UC Board of Regents Meets Here

For the first time in one and a half years, UCSD students got a look at the governing body of the University--the Board of Regents.

Meeting in the Chancellor's conference room, the various committees were opened up to all students wishing to attend, although space was limited.

For the benefit of those students who were unable to attend, the "Triton Times" presents here a short description of the procedures and matters the committees acted upon.

The Committee on Grounds and Buildings discussed matters ranging from Santa Barbara married students apartments to impending cutbacks in Federal aid.

A series of slides were presented to give the members of committee an idea of what 300 UCSB apartment units would look like. Such details as ratio of car to student, closet size, size of building, were explained, and after a few questions on things like window location, the committee okayed the project.

$1 billion in construction has been budgeted since 1945, the members were told next. (UCSD ranks sixth with $84 million appropriated) Most of the increase in costs have been due to increasing rates, not square footage. Salaries have gone up $500,000, office costs have risen from 3.2 to 4.2% of the total, and Federal grants have decreased over the last few years to 16%.

The main problem, the vice-president for physical planning and construction said, is that the State must show increasing interest in putting up part of the funds for these projects. Thus the Federal government will give the university $70 million if the state will provide $80 million.

"In 1968," he said, "the university will be sorely in need of augmentation of funds" from the State.

In answer to Regent Dutton's question concerning a shortage of funds, the vice-president said, "any lack of federal funds will throw the burden on the State and any delays will cost money."

Furthermore, the spokesman said, if the University goes ahead with a project without sufficient backing by the State, the Federal government will lose confidence in the State and hold up future funds.

"We must maximize this source of revenue," he concluded, "because otherwise any neglect on our part can spoil these working relationships."

In the Educational Policy Committee, controversies ranged from de facto segregation in fraternities to the renaming of the United Kingdom overseas campus.

Regents Dutton and Shepard argued over whether the historic policy of keeping the lists of members of organizations secret did not in fact continue to perpetuate segregated fraternities.

Shepard said that all he had to do was call up Berkeley to find out whether there were any Negroes in the Sigma Chi organization.

But Dutton said perhaps this was not enough, even though he was not in favor of "a racial census."

The next problem occurred over expected failure in 1975 to attain a 40-60 ratio of undergraduates to graduates, respectively, in the University enrollment.

Charles Hitch said that the ratio would come within 1% of the required figure stated in the Master Plan for Higher Education.

Regent Einar O. Mohn then asked about the trend in the University toward campuses far away from large, urban centers, like Irvine.

Vice-president Angus Taylor, (Academic Affairs) explained that the reason was primarily cost of city property.

Expansion of UCLA was mentioned as a solution to this problem--increasing the enrollment past the 28,000 limit. But no one commented on that idea.

After the name of the British Overseas Center was changed, to include Ireland, the Study Center in Greece was continued, a report on endowments was presented.

UCSD received over $13 million last year (1966-67), a decrease of almost $6 million from the previous year.

Reagan Stands Against Students

Governor Reagan asked the Board of Regents Friday to take a stand against the students who flew a replica of the North Vietnamese flag on the UCSD campus. He accused the students of "bad taste, cruelty and disregard for the feelings" of the people who have loved ones over there.

Reagan also suggested that the Regents pass what "legislation is appropriate" to discipline unruly students who disrupt University business. Student sit-ins in Sproul Hall at Berkeley prompted his statement. Reagan pointed out that if these activities had been directed at a private business, legal action would have immediately followed. Action is necessary because "appeasement," Reagan said, "leads to more trouble."

His statements followed reports to the Regents by Chancellors Galbraith, Murphy and Hevns on

Correction

Correction: In the 27 October 1967 issue of the "Triton Times," Vice-President Herv Sweetwood was quoted as saying that an increase of $100 in incidental fees would "just mean reapportioning $3.00 a week from dates to education." The paragraph should read: "When Higgs asked Herv Sweetwood how an increase of $100 in incidental fees would affect him, the vice-president said, 'I suppose that I would have to allocate $3.00 a week from dates to education.'" --Roger Showley

Higgs Committee Reports

(Here follows the report Regent DeWitt Higgs presented to the Regents on a raise in Incidental Fees.)

The Special Committee on Student Charges and Student Aid reports as follows:

The Committee's charge from the Regents was:

(a) To recommend to the Board at the earliest possible date: (1) a charge to be paid by all students, other than nonresidents, to finance a program of student aid, faculty enrichment and/or other uses, and (2) the uses and apportionment of the funds derived from such charge; and

(b) To study and recommend to the Board at the earliest possible date additional or alternative sources of revenue that might be used or developed to help keep any student charges to the lowest possible level.

An organization meeting of the Committee, to which all Regents were invited, was held on September 23. Thereafter the Committee met on October 13, October 21, November 8 and November 24. Invited to attend these meetings, in addition to the Regents, were the Chancellors and the principal University-wide officers.

Early in its discussions, the Committee agreed that no only an exhaustive study of factual and analytical data bearing on the subjects under consideration would be required, but also expressions of the judgement and views of members of the University community would contribute importantly to the Committee's deliberations.

The President of the Student President's Council was invited to appear before the Committee, and on October 13, following the presentation of majority and minority statements, he and three other student officers joined the members in an informal discussion. The President of the Council again appeared before the Committee on October 21 to respond to certain questions raised by the members.

Representing the faculty, the Chairman of the Academic Council and the Chairman of the Senate University-wide Committee on Educational Policy have attended meetings of the Committee, adding significantly to the Committee's

Marines Invade Revelle

Last week Marines from a local base came to the Revelle plaza to confront students over the question of the flying of the North Vietnamese flag.

The Marines had read about the incident in the paper and had come with the intention of removing the flag. They found that the flag was no longer flying and had, in fact, not been for several days.

A heated discussion followed in which the Marines asked several students why they had allowed or encouraged such an act. The topic of the conversation then turned to the Vietnam war itself, with deliberations through their participation and their expression of faculty views.

The opinions of the Chancellors also have been solicited, and the Committee acknowledges with appreciation their contributions, as well as those of the principal University-wide officers.

It has been apparent to the Committee that a definitive response to the Board's charges must be preceded by and based on an in-depth study and analysis of (a) the present student fee structure and the ability of the students to pay additional charges; (b) the administration of the existing student aid programs, additional costs required to meet the standards recommended by the College En-the Marines opposing the war protesters.

At this point Deans Murphy and Hull interposed. They asked the Marines to leave and their request was soon complied with. Dean Murphy later said that he felt "their purpose was disruptive and potentially violent." He explained his position to them, saying that "the purpose of the Plaza is to allow free speech in accordance with the American constitution." He said that the students were in no way violating any law by flying the North Viet-

Globe Gives Eliot Play

Probing into the mind of contemporary man as he attempts to discover a reason for his existence creates a fascinating sophisticated comedy in "The Cocktail Party." The T.S. Eliot play opened Thursday, November 30 at the Old Globe Arena in Falstaff Tavern, Balboa Park. Twelve more performances are scheduled through December 17 nightly except Monday. William Roesch is director.

Characters are initially introduced in "The Cocktail Party" at a social function. An uninvited guest appears to have a mysterious authority over the other characters. The plot unfolds and the characters respond only to what he does. His influence over the other characters is not absolute, since no one is forced to obey him and he does not dictate their choices.

A romantic triangle develops between several of the characters. A young socialite is in love with a married attorney, and a young film writer is in love with the girl. The attorney's wife is in love with the writer. The mysterious stranger provides answers to the numerous problems of the group.

Dennis G. Turner will make his Old Globe debut in the leading role of the confidant and advisor. William Irish and Lee Chmelik are the mature married couple. Cassia Besson is the young socialite and Jim Brock is the screen writer. Jean McKenzie appears as a flighty gossip and Burt B. Belant is a worldly sophisticate. Also in the cast are Karen Groening and Burt Pollard.

Sam Hinton Sings American Folksongs At UIA Meeting

Sam Hinton, the Associate Director of the Office of Relations with Schools, and folksinger, will play and sing American folksongs at the December 8 meeting of the University International Association. The meeting will begin at 7:30 P.M. in the Formal Lounge of Revelle Commons (behind the South Dining Hall). All Revelle students, Muir students, and faculty members are invited. The University International Association also extends a special invitation to the students and faculty from foreign countries.

There will be no admission charge. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

The purpose of this meeting and all University International Association functions is to bring the U.C.S.D. students from America and those from foreign countries together through programs of common interest.

"If you are interested in doing something about international understanding instead of just talking about it and if you like American folk music at its best, come and bring a friend to the University International Association meeting to hear Sam Hinton," said Martin McAllister, president of the University International Association.

Singers Present Concert

An evening of Christmas music will be presented by the Mesa College Olympic Singers at 8:00 p.m., Wednesday, December 6 in 2722, USB on the University of California, San Diego campus.

The program, free and open to the public, is sponsored by the Early Music Society, a group of about 30 students at UCSD, who meet regularly to sing music for their own enjoyment.

Mrs. Joe D. (Charleen) Archibeque, director of the Mesa College Singers, has planned a varied program, which will include modern renditions of "We Wish You A Merry Christmas," "Deck the Halls," "Now Is the Caroling Season" and "Fum Fum."

Latin and French 16th century motets, such as Nanino's "Hodie Christus Factus Est," "Psallite," and "Dormi Jesu" are also on the program. Soprano Karol Hanson and baritone Dennis Decker will be soloists for two Spanish carols "Venid Pastores" and "Hacia Va Ben Un Borrico."

Mrs. Archibeque, who attended Oberlin College and graduated with honors from the University of Michigan, is an accomplished San Diego musician. She has directed several outstanding groups at California state and at national conventions, and several ensembles which have appeared on local television. She has served as clinician for workshops and as a festival adjudicator. Mrs. Archibeque, currently director of choral music at Mesa Junior College, said that the Mesa College Olympic Singers, all members of the Olympic Chorale, are specialists in chamber music from 16th century to contemporary music.

Persons interested in knowing more about the concert can contact Bruce Weber, a graduate student in chemistry at UCSD and president of the Early Music Society, at 453-2000, extension 1482.

Happy Birthday to juniors Jim Stites and Chuck Henderson. They will both be 21 during December.

Welcome back to Dennis Beck who has been in the hospital for 3 and 1/2 weeks following a car accident. He's still limping.

Another recent highlight in campus activities was the "welcome committee" presentation for the Dow. Co. representatives. A Death Dance followed that evening.

Discovery Hall will sponsor a Christmas Party for a Tiajuana orphanage.

Linda Longmire will attend a party with the members of The Association before returning home to North Dakota for the holidays.

Good Luck to everyone on finals --I know that most of the sopho-

Moriarty Discusses San Diego Indian

Recent information on San Diego's historic Indian, made through the use of advanced scientific technology, was discussed by James R. Moriarty in a lecture at 8 p.m. last Friday, December 1 in Sherwood hall, 700 Prospect St., La Jolla.

Dr. Moriarty is an associate specialist in oceanography at Scripps Institution of Oceanography and is an instructor in archaeology and history at UCSD.

Recent scientific advancements have developed new tools for the reconstruction and interpretation of primitive cultures. The San Diego Indian has been analyzed through these new techniques which were developed within the last 10 years.

Information on the origins, linguistic history, religions and social systems of the San Diego Indian as gained through such scientific methods, was discussed by Dr. Moriarty.
