Join the UCSD Community Team for AIDS Walk San Diego

HIV/AIDS affects so many in our community and those we love. The LGBT Resource Center lost one of our most consistent volunteers, Trent Lawley, to the pandemic. We honor his memory every year with a Memorial Volunteer Award at Rainbow Graduation. For that reason, and for many other, Team UCSD will be participating in the 17th annual AIDS Walk San Diego on Sunday, October 1st, 2006. We want you to walk with us this year as part of our team. The Walk is really inspiring and raises much-needed funds for people living with HIV/AIDS in our community. Plus, it is a lot of fun. If you can't walk, please consider sponsoring the team "UCSD Community" that is walking. Your help and support makes a big difference! Click here to join.

Q Camp is Just Around the Corner!

Q Camp began in the fall of 2002 with only 13 registrants. Proclaimed as a huge success by those attending, the event grew primarily by word of mouth in its second year. With the addition of counselors from the UCSD LGBT community who led discussions, the numbers of registrants more than doubled, with 30 participants. In 2004, the campus was canvassed by a core of counselors and volunteers, 46 people registered, and even more attended the event. In 2005, attendance grew even larger.

For the 2006 edition of Q Camp, counselors went through extensive co-training with UCSD's Queer Peer Support Program, and Q Fair was added as an opportunity for our entire community, through our organizations and campus departments, to connect with Q Campers during an informal resource fair.

Q Camp continues to grow, and has evolved into the quickest and easiest ways for incoming students to connect to the LGBT community.

Both Q Camp and Q Fair will:

- Acquaint incoming students with the organizations that are LGBTQI specific on campus
- Help students make connections with their fellow students who may be experiencing similar situations as LGBTQI incoming students
- Allow students to get connected with the resources on campus (including the LGBT Resource Center) as well

From the Director, Shaun, "Not too many UCSD professors admit to having punk rock as a vital element of their identity. However, our own Professor Roberto Tejada does so with pride. 'Being born and raised in LA, my early years were part of the punk explosion,' said professor Tejada, who has now moved on to becoming more of a professional fan, exploring how sexuality and punk identity allowed the margins to challenge definitions. 'When the Dead Kennedy's lead singer came out, the collision between alternative sexuality and alternative music was visible.'

Beyond being a punk fan, Roberto Tejada is an Assistant Professor in the Visual Arts department here at UCSD, and has served on the LGBT Resource Center's Advisory Board for the last two years. As he enters his fourth year on the UCSD campus, Roberto recalls having connected to the UCSD LGBT Resource Center from the earliest moments.

'This is the blessing and burden of being visible: to make links between departments sprawled across campus' commented Roberto as he spoke of how the LGBT Resource Center brings as off campus

- Orient students to the local area in LGBTQI terms
- Give students an opportunity to ask questions about UCSD LGBTQI life
- Introduce students to the academic LGBTQI life at UCSD - including classes focusing on sexual orientation, gender identity, sexuality and gender issues

Fluid Sexuality Meetings

Meeting Place: 2nd Floor of the Cross-Cultural Center

This group is an open and intimate discussion regarding viewpoints, interests and visions together. It is what draws him to participate at the level of the Advisory Board.

Gay Soul* by Mark Thompson

Gay spirituality and sensibility come to light in these pages of striking portraits and trenchant interviews. Thompson brings out the unique contributions of the esteemed gay men – including Will Roscoe, Joseph Kramer, Harry Hay, James Broughton, Andrew Harvey, Paul Monette, Malcolm Boyd, and Ram Dass – who lead the spiritual life. Thompson elicits vivid musings on such provocative issues as the third gender, S&M, ritual as 'holy fire', and spirituality in the age of Aids. His interviews call out the deepest emotions of each of these vibrant leaders who reveal, as never before, the spirit and the soul of the gay life.

Q Camp: History and Plans for this year!

September 20th, 2006 ~ 9am at the Cross-Cultural Center

Q Camp began in the fall of 2002 with only 13 registrants. Proclaimed as a huge success by those attending, the event grew primarily by word of mouth in its second year. With the addition of counselors from the UCSD LGBT community who led discussions, the numbers of registrants more than doubled, with 30 participants. Q Camp continues to grow, and has evolved into the quickest and easiest ways for incoming students to connect to the LGBT community.

Both Q Camp and Q Fair will:

Rey has been actively involved in the LGBT community on campus since colleagues he now considers mentors encouraged him into the work, namely Rich Belmontez, Robert Felix and Todd Bowser. He made a commitment to be out at UCSD (for the first time professionally) when he first arrived on campus, and supporting the LGBT community was a way to live that openness.

But, of course, there is more to Rey than LGBT work. Rey has been an avid comic book fan for years. With San Diego hosting the world largest comic convention, Rey is annually able to indulge in the pleasure and marvel of ComiCon and in his words, "satisfy his inner geek."

Rey has been called "an institution" at UCSD. "I hope that more staff and faculty would consider making themselves more accessible and known to the UCSD community, because I think that you don't have to be involved to the hilt. But when students and other staff and faculty know about openly LGBT colleagues, it makes for a better environment for everyone."

Rey is open to being a resource for anyone on campus, and especially on-campus students. And although often plays a behind the scenes role, he has accepted the role as chair-elect for our Advisory Board for next year. Thank Rey, for all that you have done and will do!"

Guide for LGBT Students by Shane Windmeyer

This book profiles 100 colleges and universities from across the country that offer resources and create a positive living and learning environment for LGBT students. Campus PrideNet, the leading national organization for LGBT and ally student leaders, with support from a team of expert LGBT professionals from the National Consortium of Directors of LGBT Resources in Higher Education, developed the criteria and a questionnaire for nominations to gather feedback from current LGBT students, faculty and staff regarding personal experiences and opinions about their campus.

After receiving nominations from 680 campuses and conducting more than 5,500 online interviews, 100 campuses were selected for the book based on institutional policies, commitment and support, academic life, housing, student life, counseling and health services, campus safety, and recruitment and retention efforts. The list of 100 is broken down in multiple indexes such as region, state, type of institution and size. Individual campus profiles include information on size, tuition, admission application deadlines, gay-affirmative policies, events, LGBT student groups and resources, housing for LGBT students and more.

WHERE: The LGBT Resource Center

RSVP: <http://alumni.ucsd.edu/events/details.asp?evt=563>

We are excited to be able to reconnect with our LGBT alumni, and our list includes many folks who were former principal and active members of the student organizations, as well as recent graduates who attended our annual Rainbow Graduation. However, I feel confident there are many alumni who were active with LGBT issues with whom we have lost contact. If you still have connections with your classmates, feel free to pass on this information to them.

For more information on how to get to our new space, check out http://lgbt.ucsd.edu/about_location.shtml or contact me at (858) 822-3493.

Deadline: Tuesday, September 26, 2006

The Campus Community Centers are proud to announce that applications for the 2006-2007 year of the Chancellor's Undergraduate Diversity Leadership Institute (CUDLI) are now available. Participants in the Institute will experience a social change model of leadership development and growth through academic and experiential diversity related activities. Students must be first or second year students with excellent academic credentials and a strong, articulated interest in diversity and social justice issues.

National Consortium of Directors of LGBT Resources in Higher Education, developed the criteria and a questionnaire for nominations to gather feedback from current LGBT students, faculty and staff regarding personal experiences and opinions about their campus.

After receiving nominations from 680 campuses and conducting more than 5,500 online interviews, 100 campuses were selected for the book based on institutional policies, commitment and support, academic life, housing, student life, counseling and health services, campus safety, and recruitment and retention efforts. The list of 100 is broken down in multiple indexes such as region, state, type of institution and size. Individual campus profiles include information on size, tuition, admission application deadlines, gay-affirmative policies, events, LGBT student groups and resources, housing for LGBT students and more.

Q Camp

A History

Q Camp began in the fall of 2002 with only 13 registrants.

Proclaimed as a huge success by those attending, the event grew primarily by word of mouth in its second year. With the addition of counselors from the UCSD LGBT community who led discussions, the numbers of registrants more than doubled, with 30 participants. In 2004, the campus was canvassed by a core of counselors and volunteers, 46 people registered, and even more attended the event. In 2005, attendance grew even larger.

For the 2006 edition of Q Camp, counselors went through extensive co-training with UCSD's Queer Peer Support Program, and Q Fair was expanded as an opportunity for our entire community, through

Q Fair is a part of Q Camp. Q Camp is UCSD's annual orientation for incoming students who wish to become familiarized with the UCSD LGBT Community.

Q Fair is an opportunity for LGBT groups on campus to participate in Q Camp, coming together to share experiences and resources with the new members of our community. LGBT and Ally focused groups and organizations at UCSD are invited and encouraged to participate in Q Fair, as well as those organizations who are closely affiliated with UCSD's LGBT community, like J-Pride, OASIS, etc. Participants will get the chance to welcome the new students firsthand and provide them with information about the opportunities and resources available to them. A list of the groups who are participating is below.

Q Fair begins with set-up at 11am at the Cross Cultural Center for participating groups to prepare their tables with resources. We all get to mix and mingle with the Q Campers as they find out about all of the things we offer them as a part of the UCSD community. that sense of community from the people watching," Barnard said.

He went on to say that he was "disappointed" that no faculty members spoke, since they could provide role models for the younger participants.

Only one speaker expressed distaste about the activities, telling the crowd it was "not o.k. to like homosexuality."

"I may be a card-carrying homophobic, but it's important to know that you have an alternative," he added. He received almost no support from the spectators.

Speakers also commented on Governor Pete Wilson's veto of bill AB 101, a state bill written to protect homosexuals from job discrimination.

Todd Hauser of the Fifth College

Dean's Office expressed his concern about individuals being fired from jobs because of their homosexuality.

He said he had been fired from a university job elsewhere for that reason and was glad to see a more open community at UCSD.

Coming Out of the Closet

■ LGBA holds rally to promote honesty about homosexuality

By Stephanie Danford

Guardian Reporter

The Lesbian, Gay & Bisexual Association (LGBA) sponsored a rally for national Coming Out Day at the Price Center Plaza Friday noon.

An open microphone format gave anyone who wished the chance to speak, including several speakers who openly declared their homosexuality for the first time.

LGBA Publicity Director Daniel Calvi said the importance of the rally was in encouraging homosexuals to come out of the closet.

"We would like more people within the organization (LGBA) to come out. We want people to know it is a safe place for people to come out — it's a very supportive environment," Calvi said.

"Coming out is hell," one young man told the crowd. LGBA members and their friends stood to one side, ready to offer their support to speakers. At times, several of them joined students at the microphone who were having a difficult time.

This was a student named Matt's first time coming out in public. "As a freshman, I felt I was the only one who felt this way," he said. "There are other people out there. LGBA is very supportive."

A student name Tara, who had spoken at a previous rally, got up to speak again on Friday.

"LGBA is very strong now," she said. "At

Some people, students like J.P. and Deborah, went together to the microphone for support first, it was LAGO. It was hardly out there at all. It's important that LGBA be visible."

A crowd of about 130 applauded the courage of those coming out on stage. At first those in the crowd who were just there to eat lunch or enjoy the weather didn't seem to pay much attention to the events of the rally. Later, people showed more active support.

Ian Barnard, a graduate student in literature and member of Gays and Lesbians in Literature (GALL), said he thought the rally was a very good idea, both for those involved and for those watching.

"It was good for the people involved to feel
