Hail! Jiwaka and Hela

Papua New Guinea has added two new provinces of Hela and Jiwaka to the constituent and administrative structures of the country.

Parliament on July 14 voted unanimously (83 votes to 1) to create the new provinces, splitting the Southern Highlands and Western Highlands Provinces respectively.

This brings to 22, the number of Provinces in the country including the National Capital District.

This means that the provincial boundaries of the new Provinces need to be clearly defined before the provincial status of Hela and Jiwaka provinces take full effect in 2012.

The gas-rich western region of the Southern Highlands will become the new Hela province, while the rich-agriculture Waghi valley, Jimi and Kambia areas will become the Jiwaka Province.

Prime Minister, Grand Chief Sir Michael Somare has been praised by political and community leaders from both regions for pushing to create the two provinces.

The daily newspapers reported the Southern Highlands Governor, Hon. Anderson Agiru as saying; "This is the greatest gift the Grand Chief will have given to Hela and Jiwaka people in the final stages of his political career.

"Today is the date with destiny for Hela and Jiwaka. I am very happy to be part of the National Alliance Government that has honoured its commitment."

Provincial Affairs Minister, Hon. Job Pomat has said an interim administration will be in place for the new provinces until the 2012 national elections, when they will have their own administrations.

People in Hela and Jiwaka have expressed their jubilation with widespread celebrations in their respective regions, as well as in other areas of the country. ■

Once again warrior Moide proudly took part in the Remembrance Day activities on July 23, 2009 in the National Capital District, more than 60 years after the conflict. Moide was 17 years old when he fought the war with fellow Papua New Guineans and Allied Forces.

A team of National Forest Authority officers has undertaken an awareness Workshop on forestry and climate change in Port Moresby recently.

The Workshop was intended to allow forestry officers to share their knowledge, experience and insight on forest and climate change in PNG, and sustainable forest management in addressing mitigation and adaptation challenges and opportunities with special focus on Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation (REDD).

The Forest Authority conducted this Workshop as an awareness for its officers, especially those in the provinces to have a fair idea about climate change and its implications

Conducted on the theme of; Forest and Climate Change – Time for Change in the Forestry Sector, the Workshop objectives included the following;

- Highlighting the science of climate change (what it is and what causes it)

- Highlighting some of the possible drivers of climate change (timber logging, subsistence shifting cultivation, agriculture and what possible mitigation and adaptation measures to take.

- Discussing accepted definitions for 'forest', 'deforestation' and 'degradation' for purposes of assessing and monitoring effects of climate change within the possible REDD initiatives.

- Discussing the PNG REDD roadmap (2008 December draft) and the Bali roadmap.

- Discussing the draft National Climate Change Policy and the draft Forest and Climate Change Policy framework for Action; and

- Familiarizing staff with the green house gas (GHG) inventory questionnaires and software.

Also in attendance were officers from the Office of Climate Change and Environmental Sustainability, Department of Environment and Conservation, Department of Agriculture and Livestock, the Forest Industry Association, National Research Institute, donor partners which included United Nations Development Programme, AusAID, European Union, and the Japanese Embassy. ■

Work On The Solomon Islands New High Commission Office Commences

Construction work on the new Solomon Islands High Commission Chancery building complex in Port Moresby has already started.

The Chancery is in the diplomatic hub in Port Moresby and located next to the British High Commission and opposite the Indonesian Embassy.

It is also within walking distances to other diplomatic missions such as the Australian High Commission, New Zealand High Commission, and other government departments and institutions.

Solomon Islands High Commissioner to Papua New Guinea, Bernard Bata'anisia, confirmed that work has already started since April this year.

Recently, the Solomon Islands Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs & External Trade, George Hiele and other Government officials were in Port Moresby and saw the progress of the Chancery construction.

The construction work is being done by China Railway Construction and Engineering Group (PNG Limited), while the design work has been done by local Papua New Guinea company, the Archscape Group, with inputs from the Solomon Islands

Ministry of Infrastructure and Development.

The building complex will comprise of the main Chancery building with diplomatic offices, residential units for its diplomatic staff as well as recreational hall.

It is anticipated that the work on the new Chancery building will be completed sometimes in the first half of next year, 2010.

The Solomon Islands High Commission is currently operating from a rented unit in Waigani.

The total cost of the Chancery building is about K7.4 million provided under the Papua New Guinea Government Development Assistance Programme to Solomon Islands. ■

PM Reaffirms Support For Parliamentary Democracy

Prim Minister, Sir Michael Somare, has reminded the Opposition that he is also a staunch advocate of parliamentary democracy, which has also helped shape Papua New Guinea.

"Of course I support parliamentary democracy, an independent judiciary and the freedom of the press. Of course my government is accountable to our people and constituencies.

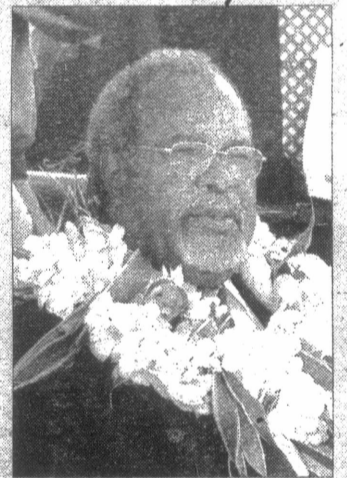

"This is why we have a thriving and robust Parliamentary democracy in PNG," Sir Michael Somare said in response to a statement by the Leader of the Opposition.

The Prime Minister said Sir Mekere's insinuation that he (Sir Michael) was destroying parliamentary democracy by supporting the Fiji regime was not only shallow but exposed his lack of understanding of the underlying issues in that PSG member country.

Sir Michael said the Fiji issue was quite challenging at the sub-regional (MSG) regional (PIF) and the international arena.

PNG, Solomon Islands and the FLINKS were invited to Port Vila by the current chair of MSG and Prime Minister of Vanuatu for a special summit on the Fijian situation.

Commodore Bainimarama came and presented his case to the other MSG leaders in Port Vila, including his July 1 public announcement of the roadmap he had set for Fiji.

"We used the opportunity to also implore on him to consider the Fijian people and economy," he said.

Sir Michael asked whether that constituted support for the Fijian regime.

He said the least the MSG could do for the Fijian people was for the chair to present what Commodore Bainamarama said in Port Vila at the Cairns meeting of the PIF leaders next month.

"I have maintained that to totally disengage with the regime would be disastrous for the majority of the Fijian people making it extremely hard for Fiji to return to any form of normality or decent rule of law.

"Maybe that's what Sir Mekere and his Opposition wants.

"But I think as the bigger MSG brother, we have to explore all avenues to try to assist them, Sir Michael said." ■

GOOD GOVERNANCE

Public Solicitor And NSO Get More Powers

The Offices of Public Solicitor and the National Statistician have acquired more powers to effectively carry out their respective functions.

The instruments for the delegation of powers were signed and transferred to the Public Solicitor, Mr Fraser Pitpit and the National Statistician, Mr Nick Suvulo by the Acting Secretary of the Department of Personnel Management, Mr John Kali after the completion of a devolution exercise.

The schedule of limited powers to the respective agencies, include, organisation structure, recruitment, training, discipline, termination of employment, retrenchment and the general human resource development.

"The human resource management is now in the hands of the National Statistics Office and Office of Public Solicitor," Mr Kali said.

The Department of Personnel has been exercising these powers since independence, and it is believed that the devolution exercise was the way forward to promoting accountability, responsibility, efficiency and productivity in the public service.

Mr Kali stressed the need to have these powers properly exercised, and at the same time, to be used reasonably, responsibly, justly and fairly.

Mr Kali congratulated Messrs Pitpit and Suvulo and reminded them not to 'pass the buck' or blame the Department of Personnel Management for their actions.

Most government departments and provincial administrations have now completed the devolution exercise.

Meanwhile, Mr Pitpit, commended the Department of Personnel Management for their foresight in ensuring that his Office was given more powers to effectively carry out its responsibilities, which among others, include, provision of free legal service to the public. ■

PSC Reviews Corporate Plan

The Public Service Commission has reviewed its five-year corporate plan for 2009 to 2013 at a recent consultation Workshop at the PNG Institute of Public Administration.

The main objective of the Workshop was to give opportunity to all stakeholders to comment on the core functions of the Commission as stipulated under Section 191 and 193 of the National Constitution and Section 13, 18 and 19 of Public Services Management Act, 1995 (as amended).

These core functions include the review was on personal matters, through the administrative appeals system, review of state services and organisational matters (excluding PNG Defence Force), and appointment and revocation of appointment of Departmental Heads, Provincial Administrators and Chief Executive Officers and ex-officio members of various Boards and statutory bodies.

PSC Chairman, Mr Rigo Lua said that views, ideas and opinions obtained from the Workshop would be used to formulate the Commission's new corporate plan for the next five years.

He said the Commission's last five-year corporate plan was devised in 2004 and that it had already served its purpose till the end of last year.

"The aims, objectives and visions of the last corporate plan have already served their purposes. It is now time for use to strategize and focus our attention on the new vision and mission of the Commission for the next five years," Mr Lua said.

He said the Workshop was the first of its kind for the Commission to involve all stakeholders to re-define its vision and mission since its inception in 1986 and the stakeholders invited to participate included Departmental Heads, Provincial Administrators and Chief Executive Officers and ex-officio members of various Boards and statutory bodies. ■

Moraitis Donates Books To UPNG Library

Australian High Commissioner to PNG, Chris Moraitis, has donated two indigenous reference books and a series of DVDs to the Michael Somare Library of the University of Papua New Guinea, marking the start of activities for the annual NAIDOC Week.

The two books presented were: "The Little Red Yellow Black Book" which explores Australia's rich indigenous cultures and, "Contemporary Aboriginal Art", which provides a complete guide to Australia's indigenous art work.

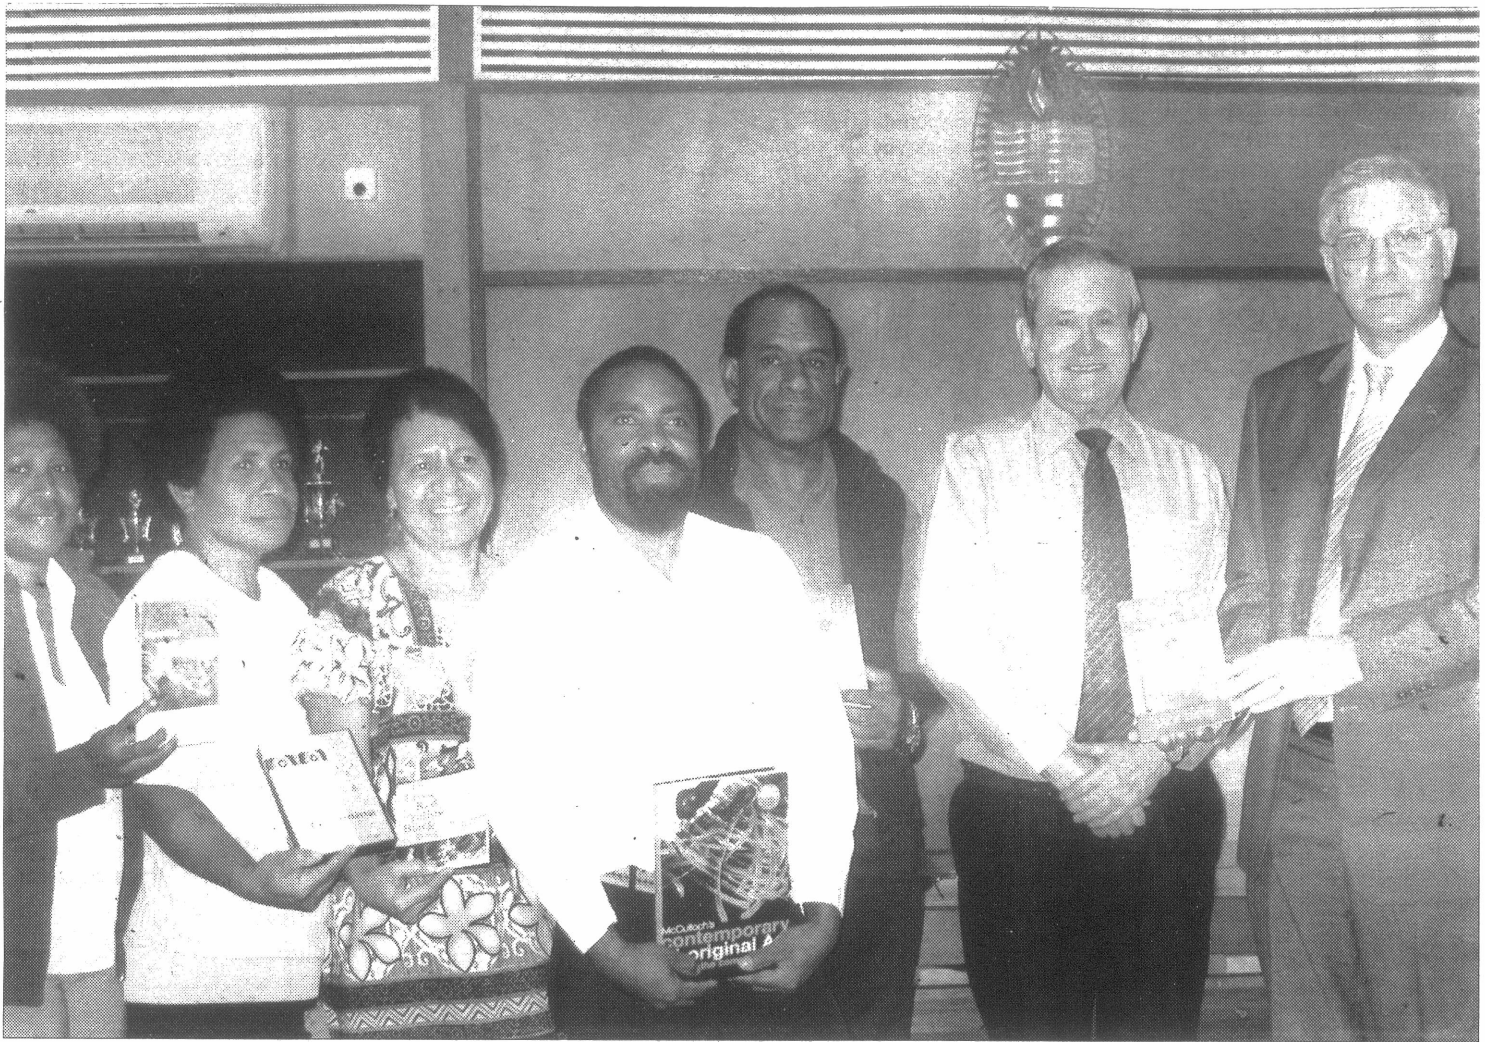

The donation ensures that Australia's important indigenous history and culture is accessible to students and other users of the library.

Mr Moraitis handed over the books to Vice Chancellor, Professor Ross Hynes and said such an initiative would assist youths of Australia and PNG to realise and appreciate linkages in their contemporary cultures.

"It's a complex story for a long story...It strengthens the fate of our relationship through the existing indigenous cultural ties and gives meaning to our daily operations," Mr Moraitis said in reference to NAIDOC Week which showcases the history, culture and achievements and contribution of indigenous and Torres Strait Islanders.

Prof. Ross Hynes thanked Mr Moraitis for taking the step forward to strengthen the traditional relationship of over 12,000 years at the intellectual level.

He said however, that it is not a new concept as both countries have long term ecological, fauna and flora connections dating back to the ice age period.

Prof. Hynes thanked Mr Moraitis for having the perception to develop UPNG as the premier institution in the Pacific through a review approach taken by the governments of both countries.

Mr Moraitis said previously a cultural exhibition, was held in Western Province and received praise from Governor, Dr Bob Danaya who encouraged such activities to continue.

Mr Moraitis added that UPNG as part of its long term plan will be utilised to showcase the cultures of

PNG as 'it is a premier university in the South Pacific.'

The Australian High Commission has organised various activities to mark NAIDOC Week. ■

US Embassy Donates Computers To Children

Chargé d'Affaires Paul Berg handing the computers to staff and students of the Children's University of Music & Art at Kaugere settlement in Port Moresby recently.

The United States Embassy has donated computers to the Children's University of Music and Art (CUMA) at Kaugere settlement in Port Moresby.

CUMA is a "school fee free" Community School designed to educate children in Kaugere settlement and surrounding areas, who do not attend school because their families are financially disadvantaged.

Chargé d'Affaires, Paul Berg when handing over the computers encouraged the students to make good use of the computers.

"The embassy is happy to assist your school with computers to help you learn, and one day you can contribute to the development of this great country, Papua New Guinea," he said.

CUMA School Coordinator, Mrs. Lydia Kailap thanked the Embassy and said: "We commenced classes at the beginning of 2009 with an enrollment of 140 children, aged from 2 years to 14 years. Demand has increased to include teenagers and adults, and we are awaiting the expansion of our facilities in order to teach them effectively. These children have never been to school; and are unlikely to have ever gone to a school if it were not for the advent of CUMA. The computers will go a long way in the children's education."

As a token of appreciation, the students presented Mr. Berg with a packet of greeting cards produced by their Art Teacher, Mr. Peter Kailap. ■

Two Win US Scholarship

Two Papua New Guineans have been awarded the United States most prestigious Fulbright and Humphrey educational exchange program grants.

Ms. Krufinta Bun will be studying for a Master's Degree in epidemiology at the Case Western Reserve University in Ohio under the Fulbright program.

Pro-Vice Chancellor of the University of Papua New Guinea, Professor Ken Sumbuk will undertake planning and administration studies at the Vanderbilt University in Tennessee under the Hubert Humphrey Fellowship Program.

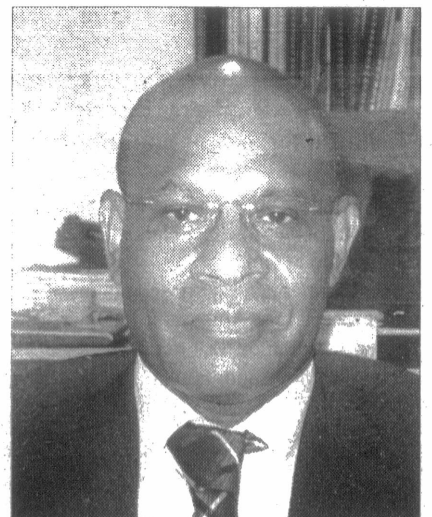

Professor Sumbuk is the only candidate to represent the entire Pacific to undertake the Humphrey fellowship program for a one-year period.

When announcing the awardees, out-going US Ambassador to PNG, Leslie Rowe said: "I am very proud that we successfully launched the Fulbright and Humphrey grants, our most prestigious educational exchange programs in Papua New Guinea."

She congratulated them for being accepted at two of America's finest universities.

Meanwhile, a group of sixteen students from the Stanford University in California has arrived in Port Moresby to serve as volunteers for two months on Karkar island in the Madang Province. ■

Japan Funds Infrastructure On Bougainville

The Government of Japan is providing K88 million for the construction of bridges along the Bougainville Coastal Trunk Road under its grant aid assistance program.

A number of bridges will be constructed in three phases and will be completed in 2013.

Minister for Foreign Affairs Trade and Immigration, Hon. Sam Abal and Japanese Ambassador to Papua New Guinea, Mr Hajime Nishiyama signed the Exchange of Notes last month for the execution of the project.

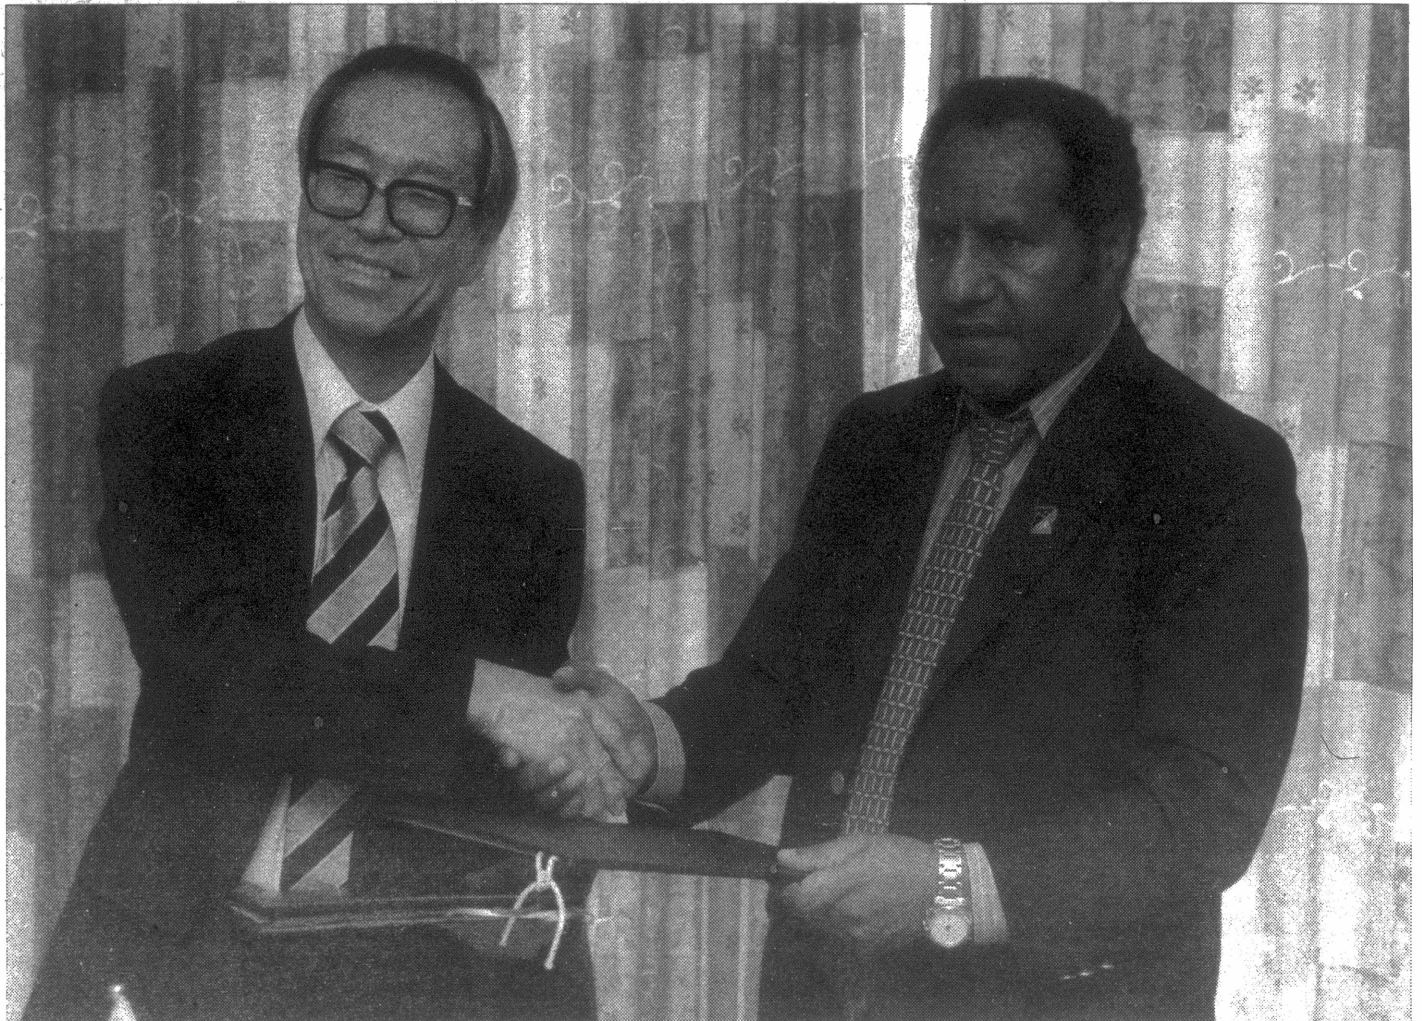

The objective of the project is to construct 15 bridges to cross the rivers on the Coastal Trunk Road connecting Kokopau and Arawa.

Ambassador Nishiyama said it was also important that these bridges were re-established in order to generate economic development and transport infrastructure.

The project will be implemented by Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), Department of National Planning and Monitoring, Department of Works and the Autonomous Bougainville Government.

Meanwhile, Minister Abal, thanked the Government of Japan for the continued assistance to the development of Papua New Guinea.

Japan and Papua New Guinea had previously executed the Exchange of Notes for the Wewak Jetty Project in 2008 at a cost of K12.6 million, a further K27.6 million in 2008 for the rehabilitation work on the Markham bridge, and allocated initial funding of K1.43 million for the design phase of the 15 bridges on Bougainville. ■

Marat For More Judges In Judiciary

There are plans now to amend the law governing the number of Judges in the judiciary to be increased from the current number of 25 serving judges to 30 or more.

Attorney General and Justice Minister, Dr Allan Marat, who is also the Judicial and Legal Services Commission Chairman recently revealed this to the media.

Dr Marat has said, the Act governing the ceiling for Judges was 25 but the Judicial and Legal Services Commission was considering changes to the Act so that more judges are appointed to the bench to meet the growing demand to the higher court system.

At present there are 19 National and Supreme Court Judges and three acting Judges of the National Court.

Officials Prepare For Cairns Forum Meeting

A series of meetings of senior officials from Pacific Islands Forum countries preparing for the Forum Leaders' meeting in Cairns in early August was undertaken in mid-July at the Forum Secretariat Offices in Suva, Fiji.

These meetings included the Pacific Plan Action Committee (PPAC) meeting and the pre-Forum session of the Forum Officials Committee (FOC), the Governing Council of the Pacific Islands Forum Secretariat.

In his opening remarks to the Small Island States, (SIS) Officials meeting, Secretary General of the Pacific Islands Forum Secretariat, Tuiloma Neroni Slade noted that this was the first time that an SIS Officials meeting is being held before PPAC and FOC.

SIS members include the Cook Islands, Kiribati, Niue, Nauru, Palau, Tuvalu and Marshall Islands. "We hope in taking this approach, SIS issues will feature prominently and more explicitly in the PPAC discussions and by extension contribute to the formulation of priorities for consideration by our Leaders as they deliberate on our course of action in the coming year," said Mr Slade.

He told the SIS officials meeting: "A key factor underlying the successful implementation of resolutions of the SIS Leaders is strong national, sub-regional and regional commitments.

"Without these commitments, there is little that SIS can achieve to progress agreed and collective initiatives that address long outstanding challenges faced by SIS.

"SIS, being the smallest countries of the Forum membership, should value greatly collective initiatives to support their development challenges," he said.

Transportation, labour mobility, energy including bulk procurement, climate change and development financing, continue to be high priority for the Small Island States.

"These are issues which continue to stretch our limited social and economic capacities on the one hand, yet on the other, provide the necessary leverages for a more sustainable livelihood at both national and regional levels.

"In the past year, the onslaught of the global economic and financial crisis adds another dimension that heightens the need for us to rethink and consolidate our collective efforts to address these issues," Mr Slade said.

Mr Slade also told the SIS officials that the Forum Secretariat will continue to support the positions of SIS Desk Officers in the SIS member countries.

"The placement of SIS Desk Officers in-country as, I believe, strengthened the Secretariat's presence and engagement at the national level. ■

National Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution

In recent years, there has been recognition by the judiciary for the need to introduce mediation and other forms of Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) into the National Court.

The need for mediation and other forms of ADR in Papua New Guinea was driven by the acknowledgement by the Judiciary and legal practitioners that a large number of disputes can be resolved out of Court by the parties in direct negotiations or through the involvement of a neutral third party.

This was coupled with the fact that there are a large backlog of cases in the National Court awaiting trial, many of which are suitable for resolution without the Court's involvement.

In 2000, the then Chief Justice, Sir Arnold Amet, established the ADR Committee and appointed His Honour Justice Ambeng Kandakasi as the Chairman. Through the hard work of the Committee, Parliament recently passed and the Speaker of Parliament certified on 8 August 2008, the National Court (Amendment) Act (the Act). The Act amends the National Court Act and mandates the National Court to order mediation at any stage of a proceeding, with or without the consent of the parties. It also empowers the Court to provide procedures for Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) through mediation and other forms of ADR and related purposes.

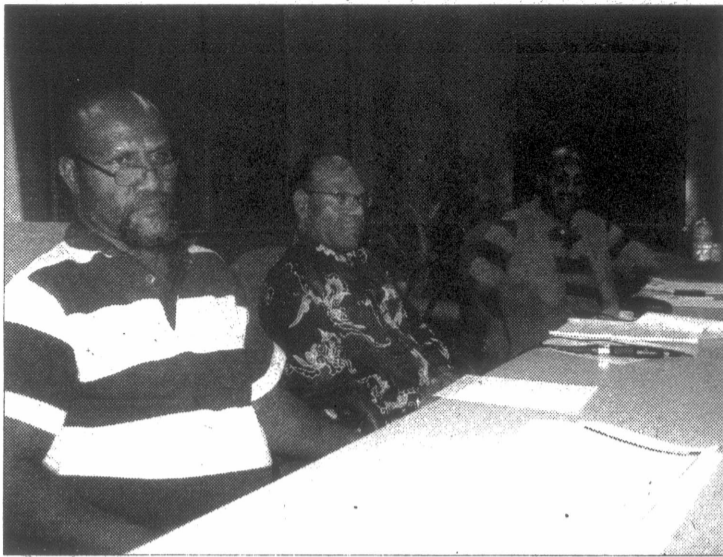

What is mediation?

Mediation is a process in which the parties to a dispute, with the assistance of a neutral third party (the mediator), identify the disputed issues, develop options, consider alternatives and endeavour to reach an agreement. The mediator has no advisory or determinative role in regard to the content of the dispute or the outcome of its resolution, but may advise on or determine the process of mediation whereby resolution is attempted.

Use of mediation and other forms of ADR in other jurisdictions

Mediation for resolving commercial disputes has been around for a very long time. For example, in England in 1353, there were groups of people known as 'Mediators in Question' who mediated problems between merchants as to whether wool was marketable. Since the 1970's in Australia, there has been provision for different forms of mediation in family law involving the family Court, Legal Aid Commission and Community justice centres. These were set in motion by developments in England and the United States of America. Mediation now exists in most jurisdictions at the State and Federal level in Australia and other parts of the world. Mediation is also used in many tribunals in Australia.

Mediation is a very important part of the culture in Papua New Guinea from time immemorial. It is used in many different levels of society, including the settlement of customary disputes. The Constitution and the decisions of both the Supreme and National Courts of Justice acknowledge this in many of their decisions.

Chairman of the ADR Committee, Justice Ambeng Kandakasi (centre) speaking at a recent Government radio Talkback programme with lawyers, Mr. Andrew Kwimberi and Mr. Nibert Kubak.

What are the benefits of mediation?

There are many benefits to mediation which is a form of ADR. They include the following:

- The parties get to resolve the dispute quickly and settlement is final. The responsibility and authority for coming to an agreement remain with the people who have the conflict. The dispute is viewed as a problem to be solved. The mediator does not make the decisions, and the parties therefore avoid the risk of proceeding to trial where the outcome is determined by a judge.

- Mediation examines the underlying causes of the problem and looks at what solutions best suit a party's unique needs.

- Business and commercial partners, supervisors and their employees, 'neighbours divorcing parents and family members have to continue to deal with each other cooperatively. Going to court can divide people and increase hostility. Mediation looks to the future. It can help to end the problem, not the relationship.

- Participants in mediation often report higher satisfaction rates than parties who proceed to trial. Because of their active involvement, parties tend to have a higher commitment to upholding the settlement than parties who have a judge decide for them.

- For many individual and other parties, mediation can be a less intimidating process than going to court. It is intended that the mediation rules will allow flexibility so that parties can find the best path to agreement.

- Despite the significant advances being made in the Commercial List, several years may pass before some cases in other lists proceed to trial. A mediated agreement may be obtained in a couple of hours or in sessions over a few weeks.

- The court process can be very expensive, and costs can exceed benefits. It may be more important to apply that money to solving the problem, to repairing damages, or to pay someone back. Even a partial settlement can lessen subsequent litigation fees.

- Unlike most court cases, which are matters of public record, most mediations are confidential.

The work currently being undertaken by the ADR Committee

- In mid 2008, His Honour Chief

Justice, Sir Salamo Injia (in his role then as Acting Chief Justice) tasked Justice Kandakasi to take charge of the ADR/Mediation Track in the National Court and gave a clear mandate to the ADR Committee to take all steps necessary to fully implement mediation and other forms of ADR. The mandate given to the ADR Committee has been considerable with it being tasked to address a wide area of issues, including:

- The development of Mediation Rules and rules for other forms of ADR, standards and guidelines;

- Establishment of other forms of ADR;

- Formulate a training program for judicial and non-judicial staff in mediation and other forms of ADR;

- Formulate a program for the selection and training of mediators and providers of other forms of ADR

- Rules governing the training and accreditation of mediators and providers of other forms of ADR; and

- Liaison with the Court Building, Infrastructure and Facilities Committee regarding the construction of the Mediation Centre.

- The Mediation Rules, which are being drafted by the Committee will govern two areas. Firstly, rules are being drafted to guide the actual conduct of mediation as well as mediator standards and guidelines. Secondly, court rules are being drafted to assist in the ordering of mediation and other forms of ADR as well as for the enforcement of agreements (where agreement is reached) through those means.

Disputes which will be referred to mediation

- Under the Act, at any stage of a proceeding the National Court may, whether with or without the consent of the parties, order that the proceeding (or a part of the proceeding) be referred to mediation. What this means is that any type of dispute can be referred to mediation. Accordingly, matters ranging from complex commercial transactions, debt collection, family law, maritime, customary land ownership, and employment cases can all be mediated. There is no limitation on the matters that can be mediated and so the list is endless. Alternatively, the National Court may order that a proceeding or any part of it to be inquired into and resolved by an appropriately qualified and experienced person or an expert in the issue.

When will mediation start?

- The ADR Committee is currently drafting the Mediation Rules, which will be submitted to the Chief Justice and his fellow Judges for their consideration and adoption. When the Chief Justice and Judges decide to adopt the relevant rules, they will become operational on a date to be announced. It is intended that all of this will take place before the end of this year. Once the rules become operational, it is anticipated that mediation will be fully functional by the end of this year. Although the mediation rules have not been finalized, it should be noted that mediation has already commenced. For example, mediation has already been used to help resolve a number of matters on the Courts' list. One of the largest claims, which involves the former member of the PNG Defence Force against the State, has been locked in litigation for almost two decades, however, it is now being mediated with the consent of the parties. If resolution of the dispute is successful it will end years of expensive litigation, loss pain and anxiety of waiting for a resolution that is acceptable to all of the parties and which finally determines the proceedings.

Who is the mediator and what is their role?

- The role of the mediator is to assist the parties and their lawyers to identify the real issues in dispute, develop options, consider alternatives and endeavour to enable the parties to reach a resolution of the whole of part of the dispute. The parties may agree to appoint a mediator of their choice from an accredited list of mediators. Where the parties fail to reach on a suitable mediator, one will be appointed by the Court.

- It is important to note that the mediator does not have the power or authority to make any directions which may bind the parties, nor does the mediator have the power to make a determination of the issues.

Do the issues discussed at the mediation remain confidential?

- Yes, What this means is that nothing done or said at the mediation may be admitted in the Court proceeding, or any other proceeding. The only exception to this is where the parties agree in writing to allow those discussions to be used outside the mediation.

What can be resolved at mediation?

- If part or the whole of the issues in dispute in the proceeding are resolved, the Court may with the consent of the parties, record those terms of a consent order. If the parties do not reach any agreement at mediation, the matter will return to the Court for progression to trial.

The current members of the ADR Committee and outside assistance

- The composition of the ADR Committee has changed somewhat in recent years, however, Justice Kandakasi remains as Chairman. The current Committee members are Acting Justice Regina Sagu (who before being appointed as an acting Judge was the Chief Magistrate's nominee), Professor John Luluaki

(Dean of Law School, UPNG), Mr Ron Silovo (NJSS Secretary), Mr Andrew Kwimberi (Principal, Kwimberi Lawyer), Ms Faith Barton (Lawyer, Office of the Solicitor General), Mr Graham Ellis SC (Advisor to the Office of the Solicitor General), Mr Jeff Shepherd (Partner, Blake Dawson) and Mr Derek Wood (Partner, Blake Dawson).

- The Committee is very grateful for the continued active and meaningful participation of each of the Committee members and in particular the private lawyers who have given their time free of charge. The Committee wishes to express its gratitude to the firms of Kwimberi Lawyers and Blake Dawson Lawyers for allowing their respective partners, Mr Andrew Kwimberi and Messrs Jeff Shephard and Derek Wood to participate in the Committee in the way they have.

- The cost of the ADR Committee and the introduction of mediation and other forms of ADR are being funded by the National Government through the PNG Judiciary's budgetary allocations. Expert advice is also being provided by outside sources including assistance from Professor Nadja Alexander who is Professor and Co-Director of the Conflict Resolution Program for Peace and Conflict Studies in Australia. Professor Alexander is also a renowned mediator and leader in the field of mediation. The ADR Committee also wishes to express its gratitude to Federal Court of Australia, the Supreme Court and Court of Appeal of Victoria and other outside experts and agencies, which have and are assisting in bringing mediation and other forms of ADR to the National Court. At this juncture the Committee expresses its gratitude to the World Bank, which is looking at the possibility of funding some of the activities the Committee has identified to undertake for an effective introduction and implementation of mediation and other forms of ADR.

Training

- In the coming months, it is expected that several awareness workshops on mediation will be conducted. In addition, training for prospective mediators will be conducted. Any interested lawyers may obtain further details from the Committee through Justice Kandakasi's Private Secretary, Ms Jean Kalimo on telephone: 324 5733.

Conclusion

- The introduction of mediation and other forms of ADR to the National Court will herald a new era in the resolution of many court proceedings and other disputes. It is anticipated that mediation and other forms of ADR will assist all parties to a dispute in identifying the real issues in dispute. It is intended that mediation and the other forms of ADR will bring about a change in the mindset of litigating parties and their lawyers, so that the strengths and weaknesses of a case are identified whereby many disputes are resolved without the added expenses, time and effort in progressing a matter to trial. ■

HEALTH

Pacific Health Ministers Reaffirm HIV Commitment

Pacific Health Ministers have reaffirmed their commitment to the goals of preventing HIV transmission and achieving universal access to treatment, care and support for people living with HIV.

The Health Ministers have also recognised the progress made in the region over the past two years since the Vanuatu commitment to scale up activities in order to reach this goal, and endorsed a number of new strategies for action.

The Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC) reported to Ministers recent meeting in Madang that the Pacific's experience of HIV remains a public health priority. Other Pacific Island countries and territories (PICTs) have a low prevalence of HIV.

Recent SPC and World Health Organisation (WHO) studies show the region is increasingly vulnerable to a rapid spread of the virus, due to socio-economic and health factors such as gender inequality and gender based violence, low rates of condom use and high rates of other sexually transmissible infections (STIs).

In response to these trends and new risk factors, SPC's Public Health Division Manager, Dr Thierry

Jubeau, said important progress has been achieved in areas such as human rights, with work on the adaptation of universal legislation to the Pacific, and mainstreaming of gender into HIV programming.

The Pacific Regional Strategy on HIV was extended to 2013 and amended to include other STIs.

In parallel, the Pacific Islands HIV and STI Response fund was launched in 2008 to support the implementation of national and regional HIV strategic plans.

Other key steps include the development of targeted STI communication strategies in many countries and territories and the endorsement by the Ministers of the 'Universal Access Policy Framework' to ensure adequate supplies and distribution of condoms and the availability of treatment for HIV and other STIs throughout the Pacific.

SPC commissioned a regional technical consultation to assess counselling and testing services in seven States and to identify priority issues to scale up services in addition to the first phase of validation of HIV testing in low HIV prevalent settings in the Pacific.

And the Pacific HIV Testing Taskforce has been set-up to undertake this task.

Delegates at the 8th Pacific Islands Health Minister's Conference in Madang which was held from July 6-9, 2009.

The Taskforce is led by Reference Laboratory and is composed of a number of regional partners including SPC and WHO. Papua New Guinea has already validated its own HIV testing algorithm, utilising rapid tests.

The number of people tested in Papua New Guinea has more than tripled between 2007 and 2008.

There are genuine signs of progress across the region, said Dr Shin Young-soo, WHO's Regional Director for the Western Pacific.

"But, of course, continued strong commitment, including political will, is going to be necessary if we are to get grips with this problem," he said. ■

Pacific Responds To Swine Influenza

Pacific Island Health Ministers have agreed to look into the Pacific response to the pandemic influenza A(H1N1) and the critical areas to be addressed in mitigating its impact in the region.

Several cases of influenza A(H1N1) have been confirmed by a number of Pacific Island countries in recent weeks and it is anticipated that the number of cases will grow significantly over the coming weeks and months.

As the pandemic has developed, Pacific Island countries and areas have put in place measures to delay influenza importation and minimise in-country spread.

These measures include: screening of travellers to detect cases, provision of information and advice to travellers and communities, surveillance and monitoring of influenza like illness.

As well, health services will have to be able to deal with increased numbers of influenza patients.

WHO and SPC have also intensified their support to Pacific Island countries in a number of areas such as laboratory testing capacities, provisions of guidelines, education and communication materials, additional supplies of antivirals and personal protective equipment for countries without metropolitan support.

WHO and SPC started working with the countries on pandemic preparedness more than four years ago, through the Asia Pacific Strategy for Emergency Diocese (APSED), the International Health Regulations (IHR) and the Pacific Regional Influenza Pandemic Preparedness Project (PRIPPP) in collaboration with other partners.

The role and importance of these initiatives in preparing Pacific countries for pandemic influenza and other emerging diseases was recognised and endorsed by Health Ministers at the last Ministerial meeting in Vanuatu in 2007. ■

Lifestyle Diseases Remain A Long-Term Challenge

A World Health Organisation survey has confirmed that non-communicable diseases linked to poor lifestyles remain the leading causes of deaths in 15 Pacific Islands, accounting for 75% of deaths annually.

These diseases, such as ischemic heart disease, cerebrovascular disease and type 2 diabetes, are largely due to preventable lifestyle factors including smoking, poor diet, physical inactivity and excessive consumption of alcohol.

Pacific Islands Ministers of Health meeting in Madang recently, renewed their commitment to tackle the problem and agreed that sustained support from regional agencies and development partners was required.

WHO and the Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC) at the regional level are collaborating through the Pacific Framework for the Prevention and Control of non-communicable diseases, which provides the basis for 'two organisations, one team, serving 22 countries'.

They reported at Madang on actions taken since the Ministerial meeting in Vanuatu in 2007.

Measures include whole-of-society, whole-of-government approaches to address non-communicable diseases while acknowledging many influences from outside of the health sector such as food security, climate change, safe water supply, sanitation, education and trade.

Ministers supported efforts to target major risk factors of tobacco smoking, poor diets and physical inactivity and over consumption of alcohol with evidence-based interventions using comprehensive approaches, including legislation, lifestyle changes, clinical support and health system strengthening. ■

Some Recommendations to Reduce Swine Flu

In areas with confirmed human cases of the influenza (H1N1) virus infection, the risk for infection can be reduced through a combination of actions.

No single action will provide complete protection, but an approach combining the following steps can help decrease the likelihood of transmission.

These recommended actions are:

- Wash hands frequently with soap and water or use alcohol-based hand cleaner when soap and water are not available.

- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when coughing or sneezing.

- Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth

- People who are sick with an influenza-like illness (fever plus at least cough or sore throat and possibly other symptoms like runny nose, body aches, headaches, chills, fatigue, vomiting and diarrhea) should stay home and minimize contact with others, including avoiding travel, for 7 days after their symptoms begin or until they have been symptom-free for 24 hours, whichever is longer.

- Avoid close contact (i.e. being within about 6 feet) with persons with influenza-like illnesses.

In addition, influenza antiviral medications are an important tool for the treatment and prevention of the influenza. ■

Sir Paulias Appeals For Global Peace

Governor-General, Grand Chief, Sir Paulias Matane has appealed to Papua New Guinea leaders to revisit the national constitution for guidance and inspiration.

While addressing the nation to commemorate Remembrance Day on July 23, at the Ela 'Bach, Sir Paulias, appealed to all leaders to have 'the highest' sense of responsibility and commitment to their duties.

Sir Paulias said he believes that Remembrance Day is an occasion to reaffirm Papua New Guinean's commitment to the national constitution and the democratic values and principles enshrined in it, and appealed to every Papua New Guinean to be united to promote global peace and democracy.

"Our constitution remains strong as ever and the democratic principles and institutions we have are strong.

"We must strongly guard our system of government, and its institutions, and work hard to strengthen them.

"We must strive more to build than to destroy. It is easy to destroy all the achievements of the past years, but difficult to build once destroyed," he said.

Sir Paulias further appealed to everyone to believe in the independence of the judiciary, as it is an important pillar of democracy and therefore should be protected.

Sir Paulias however, reminded leaders of the global war being faced in the country, such as lack of opportunity, HIV/AIDS, rising crime, corruption and natural disasters.

He said these calamities could only be fought and won through leadership, partnerships and cooperative actions.

Sir Paulias also believes that the friendship and partnerships forged during the earlier campaigns can be usefully harnessed to fight the new frontiers being faced today.

He urged every Papua New Guinean to move away from the mentality of waiting for others to help, and strive to build a democratic society based on justice, equality, respect and prosperity for everyone.

"In this endeavor, we look for direction from our leaders, both elected and those who hold responsible positions of trust in our communities," he said.

Meanwhile, Sir Paulias

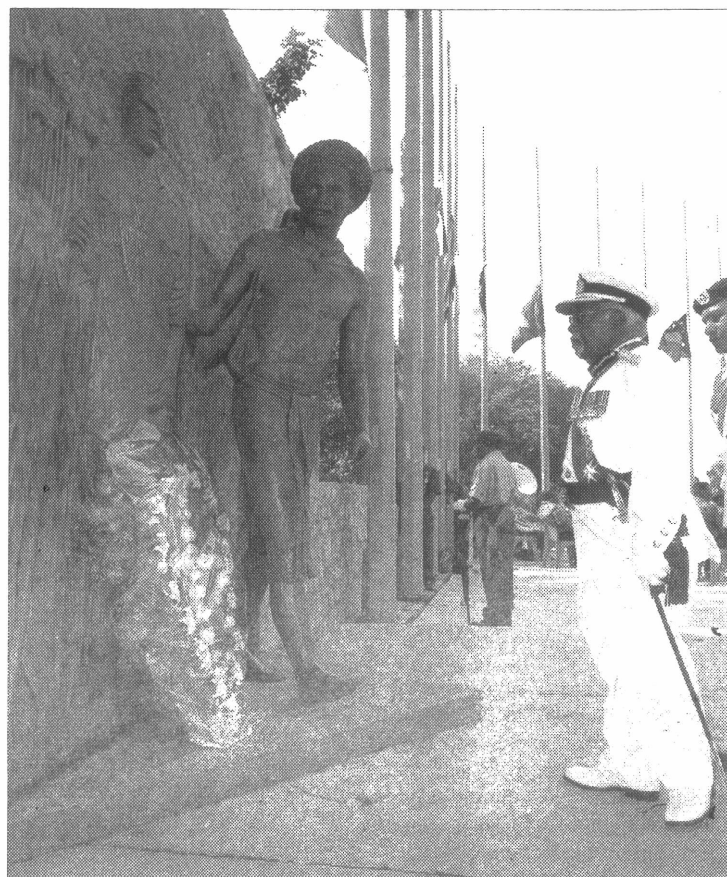

commended the Government initiative to fight crime and the problem of illegal use of firearms, the reform program it is undertaking in re-directing the public service and revitalizing government service delivery systems and institutions.

"Illegal use of firearms is a major threat to democracy and security of the country. We should all unite to fight this invasion of our safety and security and get rid of these harmful things," he said.

The theme of this year's Remembrance Day is; 'Global Peace for Democracy' and commemorates the sacrifices that forefathers and mothers made during the Second World War and also during the Bougainville conflict.

The Government combined the ANZAC Day ceremony with the Remembrance Day, making it a single event to be commemorated each year.

Sir Paulias extended the people's appreciation to the people and Government of Australia for finally recognizing the efforts of Papua New Guineans who stood alongside them in fighting to the end war and to redrawing the battle lines. ■

G-G Wants Democracy Restored In Fiji

New Fijian High Commissioner to PNG, Dr Niumaia Tabunakawaiat (right), presenting his Letter of Credentials to Sir Paulias Matane at Government House.

Papua New Guinea is eager to see Fiji return to political democracy so that it can once again work together with other Pacific countries to promote peace and stability within the region.

Governor General, Grand Chief Sir Paulias Matane, said Papua New Guinea maintains its stance to assist Fiji and pleads that the Interim Government will maintain its open dialogue with PNG and other countries willing to assist.

Sir Paulias, made these remarks when accepting the Letter of Credentials from Fiji's High Commissioner to PNG, Dr Niumaia Tabunakawaiat, this month.

Sir Paulias said Papua New Guinea and Fiji share close ties through the Melanesian Spearhead Group (MSG) since the admission of Fiji to the MSG in 1998.

He acknowledged the support by the Fiji Government together with other countries in bringing about a peaceful resolution and normalcy to the Bougainville crisis.

Under the Bilateral Trade Agreement of 1996 between Papua New Guinea and Fiji as well as the revised MSG Trade Agreement of 2005, Sir Paulias is optimistic that the trade between the two countries will improve and reach new levels.

Sir Paulias said PNG hopes to utilise these trade arrangements to exchange more goods with Fiji and vice versa.

He said Papua New Guinea also seek to assist Fiji through collective efforts of MSG countries.

He said this is the new challenges and one which remains an issue for discussion given the sensitivity on the question of elevations and restoration of democracy.

Papua New Guinea continues to attach great importance to the various bilateral arrangements signed between both countries including air services agreement signed in 1996, and the technical cooperation agreement of 1993.

"We hope to see the relations between Papua New Guinea and Fiji further developed in these areas for the benefit of our people under the Papua New Guinea/Fiji Business Council and the MSG arrangements.

"Papua New Guinea hopes to enhance its trade and economic relations with the Republic of Fiji.

"Papua New Guinea is committed to building on its strong relations with Fiji and it is my firm conviction that during your term as the commissioner to Papua New Guinea," Sir Paulias said.

Dr Tabunakawaiat said he would closely with the Government of Papua New Guinea in continuing efforts to further improve and enhance the very friendly and close relationship between Fiji and PNG.

"He said the Republic of Fiji is grateful to the government of Papua New Guinea and the people for their understanding and support during the difficult period our nation is currently going through.

"Fiji is embarking on a programme of reforms to return to sustainable democracy and good governance and its heartening by your support and those of its brothers in the Melanesian Spearhead Group," he said. ■

PNG Renews Ties with Czech

Papua New Guinea has re-affirmed its close bilateral relations with the Republic of Czech.

Governor-General, Sir Paulias Matane recently accepted the letter of credence from the President of the Czech Republic, Mr Vaclav Klaus on the accreditation of Mr Jan Fury as Ambassador to Papua New Guinea.

"I am pleased to note that our two countries continue to enjoy warm and friendly relations since the establishment of diplomatic relations 16 years ago in January 1993.

"The millennium holds greater opportunities for our countries. We should, therefore strive for closer cooperation not only in international trade and economic cooperation but also at the bilateral level.

"Papua New Guinea believes that it should take full advantage of the reforms that are taking place, including liberalisation of trade practices with industrialised economies, including your country.

"The interest that has been shown towards the development of the Diwune Hydro Project in Oro Province and the funding of classroom building in the Madang Province recently are 'a worthy cause for applause and recognition by your government and I thank you profoundly for that.' Sir Paulias said.

In response, Ambassador Fury said there was significance potential to enhance mutual beneficial cooperation between the two countries.

He said both countries could work together and appreciate the potential for enhanced cooperation in various areas, such as trade and economy, education, environment and agriculture.

Esso To Build Training Centres

The operator of the Exxon-Mobile led LNG gas project, Esso Highlands will invest K160 million over the next four years to construct training facilities at the Port Moresby Technical College and a smaller training centre at Juni in the Southern Highlands Province.

From these training facilities, the developers of the LNG gas projects expect to train close 1,000 Papua New Guineans over the next four years to cater for the skilled workforce of the project.

At the Port Moresby Technical College, the company has agreed to construct two training facilities, and the training programmes will take place for the next five years during the construction phase of the LNG project.

Pom Tech will host the first trade training facility which will include classrooms, mess, accommodation, workshops and administrative blocks.

It is expected to graduate 750 tradesmen and women for the next four years while Juni facility is expected to turn out 200 skilled people.

The first batch of trainees would be enrolled in March 2010 at both training centres.

On July 6, Esso Highlands Managing Director, Mr Peter Graham and Public Enterprise Minister, Hon. Arthur Somare signed the Site Access Agreement, allowing contractors access to POMTECH to start construction work.

After the completion of the program, POMTECH will take ownership of the facility as a State asset.

"Our plan is to construct and operate a trade training facility which would provide skilled labour to support construction of our LNG plant.

"Curriculum has been identified to provide training in those areas likely to be required by the project and reserved for PNG citizens," Mr Graham said.

Minister Somare acknowledged the participation and financial contribution of project developers.

He said he was pleased with the training of Papua New Guineans to work in the highly skilled labour market of the LNG gas project.

"The signing ceremony is one aspect of the commitment by the project to underpin overall social and economic development, particularly in the project areas," Minister Somare said.

Those who witnessed the agreement signing included the Secretary for Education, Dr Joseph Pagelio, Chairlady of POMTECH Governing Council, Ms Maria Kopkop, education officials, senior public servants and private sector official. ■

Agreement Signed With Eos Joint Venture

EssonMobil Limited, an ExxonMobil Corporation subsidiary

ExxonMobil, as operator of the PNG LNG Project, has announced that an agreement has been signed with the Eos Joint Venture (Eos JV), an unincorporated JV comprising of Worley Parsons and Kellogg Brown & Root.

The agreement, effective for a five-year period from March 2009, encompasses a range of services including engineering, training, in-country support services and integrated project team services for construction and project management of the PNG LNG Project.

"This agreement will help facilitate the progression of in-country services to support the PNG NG project. The Eos JV will be integrated with the ExxonMobil Project Team and will support project and construction management activities," said Mr. Ken Larson, PNG LNG Project Executive.

The Eos JV will provide project and construction management services from sites located in Papua New Guinea and in Brisbane, Australia.

This agreement will maintain the engagement of the Eos JV in the upstream component of the PNG LNG Project after the current FEED services contract is completed.

The PNG LNG Project is an integrated development, which includes gas processing facilities, onshore pipelines and the offshore pipeline along with the LNG plant facilities.

Participating interests are ExxonMobil (Esso Highlands Limited as Operator) 41.5%, Oil Search 34.0%, Santos 17.7%, Nippon Oil 5.4%, Minerals Resources Development Company 1.2%, and Eda Oil Limited 0.2%. (Participation will change when the PNG State nominees join as equity participants at a later date). ■

PNGSDP Finances Kikori Girl's Dormitory

Papua New Guinea Sustainable Development Program (PNGSDP) will be providing K291,000.00 funding assistance towards the construction of a new dormitory for girls at St. Joseph Technical School in Kikori District, Gulf Province.

Funding agreement between PNGSDP's Chief Executive Officer, Mr David Sode and the School representatives was signed in Kikori early this month.

Minister for Labour and Industrial Relations, and Kikori MP, Hon Mark Maipakai, the Bishop of Kerema Diocese, Bishop Patric Taval were among several distinguished guests who attended the ceremony.

Mr Sode expressed pleasure in the company's investment towards young women's education in Kikori District.

"According to the National Economic and Fiscal Commission, Kikori District is one of the least developed districts in the province that requires attention from all stakeholders.

"Oil and gas is being discovered in this part of the Gulf Province and to be able to participate and benefit from this opportunity, our young people should be skilled. This will enable them to be active participants rather than observers in the area.

"When more girls are educated and equipped with the necessary skills, it will have a significant impact on the livelihood of their families. Investing in women is the best investment you can make in a village. When girls are educated and trained with appropriate skills, they will tend to see their roles differently from the societal norm. It may not be a revolution but in the long run, it will make a difference in gender inequality," Mr Sode said.

The Minister had earlier given K200,000.00 to St Joseph Vocational School for the construction of a double-story classroom, which is nearing completion.

Also on the occasion the Mr Maipakai gave a cheque of K300,000.00 to the Catholic Diocese of Kerema to improve the education services in his District. ■

"We all must not have disputes for the rural hospital that will be constructed on our own land.

"This hospital will not only service the Simberi islanders, but neighbouring island communities. It will be a very vital service and we must all look after its facilities and staff," she said.

Planning Dept Launches PNGInfo System

Secretary for National Planning and Monitoring, Mr. Joseph Lelang pressing the laptop keys to officially launch the PNGInfo System at the Holiday Inn early this month.

The Government has launched an information system for data storage, access and web-based dissemination of Papua New Guinea's development indicators.

Secretary for National Planning and Monitoring, Mr Joseph

Lelang, when launching the PNG Info System in Port Moresby early this month, said the system would make major contribution to strengthening the use of data monitoring, evidenced-based planning and decision making.

The key purpose of the PNG Info System is to collate required secondary data, identify data gaps in PNG's Millennium Development Goal (MDG) indicators, and address data gaps through collaboration with responsible agencies.

The main five agencies that signed the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) as key implementing partners of the MDG are, the Departments of Agriculture and Livestock, Community Development, Education, Environment and Conservation, Health, and was counter signed by the Department of National Planning and Monitoring and the National Statistical Office, as lead partners.

Mr Lelang says the PNGInfo System will not replace existing well-established Government information systems or efforts, such as specific thematic sectoral initiatives for monitoring individual goals, topics and programs.

"It intends to complement these systems," he added.

The system will be implemented in Papua New Guinea to achieve the same objective as implemented by other customized DevInfo Systems designed in other United Nations countries throughout the world, such as IndiaInfo and FijiInfo.

Mr Lelang admits that the lack of relevant, reliable and up-to-date data and statistics to assess and monitor development has been a big problem for both government and private sectors.

"Therefore, the PNGInfo System will become a critical development tool in effectively providing data to assess the progress of Papua New Guinea's development plans and strategies such as the Long Term Development Strategy (LTDS) 2010-2030," he said.

The LTDS 2010-2030 is currently being formulated by the Department of National Planning and Monitoring, with the next Medium Term Development Plan 2011-2015 to help PNG meet the United Nation's MDG targets by 2015.

The PNGInfo System will be established within the DNP and NSO but will be fed with published data from the implementing partners responsible for the respective indicators. ■
