

The Bridge of Cabrillo leads to the fairy palaces of the Panama-California Exposition, at San Diego in 1915. Balboa Park will then be a wonder-garden as well as a practical demonstration of the value of an ideal climate.

THE EXPOSITION LINE

California Invitation Day

SEPTEMBER 10, 1913

CALIFORNIA always invites, but this is a Special Invitation to YOU. Just now California stands at the threshold of a new world relationship which means fresh growth and still greater prosperity. Come and share it with us, and live where every month of the twelve means health and happiness in the great outdoors.

You'd like to know more about California? Write me what subject interests you particularly. I know someone who will be glad to tell you about it. But come this fall if you can, as the Southern Pacific will have low Colonist tickets on sale between September 25th and October 10th. Ask your nearest railroad agent.

Sign your name only. For written message, 2-cent stamp required

THE UNDISCOVERED.

Fair California! I am blessed in thee;
I've known thy fruited hills, thy rivers
bright,
The wide prairie with its harvests white Between the snow-kept summits and the sea;
Beheld thy golden streams yield treasures
free,
Saw mountains vast, and sea cliffs loom upright,
Dwelt in the redwood's soft and solemn light,
And saw the pride of earth—Yosemite,
Life is not long enough, desired land,
Thy varied mysteries to make my own;
White waters foaming in lone canyons grand,
Green pastures luring bees in dells un-
startled stray,
Green pastures luring bees in dells unknown—
The Undiscovered, far and far away.
—[Lillian H. Bailey, in Sunset.