Such reening basin towards the Ichernaya, at the extrem extratume at sea is deemed sufficient allowance. Such vessels would offer, at reduced rates, an excellent opportunity to thousands to reach this golden land. A clipper can bring as many passengers as a steamer of the same tonnage, and half a cargo of freight at the same time. If such a plan were well patronized, the clippers would make much money at half the present rates. What enterprising house will put on the first line.

MRS. PARTINGTON ON THE WORLD'S END .- "The dventitious people didn't bring the world's end about so easy as they thought," said Mrs. Partington smiling at the recollection of seeing a long-legged saint in a white cotton gown, on the top of a neighboring house the night before. "Yes," replied o Roger, gravely, "it did come to an end: it suspended for a little while, when a meeting of its creditors was it was thought best to let it go on, and it would come out all right enough." "You don't say so!" cried she, "well, that's the reason why my clock is half an hour slow, and I declare I couldn't account for it." There are certainly very proper instances, founded on peculiar individual merit and general public estimation, which may fully justify this expression of the praise of the press; but the moral effect produced in such cases of deserved tribute, is entirely frustrated, when decent care is not generally observed in the selection of proper objects deserving of similar expressions of public commendation.

The centre of the line is defended by the fort of Akhtiar, raised on a high point at the top of the town. At a little distance from the fort commence three ravines, descending to the roadstead. One, on the west, terminates by the Quarantine Bay; another, in the centre, cuts the town into two unequal parts; and the third, on the east, descends right to the north to form the port, which is the prolongation of that same ravine into the sea. In many instances of such eulogistic notice by the press, we have felt that the impression might prevail with many, that the effect intended was, by the adoption of a useful figure of speech, to reflect upon parties either destitute of merit, or deserving (if noticed at all) of public odium. Would it not be better and more expeditious for with them, and all the able-bodied inhabitants are would it not be better and more expectations for the citizens of the principal cities of this State to pay a nominal assessment upon their property, and immemodiately put on an independent People's line of steamers? A tax of two or three per cent, upon the real estate of San Francisco, Stockton, Sacramento and Marysville, would pay for as good a line of the control of the side of the sid and Marysville, would pay for as good a line of steamers as we have now plying between here and New York, and the fare could be put as low as $50, $75 and $100. These rates would keep the line running from five to eight years. This line, in conjunction with the proposed immigrant wagon road, would swell our population to at least one million, ere the railroad could be built. I need not say, what is self-evident to every one—that the small percent—from the place, it is said. Although these positions ere the railroad could be built. I need not say, what is self-evident to every one—that the small percentage which we would thus pay upon this project, would return to us in a fifty or one hundred fold ratio, in the enhancement of the value of our real estate. Now is a most propitious time for the undertaking, as thousands are being thrown out of employment in the East by the commercial crisis which is now upon them. These would gladly avail themselves of any cheap opportunity within their means to reach this, the laboring man's true Paradise.

Singular Unanimity.— The "Know Nothings" of Massachusetts will have all the State Officers, all the Senate, and 341 Members of the House; but their power in the latter body will be checked by the presence of seven antagonists—six Whigs and one Democrat. A good deal of fun is poked at the latter—he is asked to explain how he proposes to organize the Democratic Caucus—who will be chosen its Secretary, &c., &c., after he shall have been chosen to preside—what committee will conduct the President to chair—how the motions will be seconded, &c.

Now, we rather envy that solitary gentleman his position. He will not be likely to have his plans spoiled by indiscreet compatriots, nor his measures discredited by absurd speeches in their behalf; he will not be troubled by schisms or feuds in the party nor obliged to vote for measures he does not like in order to hold it together. We venture to predict that his party will legislate less mischief in Massashusetts this winter than in almost any other State of the Union.—N. Y. Tribune.

Sad Disappointment.—The Boston Journal of November 1st., says: "Last evening, at 7 o'clock, that being the appointed time for the ending of all sublumary things, according to the Millerite belief, some forty of the believers in that doctrine assembled at the corner of Fourth and C streets, South Boston, arrayed in white robes, and anxiously awaited the moment when they should make their grand ascension. They were disappointed in their expectations of 'going up.'"

The entire system of social life would be turned into a condition too horrible to be conceived.

But while, consequently, we think the cause for the libel suit in question was plain, and very reprehensible in the author, the verdict of the jury against the publishers appears windictive without sufficient cause. A nominal amount of damages against them would have been just, and sufficient for the purposes of vindication. They had no malice in their act. If damage has been done to the parties libelled, it was the author and not the publishers who should suffer. The law as charged by Judge Lake, may be, and probably is the law in such cases. We say that such attacks appear worse when coming from the clergy, than if emanating from others, because their Great Master set them a very different example. And when reprimanding even one of the most abandoned, administered it with mild caution "go and sin no more." It would be well for all, even for clergymen to remember this wear to be composed on the portion of the Savior's admonition "let him that is without sin, cast the first stone." We demy that even the public, or the clerical office, grants an impunity for designating either by lips or pen, an individual in such a manner as to draw down upon him the indignation of the community, so long as he does not openly, and grossly violate public morality and decency. Were such a case of home would be sacred. And were all who delight in, or think it their duty to make public all the faults which they may know or surmise that individuals are guilty of, endowed with the vision of an "Asmodents," with the privilege of exposing them to a public ever greedy to hear evil of the individuals of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of which it is composed—were the roofs and ceilings of the composition of the common in the mounts of the common Created source. He respects the message of the Infinity without always being able to analyze it, and often without knowing how he received it, or why he was selected for its utterance. But history yields in dignity to his WAR AMONG THE MINSTELS.—There were some differences about business matters among Christy's minstrels during the week previous to the sailing of the last steamer, and there was a purpose on the part of some of the company to prevent Mr. Christy's intended departure. Rather than be delayed he deposited $6,000 with an attorney to abide the event of a suit. ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—As a Combs, the young man arrested on the charge of having stolen goods worth several thousand dollars from the U. S. Bonded Warehouse, attempted to commit suicide in the station house on Friday night, by shooting himself with a pistol. The ball struck a rib over the heart, and glanced off, doing him no serious injury.

mer that the quality of present arrivals from the country is poor; and so far as regards the latter we believe that it is pretty clearly ascertained that no kinds but Sin-chun Teas can be there obtained to advantage, the quality of the bulk of which, it is well known in England, is inferior. Last year 5 ,000 packages new Oulons had arrived; now none are here, nor do we hear of any on the way from the Tea Country. We hear that the "Messenger Bird?" has about 220,000 fbs. of that kind from Fuhchow, from which port the "Samuel Russell" had also sailed for New York, leaving the small clipper "Mischief?" to load.

From Skanghae our advices extend to the 6th instant, when bits on London were quoted at 6s. Id., having touched 6s. 3d. a few days before; E. I. Campany's bilk 295 rupees per 8100; and patch of $255 per chest. The "Game Cock," "Tingqua," and "Union," were loading for New York. The additional settlements for the U. States had not been large; and we look for a decided stop to purchases upon the receipt of the last advices from New York.

Canada and the soil as deep, rich loam, covered with the rich musquite grass, and that portion of country embraced in the southern route, from El Paso to the mouth of the Gila, is grossly misrepresented by springs and perennial small streams of water, which form the source of the rivers of Texas. The timber is musquite ash, oak, and pecan, while the soil is a deep, rich loam, covered with the rich musquite grass, and that portion of country embraced in the southern route, from El Paso to the mouth of the Gila to Agua Caliente, or Warner's Ranch; and he is equally mistaken in regard to the character of the soil and country. From Red river, Texas, to El Paso, it is an elevated plain, abundantly watered by springs and perennial small streams of water, which form the source of the rivers of Texas. The timber is musquite ash, oak, and pecan, while the soil is a deep, rich loam, covered with the rich musquite grass, and that portion of country embraced in the southern route, from El Paso to the mouth of the Gila, far above the Pinos will and the soil as deep, rich loam, covered with the rich musquite grass, and that portion of country embraced in the southern route, from El Paso to the mouth of the gard to the character of the soil and econtry. The mineral wearur or sonory, and the territory acquired by the Gadsden Treaty, is too well known to require repetition, and none but those disposed to misrepresent, will question the richness of that immense mineral district which is now opened to American enterprise.

Another party left here this morning to make an accurate instrumental survey of the Railroad route to the Desert.—San Diego Herald.

ARRIVAL OF EMIGRANTS FROM TEXAS.—A friend writes us from San Ysabel, Dec. 5th, that Capt. Wm. B. McKinley, who has made three trips across the country, has just arrived at that place with his party, consissing of twenty men, all in good health. They have one hundred head of cattle, horses and mules. They report plenty of water on the Desert, and also on the whole route from Port Lavacca in Texas, to this place, although in some places the grass was rather scarce.

They had no difficulty with Indians. They passed a party of Americans, (probably Dunbar's party) going to Santa Cruz, over the new purchase. Capt. McKinley's party are mostly intelligent farmers and traders, who come to settle permanently in Southern California.

Our correspondent also informs us that five men, three Americans, one Frenchman and a German, were killed by the Apaches in August last, while traveling from Tueson to Tubac. A friend of the persons murdered applied to the Commandante of Tubac for men to assist in burying their dead. The next day the Commandante, without the knowledge of any of the people who had applied to him, sent out six soldiers with orders to burn the bodies of any Mexicans of the party, and bury their bones, but to leave the other bodies unburned and unburied.—S. D. Herald.

TEJON ROAD.—This work is nearly completed, and the subscribers are called upon to pay the amount of aslowing:

A large majority of our citizens, we feel assured, are in favor of a division, although there is some difference of opinion as regards the dividing line. That will be a question for our members of the Legislature to discuss at the proper time, and not for us. The importance of a division was never more apparent than at this time, from the fact that each succeeding Legislature have utterly failed to pass laws suited to the wants of the people in the southern portion of the State.

The necessity for a separation is conceded even by those who have heretofore opposed this measure, and that the future prosperity or both sections would be advanced, few will question. A large portion of the northern section is adapted only to mining and lumbering pursuits, which are so widely different from the southern counties, where stock raising and agriculture is the main employment of the people, that it is a matter of impossibility to pass laws suited to each without conflicting with the other.

We believe in all sincerity that a separation would ing with the other.

We believe in all sincerity that a separation would have been accomplished long since but for the officious interference of politicians, who are always attempting to make capital out of the wants of the people. We wish it to be distinctly understood that those who reside here never advocated a division on any other grounds than the actual necessities of the citizens in the

and with a success we deeply regret.

Amusements at Los Angeles.—The present lovely weather is affording to our Catholic citizens favorable facilities for the celebration of their church festivals, commencing on Friday last; High Mass, processions, fire-works, &c., &c., have filled up the time, and general hilarity has prevailed.

Tuesday was the day of our lady of Guadalupe, the patron saint of our city.

On Saturday last, a bull and bear fight came off, in which Bruin was killed; the whole affair was a wretched concern; the bear was in miserable plight from confinement, and suffering with a broken jaw; his death was therefore easily effected by the bull, and the intellectual crowd dispersed, doubtless much improved by the artis-RUMORED RISING IN SONORA.-We have given,

When shall we three meet again?

When shall we three meet again?

Oft shall glowing hope expire,

Oft shall death and sorrow reign

Ere we three shall meet again.

Though in distant lands we sigh,

Parch'd beneath a hostile sky;

Though the deep between us rolls;

Friendship shall unite our souls;

titll in Fancy's rich domain

Oft shall we three meet again.

When the dream of life is fled,

When its wasted lamps are dead;

When in cold oblivion's shade,

Geauty, power, and fame are laid;

Where immortal spirits reign,

There shall we three meet again.

A Night in Florence.

This beautiful description from an old book—Observations on Italy, by the late John Bell, Fellow of the R. C. of Surgeons, Edinburgh—reminds one of the finest passages of Mrs. Radcliffe's picture writing:

"Traversing the great centre of the city, along streets darkened from the height of the buildings, passed along these immense edifices with strange feelings of solitude, as if in a dream, as if the gay and peopled world had vanished, and these gloomy moments of the past alone remained. It was night, and in this distant spot not a soul was stirring, not a footwas heard, when, on crossing a narrow alley, the prospect suddenly opened, and the slanting rays of the full moon, falling with a softened light among the magnificent monuments of ancient times, displayed a splendid scene.

At that moment the tower bell of the prison struck loud and long, tolling with a slow and swinging motion, seeming, from the effect of reverberation, to cover and fill the whole city; even in the day this bell is distinguished from any I ever heard; but in the dead silence of the night it sounded full and solemn. Impressed by the feelings excited by the gran.

The silence of the night was unbroken, save by an occasional distant sound, arising sensity wantered of. The sighted of the night was unbroken, save by an occasional distant sound, arising from the busiest quarter of the city, or from time to time by the song of the nightingale, which reached me from the rich and beautiful gardens that skirt the walls of Florence, recalling to my mind the voice of that sweet bird, as I heard it when detained in the narrow valley of the gloomy Arco. I remember how its little song through the long melancholy of the night, a lengthened oft repeated note, which still came floating on the air like a light sleep. Involved in these musings of lulled and idle thought, I suddenly beheld in the distance, issuing from the portals of a large edifice forms invested in black, bearing torches, which, casting a decrened shadow around rendered.

The unique experience of the author as a politica prisoner is detailed at length, from his arrest in Dublin in 1848, to his escape from Australia in 1853.
