EXHIBIT OF ROLLING STONE COVERS SLATED JUNE 2-4 AT UCSD'S PRICE CENTER

Thirty years of popular culture from the Rolling Stones and Linda Ronstadt to U2 and Madonna are chronicled in The Rolling Stone Covers Tour, a multi-media retrospective of classic and current Rolling Stone covers and artifacts which will go on display June 2-4 in the Price Center Ballroom at the University of California, San Diego.

Admission is free and open to the public. The multi-media exhibit, featuring more than 250 landmark covers, is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Visitors to the exhibit will be given a commemorative booklet featuring every Rolling Stone cover over the past 30 years.

Presented by AT&T in partnership with the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame + Museum, the exhibit also includes an assortment of objects from the Hall of Fame's renowned permanent collection, including a variety of historical documents and photographs.

Throughout its history, Rolling Stone has been known as a leading innovator in photography and design. The exhibit showcases the magazine's celebrated covers, from the first black and white newsprint issue featuring John Lennon to Annie Leibovitz's cover treatments of the '70's and 80's to the striking cover designs of the '90's by the magazine's chief photographer, Mark Seliger. The exhibit pays tribute to the photographers who shared their creative vision with the magazine to develop what has become known as the "Rolling Stone style," as well as the art directors who elevated magazine cover design to an art form.
