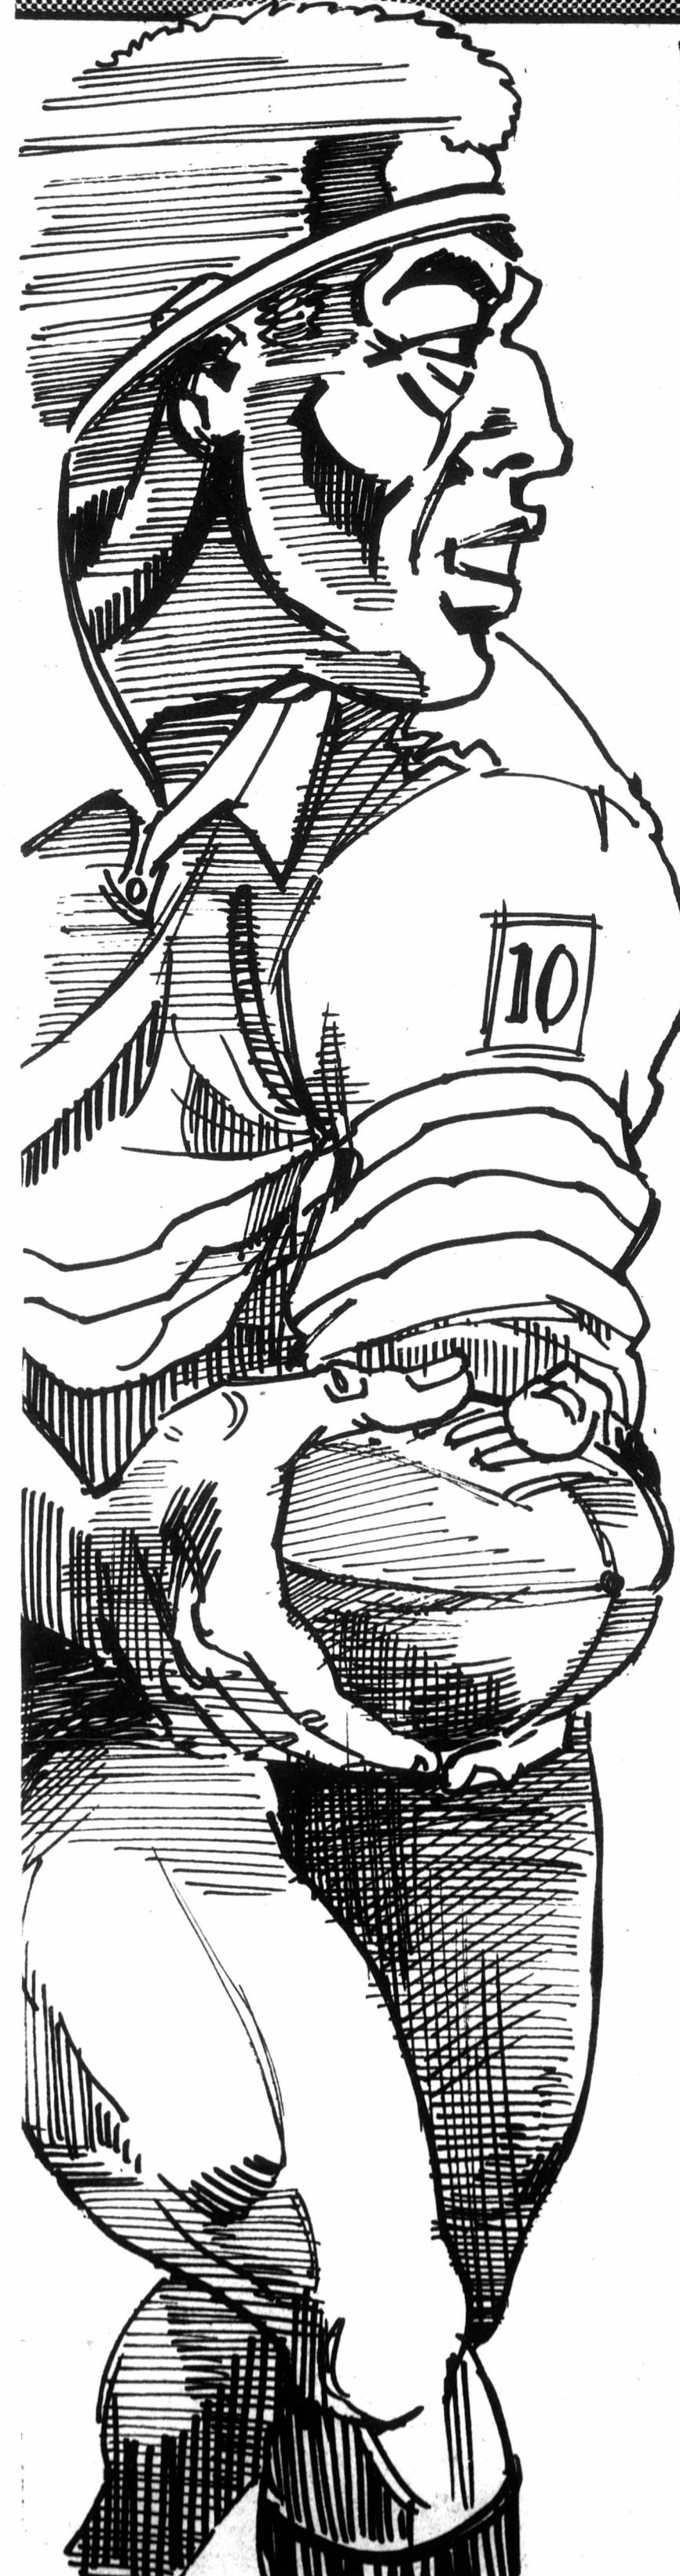

"I want to help Penrith out," said Fittler, referring to imminent contract talks.

"I can't see the point of changing clubs. I haven't seen many NSW or Australian players switch clubs successfully."

DEFEND

Rank doesn't sit easy with Brad . . .

BRAD FITTLER rates marking Mal Meninga in State of Origin an easy task compared to his latest challenge at Penrith.

Taking on a new image is proving a tough test for the usually unflappable "Freddie".

Coach and mentor Phil Gould wants him to stop being Brad Fittler the champion bloke, and start being Brad Fittler the elite champion.

The Panthers are at the bottom of the competition ladder and Gould is looking to Fittler to help the club through their rebuilding phase by setting the standard.

"A lot of blokes came to Penrith to play with Brandy (Greg Alexander) and me and we haven't been playing the role we should have been," explained Fittler.

"Gus' wants me to detach myself more." It was the way things were at Penrith when Fittler first burst onto the scene as a precociously talented schoolboy back in 1989, and one of the reasons the club developed into the force which contested back-to-back grand finals at the beginning of this decade.

"Penrith is missing players like Royce Simmons, Chris Mortimer and Peter Kelly," says Fittler.

"I used to turn up to training and only talk to a few blokes who I knew. I wouldn't have a beer or a joke with blokes like 'Simmo' and that - they wouldn't give you the time of day."

"It seemed real arrogant, but I realise now it was a good thing."

"You'd strive high to get into their class and they only let you in when they were sure you were good enough."

It's a very different set-up at the club now. A massive clean-out at the end of a drama-filled 1992 and an alarmingly-high injury toll has resulted in an overwhelming turnover of players in the first grade side.

And Fittler, by his own admission, was uncertain what role he should play.

Adding to his confusion was the fact that, with so many new faces around, the place didn't feel much like home.

"It was like being at a new club," he said. "All the blokes who came from Parramatta were more comfortable than us."

"You saw blokes, like Col Van der Voort, who have been at the club for years walking around the place looking lost because they didn't know anyone. It was strange - we felt more out of it than the new fellows."

As is normally the case with Fittler, it didn't take long for him to get on with his new chums. But in hindsight he reckons doing what comes naturally for him wasn't in the best interest of the club.

"It's never been happier at Penrith but it's one of the reasons we're losing," he said. "Blokes in the under-21s feel as much like first graders as we do and that's wrong. Everyone seems to be worried about being mates - footy seems to be the last thing on people's minds."

Showing his teeth and snarling, though, is a new trick this "old" bluey is having trouble learning, despite the fact he knows Penrith would be better off if he did.

"I'm too busy being everyone's mate to even think about being a role model."

"I don't know if they expect me to walk around the place giving people advice or what Gus told me to be arrogant. I'd like to - I tried to - but it only lasted for a training session. It's too hard ... it's just not me."

"There are too many good bloke ad we need a cranky head. I like the other atmosphere - getting everyone together for a beer ... I'm good at that."

If not being able to play the "bastard" is Freddie's only real inadequacy as a footballer, then it's not surprising he currently has the world at his feet.

While everything has seemingly fallen into place for Fittler, his has been by no means a charmed run.

His enormous character shone through following the death of his close mate Ben Alexander nearly a year ago.

While time stood still for many of the Panthers, Fittler pushed on.

Typically, he played down the way he handled the situation and typically he defended those players who reacted differently to him.

"Blokes took it different ways. They didn't handle it worse than me ... just differently. From the public's point of view it seemed as though I did the right thing."

...but it's all good fun

NORTHS' giant-crushing secret is out. Softball! That was how the Bears prepared for the 40-point romp over title-holders Brisbane in their last home game.

"The players have been at it since November and we realised it was important, particularly during the split rounds, to give them some variety and some sort of release," explained Norths operations manager and conditioner Martin Hulme.

It was also Hulme's idea for the Bears to spend an afternoon playing war games in the lead-up to last Friday's night clash against St George. Trading footballs for guns proved to be a big hit with the Bears.

"It was great fun and great for morale," said Peter Jackson, who led an army of players into battle against Mario "Gomer" Fenech's platoon.

Skirmish is simulated war where paint-balls replace bullets.

The pellets hurt but you always carry to fight another day.

The games revolve around defending and attacking flags and, according to Hulme, they are a good test of a group's ability to communicate and plan on the run.

"You certainly find out who your mates are," said five-eighth Greg "Red Dog" Florimo. Fenech and Hulme will readily concur.

There was no shortage of firing-squad volunteers when Fenech transgressed skirmish convention by opening fire in a no-shooting zone, while Hulme was a target all afternoon.

"I worked the boys really hard at training two days before and they took great delight in getting me back on the battlefield," said Hulme.

Les Kiss was on the spot to shoot Hulme in the back just as the conditioner was poised to pounce on a flag.
