

Becky Pettitt, PhD Vice Chancellor Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion	“What does it mean to be a more inclusive campus that prepares our students to participate, to lead, in a more global society?” “The Strategic Plan for Inclusive Excellence is essentially a road map.”
Diane Forbes Berthoud, PhD Assistant Vice Chancellor Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion	“It focuses on UC San Diego as a system, helping us to achieve our academic mission of excellence.”
Pradeep Khosla, PhD Chancellor UC San Diego	“The whole framework is eight words.” “Student centered, research focused, service oriented, public university.”
Diane Forbes Berthoud	“We’re asking everyone to rethink and to re-imagine a new way of being and really encouraging a cultural shift on our campus.”
Pradeep Khosla	“If everybody tries to be truthful to themselves, we’ll end up being a great community.”
Ebonée Williams, PhD Executive Director Gordon Engineering Leadership Center	“Inclusion, I think, is an opportunity for UCSD, who’s still very young in a university space, to own who do we want to be as a university.”
Diane Forbes Berthoud	“This is about you, this is about us. This is about us growing together and creating something new together.”
Lesly Figueroa Undergraduate Student Urban Studies and Planning	“It’s really about, I think, being there for each other.”
Chandler Puritty PhD Student Ecology, Biological Sciences	“Being comfortable here in our identities, that’s crucial to our ability to work. So if we’re compromised, the university isn’t actually getting the best work.”
Anthony King Communications Director Arts & Humanities	“It affects me, but then it can go on and on. It’ll affect UC San Diego as a whole, it’ll affect the region as a whole. We’re doing really cool work.”
Victor Ferreira, PhD Professor and Department Chair Psychology	“It’s a very important thing for us to be able to hear all kinds of different voices from all kinds of different perspectives. Because that’s how were going to be able to understand everything better.”
Becky Pettitt	“What’s important to me is that our current students, faculty, and staff feel like they are included... they feel welcome. They feel like this is a place where they can thrive.”
Osinachi Ajoku PhD Student Climate Science, Scripps Institution of Oceanography	“If we, as graduate students are voicing our opinions on the Strategic Plan, we can bring that to every other academic institution that we can possibly go to. And that’s what makes being here at UC San Diego so important. We can basically branch into the future.”

Bill McGinnis, PhD Dean Division of Biological Sciences	"Our common ancestor was about 2,000 generations ago, so we're all cousins, at the most 2,000 times removed. And you're part of the same family."
Diane Forbes Berthoud	"The idea of one person making change is real, and we can do that. We can make that happen."
RD Lomahan Undergraduate Student Cognitive Science with Specialization in Human Computer Interaction	"Taking that first step, and putting your voice out there, really is the hurdle, and really is the first step in how one person can affect change."
Vivian Wang MIA Student, International Economics, School of Global Policy and Strategy	"Once you speak out, a lot of people will change their mind about things that previously they thought were different."
Emily Roxworthy, PhD Provost Warren College	"I think that we have the opportunity to make that sort of a three dimensional, more holistic experience by acknowledging the diverse backgrounds that students come from, including their own."
Ebonée Williams	"It's not always what it is, but it's being heard, and how we listen, and how we get to contribute, validates people's excitement to be here, and engagement. I'm more engaged when I feel that you value what I have to bring to the table."
Pradeep Khosla	"In any complex community, especially like an academic community, the community knows the problems and the community knows the solutions. It's no individual that knows every problem and every solution. So that's why if we are inclusive in listening to each other, we can identify the problems and we can identify the solutions"
Becky Petitt	"We are going to have many opportunities for participation. I want them to see themselves in this plan."
Diane Forbes Berthoud	"We also ask people to be involved in the IdeaWave campaign. Any member of our campus community can log in there and share your ideas. There's online, there's face-to-face. We'll also have focus groups to talk with each other, to talk with us—to inform the plan and to help us shape the future of our campus."
Osinachi Ajoku	"So if you want to have change happen, you have to be the change, you have to be that first example."
Anthony King	"When you think of how we can get everyone else and their one powerful voices to be a part of this—that's the power of diversity."
Becky Petitt	"The shape our campus takes as we move into the future depends on your voice today."
Chandler Puritty	"Each individual piece is critical to building our campus puzzle."
Bill McGinnis	"Transformation requires our collective genius."
Anthony King	"Imagine what we can build together."
Ebonée Williams	"Help shape the future of UC San Diego at diversity..."
