A Christopher Aviles: Audre Lorde Intern for Liberation & Healing Community Art Project

The premise of this community art project is to showcase the artistic work and expression of queer and trans folks through a community art piece that everyone can contribute to. By centering the work of Fabián Chávez, specifically their piece Revolución, my hope is to create a community art piece that speaks to notions of an internal/personal revolution, and what that can look like for each one of us. I situate Revolución as a form of inspiration and challenge each one of us to think critically of ourselves and the way we are situated in the world around us.

In providing art supplies and the opportunity to channel one's artistic expression, my hope is to create a community art piece that showcases our individualized uniqueness and forms of self-expression, so that we can ultimately liberate and heal ourselves from limiting social confines.

My hope is that our art and individualized self-expression can provide answers to the following:

- How can we challenge particular institutions and structures of power that dictate and inform particular notions of how we view ourselves?
- And ultimately, how can we begin to further define/redefine our authentic and unapologetic selves?

Confronting Intimate Violence within Our Communities

Tues. Jan. 27th | 6-8p | LGBTRC

This program hopes to bring into conversation intimate violence within our communities, and how this violence is affected by our other identities, as well as other forms of violence such as state violence and institutional violence. This program is meant for people who have experienced intimate violence to come together and share in community. That being said there is no policing who comes in the space, and if you feel that this program is for you, then it is!

This is an open-house-style event. There will be arts and crafts, resources, educational documents, conversations, and food!

If you have any questions or concerns please e-mail rainbow@ucsd.edu.

I'm Not a Feminist but...

*Curious about feminism?
Not sure what it means, or if it's for you?*

Thinking Outside of the Norm

Radical Love

Thursday | Feb. 12 | 5-7pm | CCC Comunidad

What do you think of when you hear the word “love”? Let’s challenge the norm and talk about different kinds of love: familial, platonic, communal, and queer. Join us as we discuss these topics and learn about the most radical love of all... SELF LOVE. Make yourself a candy gram while sipping on some hot chocolate and eating some desserts.
