Assorted Vinyl May Be Closed

By LAURA PROCTOR
Staff Writer

The A.S. Council will vote on the proposal to discontinue the Assorted Vinyl enterprise at tomorrow night's council meeting. The record store had previously been scheduled to move to the new Price Center.

The council voted last week to postpone the measure, to give the store's managers a chance to gather information and prepare to appeal the proposal.

Although it has been losing money for several years, general manager Sharon Lai said the record store, located at the Student Center, fills a definite student need. She blames the store's poor financial history on "a lot of poor decisions [and] judgment" on the part of the past management.

Despite the projected cost of $54,000 to move into the Price Center, and the rent increase of over 100 percent to continue operating there, Lai said that Assorted Vinyl would eventually benefit from the new location.

"It's possible to turn the place around as long as we move to the Price Center," she said "Here we have no chance."

Lai dismissed the possibility of staying at the Student Center, calling the current location "a hole in the wall" and "a closet." She anticipates that business would improve in a location with more customer traffic, which could result in an increase in "impulse sales."

If Assorted Vinyl moves to the Price Center it would be located between the Copy Center and the new pub. There will also be ATM machines nearby, to facilitate impulse buying.

At the new location there will be "more people from off-campus," Lai said. "The Price Center is almost a mall. This," she said of the Student Center, "is nothing."

Assorted Vinyl has been open for approximately eight years, said A.S. Advisor Randy Woodard, but only made a profit for approximately the first two of those.

Since then, the student enterprise's financial situation has only worsened. In the school year of 1985-86, it had a net deficit just over $2,000. The losses have increased each year, with a deficit last year of $4,493.

For this year, the deficit after only one quarter was $4,112, almost equal to the losses for all three quarters last year. Lai says these figures are misleading, since

State Budget Causing Problems For UCs

By JILL COLLEY
Staff Writer

The proposed four percent state budget increase for the University of California announced Jan. 10 by Governor George Deukmejian, in conjunction with a 10 percent increase in student fees, has presented a fiscal challenge to UC administrators. The University had hoped for more funds through a 10 percent budget increase for the 1989-90 academic year.

Deukmejian's proposal provides a $2.053 billion for the University which, in a proposal by the Board of Regents in November, had requested a 10 percent state funding increase it considered necessary to maintain existing levels of operation and to provide for enrollment growth.

David P. Gardner, president of the Board of Regents, said that under the governor's proposal, the University will still be able to sustain operations, but "only by arranging a patchwork of one-time, extraordinary budgetary actions designed to get us through the next year."

Gardner further commented that the recently adopted Proposition 98 "will put the University's financial condition at risk and will make its projected enrollment growth unattainable."

Under Prop. 98, an initiative constitutional amendment and statute approved in last November's election, approximately 40 percent of the state's general funds will automatically be allocated to the public school system (kindergarten through 12th grades) as well as community colleges.

The remaining funds are then to be divided up among other state supported agencies. This includes the UC system, the California State University system, and numerous other agencies such as highway maintenance, prison funding, and welfare.

Another legislative factor that may affect UC enrollment growth is the Gann Limit, an initiative that controls and limits allocation of funds to state funded agencies.

"These two fiscal constraints will continue to jeopardize [the] UC's ability to educate all UC-eligible California students who wish to attend [the University]," Gardner said.

The governor's 1989 budget makes it clear that we will have to work toward a long term solution to this funding problem in order to maintain our quality in the face of increased student demand," he added.

Deukmejian has also proposed a 10 percent increase in student fees and an out-of-state tuition increase of 17 percent.

Fee increases, according to Vice President of the University of California Student Association (UCSA) Norman Tien, are usually anticipated each year due to inflation.

Deukmejian has proposed funding for about half of the UC

New UCSD Constitution Possible

Dimmesdale Still Pushing Constitutional Convention

By LAURA PROCTOR
Staff Writer

Despite his defeat in last week's A.S. meeting, President Maynard Dimmesdale intends to go ahead with his proposal for a constitutional convention.

Since the Wednesday meeting, Dimmesdale has been circulating petitions among the student body, hoping to obtain enough signatures to override the council's opposition to the proposal. Dimmesdale needs the signatures of 15 percent of the student body in order to proceed with the convention.

A constitutional convention would be the forum for revision of the current A.S. Constitution and would be open to attendance and active participation by any interested students.

Dimmesdale says this would be preferable to having the A.S. Council revise the constitution, because all interested students could have an equal voice in the shaping of the document. He hopes a new constitution will increase student representation in the council.

In accordance with current constitutional provisions, the council's president, in conjunction with a constitutional committee, would preside over the proposed convention.

Students, according to Dimmesdale, could still play an active role in the revising process and would have a voice in restructuring the A.S. government.

Such restructuring might include changes in the number and types of representatives who hold voting power in the council, Dimmesdale said.

Last week, 14 of the councilmembers voted against the measure, and only three voted in favor of it. Two abstained.

Of those in favor of the resolution, two were commissioners: Programming Commissioner Jonathan Judaken and Public Relations Commissioner Tom Rhee.

Molly McKay, Revelle's freshman senator, was the only senator supporting the measure.

Currently, the constitution allows only one revision per quarter. If the council revises the constitution to exclude that stipulation, it could then implement as many revisions as it feels are necessary.

Revision of the constitution requires that the council submit the amended document to the student body for approval through an election. Students could then either adopt the new constitution or opt to maintain the current one. In the event that several constitutional plans are proposed, the student

By RISA GECHTMAN

Feminist author and human rights activist Sonia Johnson spoke Friday night at Peterson Hall and addressed such issues as "the rejection of patriarchy and implementation of alternative feminist views."

In her lecture, entitled "Liberation: Coming Into Our Own," Johnson referred to a male-dominated society as a "patriarchy."

In characterizing patriarchy as "brainwashing," which teaches women to think that men are smarter and can do things better than women, Johnson cited statistics that riled her audience.

"Women are doing two-thirds of the world's work and only make one-tenth of the world's money, and own only one-hundredth of the world's property," she stated. "It doesn't have to be like this."

Feminism for Johnson is not about "issues." It is, according to Johnson, about an all-encompassing and different reality than we now know.

"It is a world view; a way of being in the world," she said.

Throughout the evening, she urged the women in the audience

UC Davis Student Dies While Running Near Campus

DAVIS — Michael Anthony, a 22-year-old UC Davis student and track athlete, died Dec. 10, on a training run on the west side of campus.

Anthony, a fifth-year senior at UCD, ran the 3,000-meter steeplechase for the UCD men's track team and also was a member of the UCD men's cross country team.

Anthony, who also enjoyed rock climbing and kayaking, was three and a half miles out on a run with his roommate and fellow teammate Jay Mulligan when he slowed down, stopped and said he didn't feel well, Mulligan said.

Anthony collapsed and Mulligan, an Emergency Medical Technician, performed cardiopulmonary resuscitation as passing motorists went to call an ambulance, Mulligan said.

Anthony was taken to Sutter-Davis Hospital at 3:50 p.m. and was pronounced dead at 4:31 p.m., hospital spokesperson Carol Spangler said.

Deputy Coroner Jim Burton said the cause of death is still pending, but was "no doubt cardiac-related."

Anthony was in good physical shape and this natural death is very unusual, Burton said.

Anthony graduated in 1984 from Northgate High School in Walnut Creek, California, where he ran track.

Anthony was buried in Walnut Creek on Dec. 16 at 7 p.m. in a UCD track uniform.

Suspect in Sexual Assault Case Arrested in UC Davis Incident

DAVIS — The suspect in a sexual assault and attempted robbery at the UC Davis Coffee House was arrested by Los Angeles Police on Dec. 13, the day after the incident occurred.

Mark Daniel McKibben of Woodland allegedly sexually assaulted a Coffee House employee at approximately 5:10 a.m. on Dec. 12 and attempted to rob her, said UCD Police Detective Sergeant Mike Corkery.

Corkery said the suspect apparently intended to commit both crimes when he confronted the victim, who was working alone in the Coffee House on an early-morning baking shift. He fled the scene afterward.

During finals week, the police department distributed fliers with rough details of the incident and a sketch of the suspect.

McKibben remains in the custody of LAPD, facing similar charges involving three women in the San Fernando Valley. He will return to Yolo County under police custody for hearings on the Coffee House incident after the matters in Los Angeles are concluded.

In Yolo County, McKibben faces charges of sexual assault, attempted robbery, burglary, assault with a deadly weapon, false imprisonment and being armed in the commission of a felony, Corkery said.

Confusion in UCSF Dorms — Robbed Over Winter Break

SAN FRANCISCO — Residents of El East in Aberdeen-Iverson Residence Hall at UCSF were surprised to return from Winter Break to discover that 21 rooms in the hall had been broken into.

The robber(s) entered through an exterior window which they pried open.

Andy Plumley, Resident Director, said, "... from that room they got in the hall and pried off ... door-knobs." All the rooms were discovered propped open except Room 115.

Plumley added that, "... everything was locked," over Winter Break, and damage was limited to the doorknobs. "There'll be a whole new locking system so the residents get new keys ... And we're also looking into a new security system for when we are shut down like this," Plumley said.

The crime had had one unexplainable twist that campus officials as well as the police are still puzzling over. "When we looked at the rooms and the police were here ... things looked like they were moved from one room to the next. Why, I don't know," Plumley said.

Volunteer Connection Offers Opportunities

The Volunteer Connection at UCSD acts as a liaison between UCSD staff and students and the San Diego non-profit community. If you are interested in these or any other volunteer opportunities, please stop by our office on the second floor of the student Center or call us at 534-1414. Show San Diego that the students care about the community in which they live!

Planned Parenthood

The Planned Parenthood of San Diego County is in need of pregnancy counselors, family planning assistants, general office workers, and community speakers for all 10 of their clinic locations. Complete training is provided for all volunteers, and the next series of training sessions will commence on Jan. 10, 1989. The staff of Planned Parenthood coordinates their efforts for volunteers who may be interested in future employment.

Boys Club

If you just can't get enough basketball into your life, and would enjoy teaching others to play, the Boys Club of East County is searching for volunteers who are interested in coaching a team or being a referee for the games. A firm knowledge of the game is necessary, and a year's previous experience at coaching or refereeing basketball is highly recommended. The positions are time commitments until the end of March, when the season ends. Coaches and referees are needed as soon as possible because the season will be quickly under way.

St. Vincent De Paul Center

The St. Vincent De Paul Center strives to help in the education of children of the homeless or underprivileged. They are always looking for tutors to help lower elementary school children in math and reading, or to help them with their homework. Many of the students have missed school and are behind. The tutoring opportunities are for the evenings (7-9 p.m.). Help these children to learn and to experience some of the warmth associated with being taught on a one-to-one basis. Training and orientation are provided to all new tutors.

For the week: Four incidents of obscene phone calls were reported, two occurring at Third College dorms. All calls were threatening, with the suspect claiming to know the girls he was calling. Police suspect the threats are a ploy to keep the girls on the phone. According to police, threatening phone calls are not now a significant problem at UCSD, whereas three years ago they were very common. 26 parking permits were stolen, down slightly from last week's record of over 35.

Five thefts were reported as having occurred at the Main Gym, mostly involving stolen wallets.

ience to "take themselves seriously" and to "begin listening to themselves." These are often points, Johnson said, that women neglect since "women have suppressed their natures to the extent that they don't recognize their own inner voices."

According to Johnson, it is the fighting or "resisting" that women have done over the years that has strengthened the "persistence" of patriarchy.

"We collaborated with the men by resisting their ways," Johnson said.

According to Johnson, women should stop supporting the institutional systems they oppose rather than merely expressing opposition.

"If you don't subscribe to patriarchal institutions, then you have to think of alternative solutions."

Johnson ended her lecture by outlining the rules she feels will advance the ideals of feminism.

Her rules were as follows:

- "Never speak against other women. If you don't like what [a woman] is doing, go up and tell her about it. Don't tell everybody else. We don't need to do patriarchy's work for it."
- "Love women. This means that we listen to ourselves and take ourselves seriously. It means that we don't think that men are the most important."
- "You can't change anybody but yourself. If you do [things] for yourself, then it makes it more possible for everybody else to change."
- "Women can not use men's systems to get free," Johnson said.

Johnson's feminist career began in 1979 when she was excommunicated from the Mormon Church for supporting the Equal Rights Amendment.

Since then, she has written two books and is working on a third.

In 1982, she fasted for 37 days in Springfield, Illinois for passage of the ERA and in 1984 she ran for President of the United States as a candidate for the Citizens Party, the Peace and Freedom Party, and the Consumer Party.

The lecture was formally concluded with a song led by Johnson, who asked all members of the audience to put their arms around one another.

BUDGET: Problems Seen

request for inflation and fixed costs. This, however, is still $30 million below the UC budget proposal.

"Even with the student fee increase, the University is still not getting an inflationary adjustment for this budget," Tien said.

On Jan. 10 the UCSA denounced Deukmejian's proposed student fee increase as "a serious departure from the state's student fee policy," according to UCSA President Tracey Woodruff.

The state's student fee policy, according to information released by the UCSA, provides that student fees at the University of California and the California State University are to be set according to a methodology based on previous budget increases. For 1989-90, the fee-setting formula called for a three percent increase in UC fees.

According to Gardner, the governor's proposal means that the University will have to engage in cost saving efforts, including budget reallocations to be determined by the individual UC campuses.

The fee increase was allowed under the provisions of the Long Term Student Fee Policy adopted in 1985.

The policy allows a fee increase of up to 10 percent, but only due to an "unforeseen circumstance." According to Tien, Prop. 98 was considered such a circumstance under the policy.

Non-California residents in particular will feel the effects of the fee increase. Tuition fees have gone up by 15 percent in the last year.

The 17 percent 1989-90 increase means that within two years out-of-state fees have risen by 32 percent.

Foreign students will be significantly affected by the increase as well, because unlike out-of-state American students, they are unable to declare California residency within the first year of residence, according to Reinhart Lutz, external president of the Graduate Student Association.

This means that the 32 percent fee increase over the last two years will affect most foreign students for the duration of their studies at the University.

Lutz fears that this "huge financial burden will affect the quality of education for all UC students," since many foreign students, especially at the graduate level, may not be able to afford the increase. Lutz feels that this might have an impact on the availability and quality of teaching assistants and decrease diversity among the student body.

The Regents will discuss the new budget and fee increase proposals at a Santa Barbara meeting on Jan. 20.

Many councilmembers perceive a need for constitutional revisions but do not think a convention is necessary.

Luis Ramirez, the Commissioner of Operations, Services, and Enterprises, feels that the constitution just needs updating, rather than a radical, convention-style overhaul.

"I think a lot of things in the constitution need to change just because of the way the school's growing," he said, but added that the council could effectively accomplish that.

Ramirez said that if students express a real desire for a constitutional convention, they should be able to have one. But, he said, most students are not as familiar with the A.S. Constitution as councilmembers are, and do not have an idea of what aspects of it need amending.

According to Dimmesdale, a convention should last six to eight weeks, and would meet "at least once a week, preferably twice," so that all interested students would have a chance to attend.

Some of Dimmesdale's ideas for a new constitution include providing representation not only for colleges, but for other organizations and interest groups as well.

"[At present] we have reps from each college and that's it," he said, suggesting the addition of councilmembers who would represent sports, fine arts, commuter, or political groups.

A License To Hunt

Editor:
One issue which has not been discussed lately in the Guardian is the on-campus parking situation, especially at the Fifth College Residence Halls, Pepper Canyon, and Matthews Apartments.

These three housing complexes are provided with two very small parking lots which obviously are not equipped to handle the high volume of automobiles owned by the residents.

According to the Fifth College residence office, these same lots have a ridiculous ratio of three students to each parking space! Parking is adequate on the weekends. However, if a resident cannot find a space in either parking lot by Sunday night, which frequently occurs, the resident is forced to park in a remote lot

Constitution Overhaul

Dear Editor:
It is with great hesitation that I write an opinion to the Guardian. As a current member of the A.S. Council, I am reluctant to bring personal conflicts to the National Enquirer audience of the Opinion section. As an undergraduate student of UCSD, however, I feel an item of greatest importance should be addressed.

On Wednesday night, your A.S. Council voted down a resolution allowing for significant changes in the current way the student government is being run. Your representatives claimed it was not what "the students" wanted. They claimed it was too risky to allow the Constitution to be completely rewritten by any interested stu-such as the Warren College Apartments.

During the weekdays, both parking lots are always filled to capacity, and the unfortunate extra cars constantly search, wait, and prepare to dart into a space which has become vacant.

Consequently, the lucky people who have a spot leave their auto in the parking space unless it is absolutely necessary to drive somewhere else, for fear of losing it. As a result, these victims are somewhat trapped on campus.

These students, as any on-campus resident, should not have to deal with this predicament. I find it ironic that we spend $150 for a permit which does not guarantee a reasonable parking space. I am sure I am not the only person who feels this way, since my roommates are also disgusted with this situation.

More parking must be made available. While UCSD continues to develop and expand, it appears that parking seems to have been left out of the agenda.

Paranoia, Not Sexism

Editor:
Upon reading a letter entitled "Campus Minds Stagnate," [Guardian, Jan. 9] I realized that there is a much more serious problem on campus today than sexism and racism — paranoia.

In all fun, a flyer was distributed for a party. I did not attend the party, nor did I even see the flyer, but I do know that this flyer was distributed for the sole purpose of publicizing the party, not to degrade the female race or "broaden the gender gap" as Ms. Young feared.

Her sensationalized, paranoid view of this party flyer (for God's sake) makes me wonder what this kind of over-analyzing could do to a person, or a society. If a skeleton appears on an album cover, is it satanic and should it be simply taken off the shelves, or should the artists be imprisoned for trying to turn our nation's

GPA Policy Dangerous

Editor:
Students beware. The UCSD Committee on Educational Policy (CEP) has allowed the CSE, ECE, and AMES departments to create a loophole in student GPAs which may set the standard for all impacted majors, if we do not oppose it now.

In July, 1985 the EECS department concluded that during their screening process, they would average both grades if students repeated a class.

That same year the UCSD CEP decided that this method was appropriate, even though it was apparently in violation of regulation 780(c)(4). This regulation states:

In computing the grade point average of an undergraduate who repeats courses in which he received a D or F, only the most recently earned grades and grade points shall be used for the first 16 units repeated. In the case of further repetitions, the grade point average shall be based on all grades assigned and total units attempted.

In June, 1988 the University (systemwide) CEP discussed this legal question and concluded that this method directly conflicted with regulation 780(c)(4). In a letter sent to the Chairperson of the Academic Senate, the systemwide committee Chairperson stated:

... It is the view of this committee that it is clear that the regulation (780(c)(4)) addresses computation of the grade point average, and the use of such a computation, by any authorized component of the University of California regardless of the purpose for which the computation is made. There is no description and no designation of an "official" grade point average. Therefore, it must be assumed that the regulation applies to all grade point averages determined by all entities of the University...

Honor Through Action

The holiday is over and we are back into our daily routines. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday has come and gone. He would have been 60.

Parades were held and television specials were aired and the late Dr. King received a good deal of media coverage. A lot of people went to those parades and watched those specials and read the newspaper articles about the man, his dream, and his death. But how many of these people are thinking about Dr. King today? And more importantly, how many of these people are doing anything to further his cause?

We all have a tendency believe that thinking about civil rights and equality is the same thing as promoting civil rights and equality.

Rosa Parks surely thought about racism and discrimination prior to the bus boycott of 1955, but it wasn't until she refused to give her city bus seat up to a white person that the civil rights movement began to make headway.

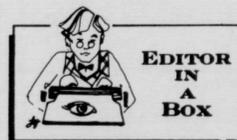

UCSD is a long way from the Montgomery, Alabama of 1955. It would be a mistake, however, to think that this University, nestled in the affluent community of La Jolla, is free of racial discrimination. Take a look around. How many black students do you see? How many do you know? How many black professors and administrators have you ever come in contact with?

It is true that racially discriminatory laws have been erased from the nation's law books, but in a country where freedom still carries a price tag, discriminatory laws aren't the problem any more. Economic inequality, subtle and not-so-subtle racial bigotry, and public apathy are the obstacles people of color face today.

Why aren't there more black students attending this college? Is it because they don't want to? Or is it because fees and admission standards keep rising and wages, financial aid, and the quality of elementary and high school education keep dropping?

It took 15 years for the U.S. government to proclaim Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday a national holiday. It took 15 years for the American public to finally twist the legislature's arm into doing so. How many more years will it take for us to really honor Dr. King by realizing his dream? How many years will it take before we act?

Concerts in the Main Gym Again? Take a Stand

Editor in a Box is written by a different Guardian editor every Monday.

By LARRY WEINTRAUB
Music Editor

The purpose of the Editor's Box is traditionally to allow the Guardian editors to expose a more personal insight into their feelings and views. What I'm about to discuss, however, will not only benefit me, but you, the students as well. My object here is to let you know why UCSD has so few concerts, and what can be done about it.

Have you ever wondered why San Diego State hosts all the best rock shows, why Humphrey's features the top jazz acts, and why the Bacchanal spotlights the latest-breaking talent? If you do, then you have a lot in common with a majority of UCSD's student population.

If you think it's because of money, I'm pleased to inform you that is not the case. As a matter of fact, each year a significant percentage of student registration fees are designated for the very purpose of providing this form of entertainment. If lack of student interest is your guess, once again that's not the case. According to administrative studies, the students of UCSD have been demanding better shows for years. Finally, if you think that the people responsible for putting on these events don't really care, then you're not even close. The University Events office works specifically for the purpose of supplying these concerts.

The major factor preventing UCSD from competing with other ventures is our lack of facilities. Sure, we have our Gym; it stands 2,000 people fairly uncomfortably, and requires cancelling physical education classes for an entire day to produce a three-hour show. As for sound quality, well, that goes unsaid.

Yes, the Triton Pub, Mandeville Auditorium, and the forthcoming University Center Ballroom provide adequate space for rising artists; however, their availability is equally rare and requires enormous production costs.

In essence, what this University needs is a designated concert facility: a theatre-style arena that can accommodate at least one third of the student population (which will soon break 20,000), and is specifically and acoustically designed for musical and theatrical performances. There are even sites that were chosen several years ago when this issue was first considered.

Giving an example of what the hall should look like is difficult because few people will be able to relate to the places I have in mind. It should be noted, however, that there is no current location in San Diego like this suggested one, and there are no plans to build one. Neither the proposed UCSD or SDSU recreation facilities will meet these needs. Both will undoubtedly amount to larger scale versions of our beloved Main Gym.

By now you're probably thinking that this is a great idea, but where will the money come from and what impact can you, the student, have. Addressing the first point, I'll be honest, the money may have to come partially from Registration fees, initially. However, unlike the new University Center, a concert venue could easily generate hundreds of thousands of dollars each year towards upkeep and expansion. I must stress though, right now money is not the problem, motivation is.

The administration has to be told directly, not from surveys and annual reports, that we the students are tired of dealing with the age restrictions and distance problems with going off-campus for shows. College music is geared towards college students, and, as one of the nation's leading universities, UCSD should be showcasing this talent for its students. UCSD prides itself in its interest in the arts, yet we have only limited ways of displaying it.

All I can ask is that you, the student, take a stand. Write letters to the Guardian, to the Chancellor and Vice Chancellor. Start talking to administrators and school officials. The only way this proposed facility will ever become a reality is if you demand it!

Should parties advertised by flyers displaying large-breasted females be boycotted or should the police be immediately summoned to make sure the party never takes place and that no more of these flyers are distributed?

Despite the fact that I am a freshman, I feel that I already know enough about party flyers to know that they are not created for the purpose of making women look like the "lesser sex," but for simply promoting a social event, and they should not be taken for too much else.

Loopholes

On Wednesday night the students will finally get a chance to make a stance on this issue. A resolution will be proposed to the Associated Student Council that insists that the UCSD CEP eliminate their dispensation granted to various UCSD departments to violate Regulation 780(c)(4), and bring their practices into compliance with the systemwide Academic Senate Regulation.

I encourage all interested students to express their opinions to their Councilmembers and/or to myself.

UCSD Crime Prevention Day Gives Students Safety Info

By SHERYL B. GARDEN
Contributing Writer

With the intention of increasing student awareness about personal safety as well as campus and community resources available to students, a Crime Prevention and Safety Awareness Day was held last Wednesday, on the Revelle Plaza.

The program was sponsored by the Revelle College Dean's office, the Revelle Resident Dean's office, and the Student Safety Awareness Program.

Nancy Wahlig, coordinator of the Student Safety Awareness Program, said that she wanted "people to know what resources we have on and off campus. Often times, people have situations where they are unsure of what to do or where to turn for help. I want them to see how they can make themselves safe."

Activities on the Plaza included engraving services offered by Community Service Officers and the sale of bicycle and auto safety devices by the Bike Coop.

Organizations represented included the Women's Resource Center, Legal Services, Student Health Services, the Rape Crisis Center, Transportation Services, and the San Diego City Police Department.

Canyonview Recreation Center held a self-defense workshop as part of the day's events, and offers other related classes throughout the year.

Other efforts to increase student awareness included a surprise security check by the resident advisors of dormitory doors, to make sure that they were locked.

According to program coordinator Lorna Hirae, the surprise check was conducted "just to make students aware of their own safety. They need to understand the little things, like locking doors and walking with someone from the parking lot."

The main event of the day was a public forum titled "Does She Deserve It," concerning the myths about rape.

The panel discussion, led by Revelle resident advisors Angie Hughes and Marissa Westerfield, focused on controversial issues related to men, women, alcohol, sex, and crime.

Westerfield said that although rape is a "touchy subject," it is necessary to talk about it so people will better understand the seriousness of the crime.

"There will not be any right or wrong answers necessarily, but [a dialogue] will provide information and create thoughts for future discussions," Wahlig added.

According to FBI reports, rape occurs across the nation at a rate of one rape every three minutes.

A primary purpose for the discussion was to show students what resources are available to them both on and off campus, should they themselves or anyone they know be victimized.

fall quarter is traditionally the worst for business at Assorted Vinyl.

"Fall quarter last year we were between $6,000 and $8,000 in debt. We managed to bring it back up. We're always going to start out with a bad quarter," she said.

Although business may improve at the new Price Center location, the monthly operating expenses would also increase to over twice the current amount, Lai said.

Woodard said the store currently makes approximately 50 sales per day, which is not enough to cover expenses. At the new location, just to "break even," he said the store would have to make at least 157 sales per day.

"It's possible to turn the place around as long as we move to the Price Center."

—Sharon Lai

The Price Center is not to blame for the effort to discontinue Assorted Vinyl, according to Woodard, who explained that the store would have to be closed anyway.

Despite Assorted Vinyl's deficit track record, Lai maintains that the store fills a real student need, because of the convenience, service, and low prices that it offers its customers.

"We undercut all chain stores [and] we are very competitive with independent stores," she said.

Lai pointed out that Assorted Vinyl is the only student enterprise offering a product other than basic necessities, like food or class materials.

"We are unique in that we're vending luxury items," she added.

Lai and another manager at the store, Robert Loyd, plan to appeal to the Council at tomorrow's meeting, but Lai said, "I'm not crossing my fingers and I'm not holding my breath."

Professors Discuss the Role of Research

By ERIC SPRINGER
Contributing Writer

As UCSD grows, the faculty finds it harder to define the role of professors. A young university, rapidly expanding, needs to address the subject of research versus teaching.

Dr. William Fitzgerald, of the literature department, said of this dilemma, "Education has come to a point where we have to rethink the relation between research and teaching, what we expect of the professors, what the University is as an institution; what is it doing? All that has come to a crucial moment where some rethinking has to be done."

Fitzgerald acknowledged that the role of teaching is secondary to that of research, and added that teaching is not a guarantee for promotion.

"[Teaching] is something that is added on as a sort of decoration to cases for promotion. You will not get promoted, whatever your teaching is like, unless you have achieved a certain degree of visibility as a publishing scholar, and published a certain quantity of stuff and a certain quality. After that, people may talk about teaching," he said.

"Hiring and promotion is done on the basis of research and it produces a sort of disjunction between what people are judged on because the University is a teaching institution. I think that's really the root of the problem," Fitzgerald added.

As a means for a solution, he proposed that the University re-examine its criteria for promotion and put more emphasis on teaching.

The demand for publication is so great that beginning professors have a hard time teaching when they know that tenure has little to do with teaching ability, he added.

Not all professors agree with Fitzgerald on the role of teaching, or even the extent to which it is secondary to research. Dr. Paul Saltman, of the Biology department, pointed out that teaching benefitted from the research done in his labs.

"We are the cutting edge of science. I take that into my classroom," he said.

Dr. Paul Saltman feels there is no problem with the role of teaching and that UCSD provides an excellent education through its facilities.

In Saltman's opinion, there is no problem with the role of teaching or the quality of teachers. "Eighty percent of the classes in the biology department are taught by senior staff. I can list colleague after colleague who is a great teacher and they're in the classrooms," he said.

He views UCSD as a research institution that provides an excellent education through its facilities and the fact that its teachers are themselves experts in the fields they teach. He acknowledged, however, that the main thrust of effort at UCSD is research.

The practice of rating a professor for his or her abilities as a researcher does not bother Saltman. He is of the opinion that this preserves the highest standards of results and material in terms of research quality.

"But hey, we're in the class-[room] too. The best scientists are also the ones teaching the lower division bio classes. Not the TAs but senior staff members who care about the students and love to teach," he concluded.

Saltman likens the environment of UCSD to the NBA, where only the best play. At UCSD, he explained, only the best do research. If that means heavy research loads and high demands in terms of time that could be spent teaching or otherwise, Saltman accepts the price. "I'm loving it here," he said.

Tom Hull, assistant vice chancellor of academic affairs, commented on the role of teaching with respect to promotion.

"The idea that the administration has a formula or some kind of judgement about which is more important of all these: research or teaching or university service, really the three major criteria that all faculty are judged on ... is unclear to me," Hull said. He maintains that the peer review process allows for faculty to review professors and then recommend to the administration whether to give tenure and promotions.

"Nobody gets hired to the faculty who isn't proposed by the departmental faculty," he explained.

He added that the recommended person is almost always hired, promoted, or tenured. "Ninety-nine and a half percent of the recommendations are accepted by the administration," he said.

The dilemma of whether to research or teach lies within the responsibility of the individual departments. Hull pointed out that because the faculty run both the review process and determine the direction of research and teaching, it is really the faculty who are pushing hard for research over teaching.

Dr. Doug Magde, vice chairman for undergraduate affairs at the department of chemistry, views the overall situation as too complex to single out even the issue of research versus teaching. In his opinion, the rapid growth of the University has raised questions about the exact ratio between teaching, research, and public service that should be aimed for.

In general, Magde concurred with Saltman on the effectiveness of teaching and its place relative to research. While not content to consider the University perfect, Magde said, "I'm satisfied that we're basically moving in the right direction and I don't see a need, at this time, for revolutionary changes."

Magde added that research and teaching reinforce each other to a degree and cited the increase of specialization as a serious problem.

"What I think we faculty have as our challenge is how to recruit and retain and encourage people, not who are interested in teaching as well as in research, but who are interested in teaching broad issues and researching broad issues," he said.

Fitzgerald echoed this theme, adding, "It's becoming more and more difficult to see how to make connections between the kind of things people are doing in research, which is becoming more theoretically complicated, and the need to communicate with students, to put things across without a very technical vocabulary."

Akin to this is the sense of alienation that Deedee Halleck, of the communication department, claims is slowly overwhelming UCSD. She explained that as the University grows, the students and professors feel more distant and apathy sets in. She sees the bureaucracy of the administration as key to this distance. Both Magde and Hull agreed that the problems now affecting the University stem, to a degree, from

Toxics in Workplace

Women's Association Focuses On Hard Sciences

By MAUREEN SPURR
Staff Writer

Bake some pies. Perfect the three-egg omelette. Perhaps even make some fingerprint masterpieces with an elementary class of your own.

This is college. This is your major. Why? It's the turn of the century, that's why. Women haven't "Come a long way, Baby" yet.

Women faced a difficult time before even being allowed to major in something other than home economics and teaching, say something like science or engineering. Actually getting hired in those fields would be even more difficult.

Women have come a long way since the turn of the century, but they still face some remaining hurdles. Even 1988 Nobel Prize winner for science and medicine, Gertrude B. Elion, publicly attributed her success to the catastrophe of World War II. Only a small pool of men were left to work in the labs because of the draft, which Elion feels was the only reason that she got her chance.

Associated Women in Science (AWIS) is an organization that started in 1971, "to work to improve education and employment opportunities for women in the areas of science and engineering," board member Lynne Friedmann explained.

Thirty-five hundred members participate in AWIS nationally in 25 states. AWIS functions as a type of contact and support group with valuable advice in the scientific and engineering fields. AWIS also sponsors lectures on current topics.

"Is Working Hazardous to Your Health?" was the topic of the last AWIS meeting, which explored the possible diseases associated with working with toxic materials. Senior lecturer Ruth M. Heifetz, M.D., from the department of community and family medicine at the UCSD School of Medicine, gave the lecture. She believes that "more consciousness about specific materials and their effects in/on your own workplace or home" is the only way to prevent health problems as diverse as asthma, skin diseases, cancer, birth defects, and heart disease from the workplace.

"Any area can be potentially hazardous," Heifetz stated. "Even art classes in the past have been found to use toxic and hazardous materials."

Heifetz warned science and engineering majors, and those already working in those fields, to ask for Material Safety Data Sheets, which are legally required at any workplace using and exposing people to toxic materials.

Employees should also ask themselves certain questions: Do I know what materials I am working with? Is it safely worked with? Am I experiencing any symptoms of discomfort? Why?

Dangerous Toxins

Some places on campus were brought up and suggested to be hazardous at the meeting by participating students who came to present their views.

"Each year at least 1,000 new chemicals are introduced into working areas, and more than 60,000 are in common commerce right now," Heifetz said. "A lot of times the only way to recognize a hazardous chemical is to find the people getting sick."

Topics of the AWIS meeting vary widely, from nuclear proliferation to a tour of the Super-computer Center, but the goal remains the same: to promote the full participation of women in science and engineering.

Heifetz gave the following phone numbers as valuable for those who are worried about certain toxic materials in their workplace: (415) 540-3014 or on-campus, 534-3659 (Environmental Health and Safety).

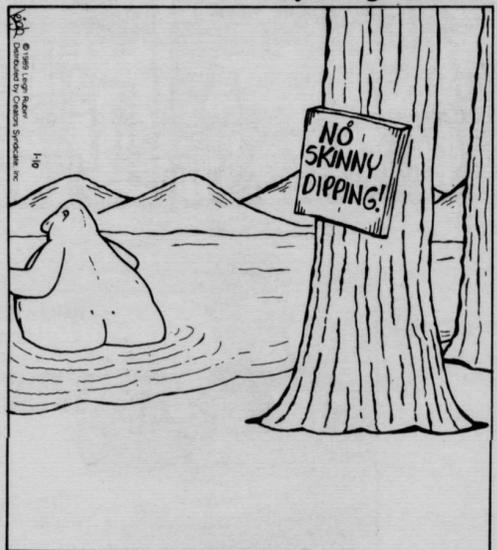

Next month's meeting will be led by Dr. Margaret Burbidge, the director of the Center of Astrophysics and Space Sciences on Thursday, Feb. 23.

Interested students or non-students who wish to become involved in AWIS should contact Lynne Friedmann at 457-5623. Those interested in learning more about potentially hazardous materials in the workplace should contact Ruth Heifetz, M.D. at 534-4613.

the bureaucratic manner of the administration.

Joel Kovel, a former visiting professor from Bard College, said that colleges without large bureaucracies offer students a personal education. "The students are individually known to the faculty and the faculty's prime responsibility is teaching. [Bard is] not a research institution. Faculty will talk about their students over lunch. I don't think that ever happened, to my knowledge, [at UCSD]."

In Kovel's opinion, the distance between professors and students at UCSD places strain on the academic process and lessens the educational experience.

To counter this, many professors have taken steps to be accessible to their students. Halleck uses the electronic mail system. Saltman, Magde, and Fitzgerald all cite their office hours as times to be reached. Saltman, in particular, has a standing policy of responding in 24 hours or less.

All three said students don't take full advantage of office hours. Magde said that often students have reasons, beyond just studying, that make it difficult for them to reach out to teachers. For many students, the responsibilities of having a family or working to pay for school often demand schedules that conflict with office hours.

The other professors, however, are disappointed by students' lack of aggressiveness and feel the responsibility lies partially in the hands of those they teach.

Fitzgerald thinks students need to become aggressive and seek out their teachers. Magde agrees, but thinks that the students should use the resources that the campus offers, in the form of office hours, TAs, libraries, and various university services.

Saltman urges students to get into the labs and thinks that the total resources of UCSD are "excellent."

The one benefit of growth that they all agree upon is the wide range of activities and resources which the students of UCSD have at their disposal but which, the professors say, the students don't use enough.

STUDENT SUMMIT '89: EDUCATION ON OUR TERMS

Are you interested in personally lobbying your California Legislators? If so, ASUCSD is paying for 28 students to go to Sacramento on February 25-27 for a legislative conference that will include a day spent in the capitol lobbying our San Diego legislators. Everyone is invited to attend a general interest meeting in TLH 110 on January 23rd at 7:00 PM. Sign up will be on a first-come-first-serve basis, so get there early to get your name at the top of the list. If you have any questions, please call Thomas Krisee at the AS Office x44450.

ATTENTION STUDENTS

Are you interested in improving the present campus climate? If so, then I am strongly encouraging you to come talk to me, Vaughn Rex, your undergraduate UCSA Representative. The University of California Student Association is the official voice of the U.C. student population to the Regents and other state bodies. As a member of the UCSA Board of Directors, I lobby in support of or against issues which directly or indirectly affect you. So, please come talk to me every Tuesday from 2:30 to 4:00 and Wednesday from 4:00 to 6:30 at the A.S. External Affairs Office (located right above EDNA) because it gets lonely sitting in the office talking to myself.

PHIL'S ANALYSIS... Hey, I want the Tritons to win this one as much as anybody on this campus, but let's face it: they're not going to. The United States International University (USIU), our neighbors down off Miramar Road somewhere, competes in Division I of the NCAA. That may not make much difference to our water polo or fencing teams (to name a couple) who compete with and consistently beat Division I schools, but in basketball, it makes a big difference. I really don't care if USIU (7-13) lost to the Syracuse Orangemen by 30 points or whatever earlier this year, because we would have lost to them by twice that much. Admittedly, UCSD (5-9) has been playing better ball of late, winning two of three before getting stomped by Redlands on Saturday night. I know that eight points is considered a pretty big spread in basketball, but USIU, unless it has an off day, should be able to cover it. I think it's evident that Phil wants you to give the points and ...

30 attempts) but they were close because Point Loma was shooting a pathetic 28 percent. By the end of the game, both teams had improved their shooting percentages substantially, with UCSD at 40 percent and Point Loma at 35 percent.

Senior Tracy Ragatz, one of the team leaders with 12 points, four assists, and seven rebounds, said that UCSD "came into the game with revenge on [their] minds." However, the first half play belied that fact. The Tritons were missing easy layups, blowing defensive coverage, shying away from the boards, and taking bad shots. Malone said that they "started very tentatively, and Point Loma took advantage of that fact." As the half closed, the Tritons were playing better and were on a run.

The second half was a battle of streaks. UCSD jumped out to a 37-30 lead right off the bat, only to see Point Loma get the lead back. As a matter of fact, there were nine different lead changes in the second half alone. Senior forward/center Jill Koster was a major factor in the comeback. She scored six of her 16 points and picked up most of her 11 rebounds in the second half. However, according to Malone, the most important contribution by Koster was her defense. "She started picking up the wing pass, and from then on [Pt. Loma's] offense had trouble."

The game finally culminated at the free throw line, as UCSD hit a

Continued from page 18 series of critical shots to maintain the all-important three-point margin. In addition, junior guard Nancy Caparaz, who only stands 5'3" tall, added two critical layups to complement the free throws.

Five UCSD players scored in double figures, with Koster's 16 leading the way. Ragatz had 12, Caparaz 11, Bernadette Diepenbrock chipped in 10, and Beth Koenig added 12 points of her own, two of them being in the waning seconds of the game at the free throw line.

With a 9-4 record halfway through the season, the Tritons head east to meet Amherst College and then Colby, Smith College, and Trinity College in the Smith College Invitational. Malone says the trip east will "be a real battle, a real test of what we've got." Ragatz agrees, and says she "is looking forward to the trip since the team doesn't get to travel very much."

Although it is halfway through the season, Malone did not want to think about the playoffs or take a guess at the record the Tritons might need to attain in order to get in. "We need to play one game at a time and stay focused... as soon as we start thinking playoffs we won't make them," said Malone.

However, Ragatz speculated that the Tritons can "only afford to lose maybe two more games this season." She did add that the team is "preparing day by day and is not thinking playoffs yet." Using Ragatz's projection, UCSD needs to finish 20-6 to make the playoffs.

Outstanding play from team-captain Nick Rothman, setter John Childers, and outside-hitter Nate Brown was exhibited throughout the tournament, where the Tritons beat the teams they were supposed to beat, and played the others tough.

Upcoming matches do not get any easier, as three Division I teams visit the Triton Pavilion. Pepperdine, who finished third in Santa Barbara, stops in tonight, Long Beach State shows up Friday night, and eighth place Cal State Northridge drops by on Saturday.

Although the Tritons have no chance for a playoff berth with their 5-9 record, they plan on preventing such incidents in the future with the help of fan support. Remember: "Only you can help take a bite out of crime."

Typing that needs no tutoring.

Students, your assignment today is to learn how to use the Smith Corona XL 2500 typewriter.

Ooops, don't get too settled in your seats. The XL 2500 isn't a very difficult study.

In fact, unlike most electronic typewriters, it's a downright snap to pick up. The Spell-Right™ 50,000 word electronic dictionary adds new meaning to the word "simple."

WordEraser™ erases entire words at a single touch. WordFind™ finds your mistakes before anyone else can.

The XL 2500 even makes correcting mistakes as easy as making them.

With the Smith Corona Correcting Cassette, you simply pop in your correction tape.

There are no spools to unwind... no complicated threading... no tangles.

Of course, we've also added lots of other fine features to the XL 2500.

There's full line correction, Auto Half-Space, Auto Center, even our Right Ribbon System™, which automatically prevents you from using the wrong combination of ribbon and correcting cassette.

Oh, one more feature we forgot to mention—the price. You'll be happy to hear that the XL 2500 is surprisingly affordable.

So you see, the XL 2500 won't just make your writing easier.

It'll also help you with your economics.

Redlands Buries UCSD, Playoff Hopes Vanishing

Bill Gerlach, injured most of last year, is on the comeback trail. He scored 16 points on Saturday night.

The story you are about to read is true. None of the names or places have been changed to protect the innocent. This story has been taken from the files of the Guardian sports page and is named "Comedy of Errors."

The crime took place last Saturday evening when the UC San Diego Tritons fell victim to a 120-99 rout by the Redlands Bulldogs.

"The first half really killed us," said Head Coach Tom Marshall as the Tritons trailed the Bulldogs by a score of 64-41. "You have to be one hell of a team to come back from a 23 point deficit."

The Tritons seemed to come out with a different attitude during the second half as they outscored the Bulldogs 58-56, but to no avail — they continued to make costly errors that finally brought them down.

The Tritons did not just commit one error, but a variety of them, which ultimately made it child's play for their assailants to take advantage of them.

Their first mistake was obvious — they missed eleven lay-ups during the entire game which could have easily turned it around.

Their second mistake was also easy to spot, as the Tritons committed 20 turnovers, due in part to a full court press by the Bulldogs. Because the Tritons could not get the ball on the money with their passes, the Bulldogs stepped in and cashed in on Triton turnovers for easy lay-ups.

The Tritons' next mistake (and probably their biggest) was not converting rebounds. In the first half, the Tritons pulled down 14 offensive rebounds, but could only convert one of them for two points. In total, UCSD pulled down 52 rebounds to Redlands' 45.

"We had to convert our rebounds," Marshall said. "If we did, it might have been a different game."

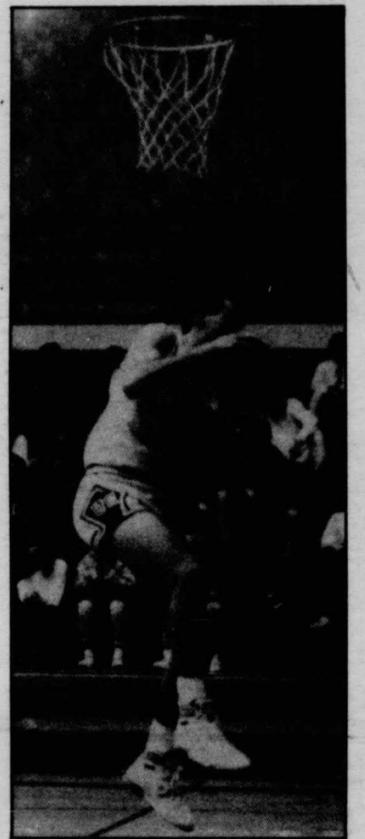

If the Tritons thought they had it bad enough with their own errors, the Bulldogs used a weapon that would prove to be even more deadly...the three point shot. Although UCSD actually made eight three-pointers, the Bulldogs made a total of eleven three point shots, and in fact, lead the nation with an average of 11.4 made shots per game.

The Bulldogs finally guaranteed their getaway by substituting in their starters against the Triton reserves with over a 20 point lead and less than two minutes to play.

Still, the Tritons did turn in some impressive individual efforts. Center Greg Kund scored 19 points, pulled down five rebounds, and went 6 for 6 at the free throw line. Guard Bill Gerlach also had a fine game with 16 points, five rebounds, and forward Gordon McNeill had 12 points and 12 rebounds. As a team, UCSD shot a sluggish 41 percent from the floor, while Redlands shot an impressive 60 percent. In addition, UCSD and Redlands were pretty much even at the line, as both teams shot around 70 percent.

"Basically, our biggest problem is that we're young and inexperienced. Everyone on the team works really hard and is developing slowly, but the truth is that there are a lot of people better

Men's Volleyball goes 5-3 at UCSB Invitational

By DANA CHAIKEN

In one of the toughest fields it will see all year, the UCSD men's volleyball team finished with a respectable 5-3 record in the season-opening UCSB Invitational Tournament this past weekend.

En route to a third-place standing in their pool, the Tritons lost to powerhouses USC 15-8, 16-14, and BYU 15-12, 15-11, but rebounded to soundly defeat Cal-Berkeley 15-5, 15-7.

In seeded bracket play, where the top two teams from each pool played for first through twelfth, and the second two from each could do no better than thirteenth, UCSD's loss to BYU sent them into the bottom half. The Tritons pounded Fresno State in two, but were edged by Humboldt State in three to close out Friday's competition.

Saturday proved an immensely successful day for the young Tritons, as they picked up three more victories and a fifteenth place finish in the 24 team open field of mostly Division I and II teams.

UCSD Turns the Tables on Point Loma Nazarene

By DAVID POTICHA
Staff Writer

"Sweet revenge." These were the words used by head coach Judy Malone to describe the Triton women's basketball team's two-point victory over Point Loma Nazarene on Friday night. By beating Point Loma 69-67, UCSD avenged a two-point loss to that team on opening day.

The game was a mixture of the good, the bad, and the ugly, as the refs allowed a great deal of contact underneath and chose to isolate on traveling calls. Said Malone, "We had one of these refs last time we played [Point] Loma and all he was interested in was calling the traveling violations." UCSD was called for 15 traveling violations in the game.

Playing before a crowd of maybe 30 people, the Tritons jumped out to a 6-4 lead and then watched Point Loma score 11 unanswered points to take a 15-6 lead. By the end of the first half UCSD had closed the gap to one point at 27-28.

The Tritons shot just 33 percent in the first half (making 10 of
