Positive growth in the economy

Educating and promoting awareness of the importance of investment through events such as the money show would help Papua New Guinea develop a saving and investment culture, Finance and Treasury Minister, Bart Philemon, has said.

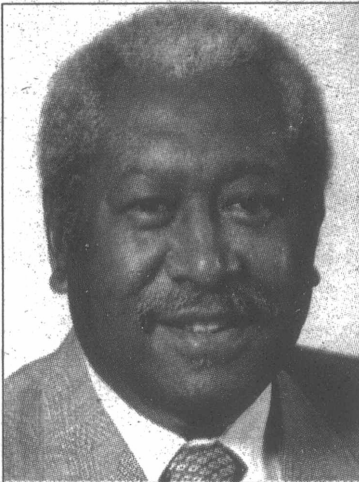

In his keynote address Mr Philemon said many people in the country have continued to invest their limited financial resources in unproductive short-term ventures that do not yield long-term results.

The Minister said he was hopeful that the show would change the current line of thinking of most people to one that promotes longer-term financial welfare.

Mr Philemon said there are clear signs that after a couple of years of sound macro management economic recovery is starting to take hold.

"Economic growth looks to be around two and half to three per cent following several years during which our economy stagnated. Employment is picking up. Inflation has fallen from over 20 per cent to less than 3 per cent."

Interest rates have fallen sharply, making it cheaper to borrow money to invest. The Treasury Bill rate is, now under 9 per cent compared to rates as high as 20 per cent around the middle of 2003. Further declines are expected in line with the fall in inflation. Mr Philemon said the kina has been stable and in fact has appreciated against some of the major currencies.

"We have benefited from higher international prices of PNG's major export commodities".

He said international reserves are near record levels. Reserves are over five hundred million US dollars, providing an important buffer against any unfavourable shocks that may come our way these good outcomes have not come by accident.

"We have benefited from the pick-up in international commodity prices but there is much more behind these good outcomes. Good macroeconomic policies, and sound management of the Budget under the Somare-led-Government has been a cornerstone of the improvements that we have seen".

The Minister said through the Governments structural reform program we are laying the foundation for sustained and broad based growth. As part of the broader public sector reform we are working to give the public sector a clear sense of direction, we are working towards more affordable government and we are improving performance, accountability and compliance in the public sector. We are actively introducing polices to improve the delivery of priority services.

He said as part of the reform program we are talking action to improve public finance management including improved sustainability, reduced civil service size and payroll improved integrity or budget systems and institutions and other expenditure adjustments and prioritisation.

The government is also engaging in closer dialogue with the private sector. The Consultative Implementation Monitoring Council an important forum, which allows for the private sector and civil society to engage with the Government and provide meaningful input into the National Budget and contribute towards the policy framework.

This Council's chaired by the Minister responsible for National Planning and Monitoring in response to the call for greater responsiveness and the government to private sector concerns, A National Working Group on Removing Impediments to Business and Investment was established by the Prime Minister in August 2003 to assist in facilitating the Government's policy of fostering economic growth.

"As you know the government recently initiated a very successful initial tender in the Inscribed Stock Program- The ISP in which the government raised funds by issuing longer dated bonds- aims at minimizing the burden and risks of government debt, and increasing investors choice in public securities.

The issue was oversubscribed and the yield was very competitive. The private sectors interest reflected its increasing confidence in the Government's policies and overall management of the economy. Additional tenders are scheduled for later in the year.

Other financial initiatives are also under consideration. We are examining the scope for introducing a debt switching program later in the year to enable investors to switch from existing inscribed stocks and Treasury bills to the new Inscribed Stocks. This would assist in developing the market and creating improved secondary market liquidity.

The government is also consulting with relevant parties to explore the possibility of listing the inscribed stocks on the Port Moresby Stock Exchange

"We hope that sound macroeconomic management, ongoing public sector reform continued dialogue with the private sector and direct financial initiatives of the type will help promote private sector investment and build foundation for future growth.

PM welcomes China Petroleum Company to invest in PNG

The Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare, has welcomed the 'very strong intention' shown by the China National Petroleum Company (CNPC) to invest in the PNG petroleum industry.

"I have asked the Minister for Petroleum, Sir Moi Awei and his Department to share relevant information with the company so they can quickly make their decisions to invest.

"I am pleased to hear from the CNPC delegation that they will study all project proposals, including the Pipeline to the North and the Integrated Methane Complex," Sir Michael said.

Sir Michael said the CNPC decision reflects the trust and confidence that multinational investors continue to have in the business environment that the government has created.

Sir Michael Somare and Sir Moi Awei with the Chinese delegation.

"This can only be further complemented by the tight fiscal management and political stability that this Government continues to promote," he said.

Mr Xu Dakun is leading the 26

May to 2 June visit, and the delegation comprised geologists, engineers, geophysicists and project managers.

The group paid a courtesy call on the Prime Minister on 1 June 2004.

Some members of the delegation visited the Kutubu, Gobe, and Moran oil fields, while others visited the InterOil drilling operations in the field, as well as the Napa Napa Oil Refinery.

Sir Michael also commended Sir Moi and his department, Oil Search and others involved in making the CNPC visit successful.

Meanwhile, Mr Dakun said his delegation was happy with the cooperation and support from the PNG Government.

"I am happy with the support extended to me by the PNG Government and Oil Search to make our visit worthwhile. CNPC is very keen to invest in PNG and we will definitely study all the information made available by the Government and the petroleum companies like Oil Search, Inter Oil and Cheetah Petroleum," he said.

Empowerment for healthy living - Pep

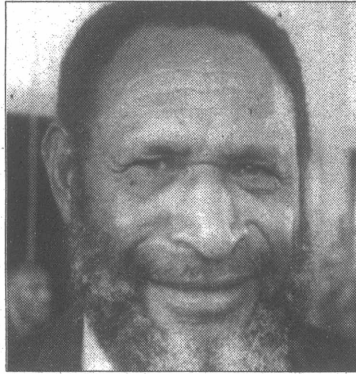

The Minister for Health, Mr Melchior Pep has challenged the Department of Health to empower individuals, families and communities to take responsibility for their own health.

Mr Pep said the department must involve all levels of the government and other partners to work together as one nation towards achieving the goals of the National Health Plan.

Pep was speaking at the opening ceremony of the 14th Annual National Health Conference on the 17th of May at the Holiday Inn.

"The Governments intention is to empower Papua New Guineans through various means to improve their lifestyle. This is through the Government's Medium Term Development Strategy of Export Driven Economy, Good Governance, Human Resources Development and Poverty Alleviation," said Mr Pep.

The Health Department is doing its utmost best to ensure that;

- Health promotion and health protection services are re-introduced through the healthy islands program.

- The majority of our people have access to quality basic health services.

- Positive health outcomes can be achieved through the health reforms and partnership with other sectors.

Mr Pep expressed concern that only a few Papua New Guineans are benefiting from the fruits of nation building because of the disparity in socio-economic opportunities from our natural resource development.

He claimed the main drawback is the deterioration of road infrastructure that is impassable in many districts and poor performance of monitoring, supervision of inter-sectoral co-operation.

As a result, provinces are facing a decline in immunisation coverage coupled with lack of extension services for maternal and child health care.

However, the Minister is optimistic that immunisation coverage would greatly improve over the next twelve months. He said the department is targeting 95-per cent coverage of the Supplementary Immunisation Activities (SIA) nationwide

He also stressed that the people must be made aware of their health needs. "Individuals must be made to participate fully and feel more responsible for their own health and the communities they live in".

Gov't satisfied with PNG-Aust ECP

The Government has expressed satisfaction over the recent negotiation of the Enhanced Co-operation Program (ECP) with the Australian Government, adding that the implementation will be acceptable to both governments.

Minister for Foreign Affairs and Immigration, Sir Rabbie Namaliu, said negotiations with the Australian Minister for Foreign Affairs, Alexander Downer, over the ECP issue, would not require further constitutional amendments or limit the independence of key office holders such as the Public Prosecutor.

He said the resolution to recent differences lay in the strengthening of the role of the Joint Steering Committee that would have an ongoing role in the implementation of the ECP including matters relating to any breaches of the law by ECP personnel.

"The ECP represents a very substantial outlay by the Australian Government and Community. It adds important dimensions to an already vibrant and diverse bi-lateral relationship.

"While the focus has been on the policing aspects, it needs to be remembered that the program provides for the assistance of skilled and experienced personnel in macro-economic management and public sector reforms, the courts and legal services, customs, transport and border security areas, as well," Sir Rabbie said.

He added that the policing package and support for the courts and legal services was vital to the fight against crime and lawlessness.

"The policing assistance will differ from past support in that police seconded and recruited from state forces in Australia will have a hand-on policing role, and will work side by side with our local police personnel," he said.

Sir Rabbie expressed confidence that police and other personnel would not encounter problems, but added that if they did, then there were ways to address them.

The ECP also has a strong emphasis on capacity building in all areas. It provided training of 400 new policemen and women since 1996.

Much needed resources, such as communications and vehicles will also be provided under the program.

Sir Rabbie said at the end of ECP, the police force would be better skilled and equipped, while the public sector would contribute to sound macro-economic management and good governance.

Sir Rabbie thanked all stakeholders and especially contribution by Minister Downer, and the Australian Justice Minister, Senator Chris Ellison, in the negotiation process, for their commitment in developing a package and the ultimate agreement of the ECP.

Meanwhile, Sir Rabbie, paid tribute to the Australian government for providing more than K240 million in development assistance in the Australian budget announced recently.

The total development assistance to be provided by the Australian government in the 2004-2005 financial year would be one billion kina, however, in the current financial year, 2003 - 2004, Australia provided almost K800 million. Sir Rabbie said the significant increase in the coming financial year confirmed the Australian government's commitment to the enhanced cooperation package, focusing on law and order and budget accountability and integrity.

"The development assistance funding announced in the Australian budget reflects the strength and maturity of our bilateral relationship, and we will work with the Australian Government to implement the funding that Australia is generously providing," Sir Rabbie added.

Parl: Nape replaces Skate as Speaker

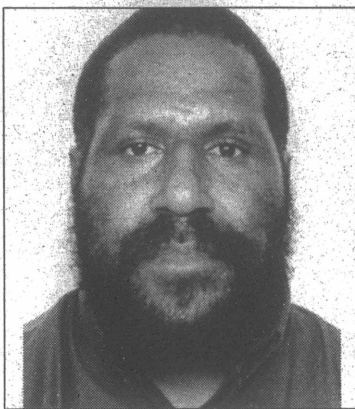

The National Government used its numerical strength to bulldoze through the election of Deputy Speaker, Jeffery Nape, as the country's National Speaker.

Mr Nape is the Member for Sinsina/Yongamul and was elected by the Government.

Former Speaker, Bill Skate, was not available when the vote was taken.

The election of the new speaker threw the House into chaos and unruly behaviour on the floor of Parliament from both sides of the House.

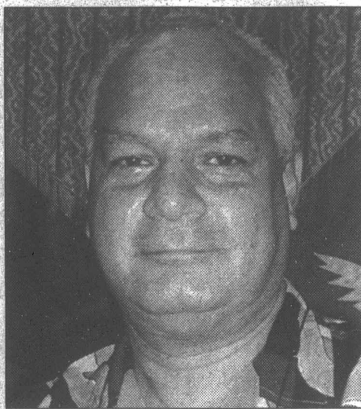

Deputy Speaker reminded the members of the presence of the United Nations, General Secretary,

Hon. Jeffery Nape

Don McKinnon, who was in Parliament to observe the sessions.

Leader of Government Business, Patrick Pruitz called for suspension of Standing Orders to allow for the motion to elect new

Hon. Bill Skate

Speaker.

The Government voted 56 for the removal of Bill Skate, three informal and five against.

New Speaker adjourned Parliament to June 29.

Consultation necessary for monitoring

The Minister for Public Service, Hon. Sinai Brown has said consultation is necessary in developing the Medium Term Development Strategy (MTDS).

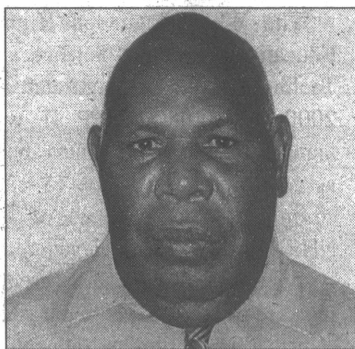

Mr. Brown said the department of National Planning and Implementation is liaising with all relevant agencies to remove obstacles to export-driven recovery and rural development strategies.

Mr Brown was speaking in his capacity as the Minister responsible for National Planning and Implementation at the official opening 2004 New Guinea Islands Regional Development Forum last month.

Consultation would ensure good policy formulation, which represents the needs of the people rather than the needs of politicians or other elites.

He told participants at the meeting to discuss developmental issues and to develop a criterion to test the accuracy and scope of the consultation process.

"In this approach, the development

Hon. Sinai Brown

would reach the targeted communities," said Mr Brown.

"Without consultation it is very difficult to know whether the programmes are being implemented and if the initial issue is being effectively addressed," he said.

The MTDS 2003-2007 outlines the government's plans for economic recovery and development based on good governance export led growth, rural development and poverty reduction and is currently before cabinet before approval.

MTDS 2003-2007 has dedicated a whole chapter to look at the potential for production and as well as likely constraints of commodities."

The key impediments that were discussed in last year's development forums might form the basis of recommendations for the 2005 Budget.

The following were some of the resolutions brought forward from last year's forum, which includes:

- Extension and training of services - promote expansion of nucleus agro-enterprises.

- Increase exports (agriculture, fisheries and forestry sector) - rehabilitation of existing plantations and blocks.

- Decline in production due to increase in the number of small holders - have extension and training services.

- Credit availability - review-lending practices of Rural Development Bank for small holders.

- Land access - three per cent of all state acquired land will be given for production to the agriculture sector.

Mr. Brown stressed that consultation plays an important role in the annual budget whereby MTDS determines the future of the country.

PM receives SG - Commonwealth

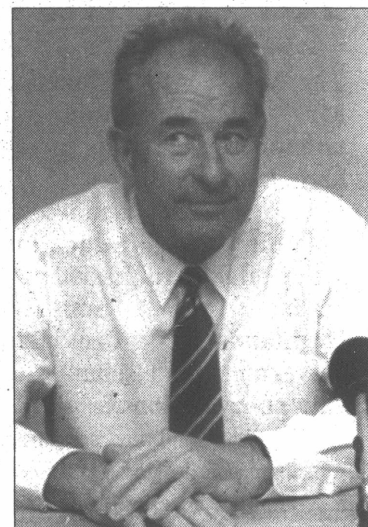

The Commonwealth Secretary General, Rt. Hon. Don McKinnon, called on the Prime Minister recently after returning from a tour of Bougainville.

The Commonwealth Secretary General took the opportunity to thank Sir Michael and Papua New Guinea for its steadfast support for his candidature at the last Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in Abuja, Nigeria.

He also advised Sir Michael that consultations with many of the other Commonwealth Leaders have indicated that there was a need for Leaders to reconsider the arrangements for the Leaders Meetings with a view to providing them more time to discuss specifically chosen issues at the Retreat.

As a result, the Commonwealth Secretary General is proposing to focus more attention on the Retreat rather than the Executive Sessions with the Leaders. The leaders would then be only required to discuss a few important issues while the rest of the agenda would be left to the Foreign Ministers to dispense with.

This format would mirror the one used by the APEC where Ministers, meet a few days before the Leaders, would discuss issues and make respective recommendations to the Leaders for formal decisions.

Rt. Hon. Don McKinnon

Sir Michael on his part advised the Commonwealth Secretary General that it was his impression that Small Island States were not recognised enough by the Commonwealth and appealed for more time to be given to smaller Commonwealth Island States to air their views on issues discussed by the Commonwealth.

Tinned fish price dropped

The acting Commissioner of the Independent Consumer Commission Mr Thomas Abe recently announced the decrease in price of Besta tinned fish by 3.3 per cent.

Mr Abe said the International Food Corporation, producers of the Besta tinned fish was given the approval to lower the price of its products.

He said the approval of the decrease has come as a result of the strengthening of the kina against the United States dollar. The kina has increased by 30.63 per cent from $US0.2300 in January 2003 to $US0.3005 this year, since the last price increase was granted to IFC.

"The improvement in the exchange rate has helped the company to recover from a negative contribution of K9.99 per carton of its popular product, the 425g Besta in natural oil - in 2003 to a better K14.53 per carton this year.

Mr Abe said the reduction in the prices of Besta and Supreme was a good sign for the company. He said the kina is doing well against the US dollar and is also slowly gaining momentum against the Australian dollar.

Mr Abe said the decrease in the prices of IFC's mackerel products does not put the company in a bad position but attracts the customers to buy its popular tinned fish products in the competitive market.

He commended the management of IFC for being competitive in the market. The tinned fish products sell at K2.99 and provide a good portion of a simple Papua New Guinean family's daily protein requirement.

EDUCATION

Laimo forms committee for Southern Highlands

The Minister for Education, Mr Michael Laimo, has announced the setting up of a high level committee of top public servants, headed by Secretary for Education, Peter Baki, to assist and advise the Southern Highlands Provincial Government on school subsidy policy options.

Mr Laimo said the committee was formed following a ministerial committee meeting comprising himself, Minister for Inter Government Relations, Sir Peter Barter, Minister for Finance and Treasury, Bart Philemon, and Minister for Petroleum and Energy, Sir Moi Avei and Governor of Southern Highlands, Hami Yawari, to resolve the school problems in the province.

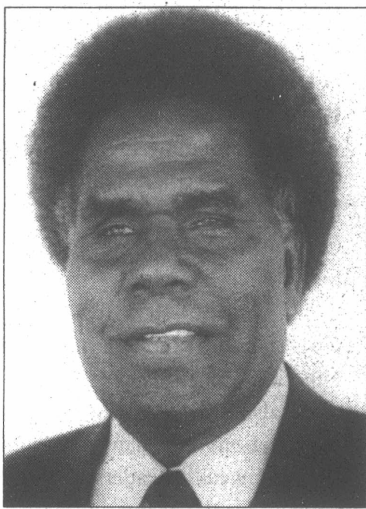

"The longer term goal is to provide advice to the Southern Highlands Government on school subsidy policy options and realistic costs for the future," Mr Laimo said.

Membership of the committee includes, representatives of the Departments of Provincial Affairs, Finance and Treasury, Petroleum and Energy and Southern Highlands Provincial Government.

The committee has the support of Mr Laimo and he looks forward to producing positive results for the children of Southern Highlands.

"The immediate need is to assist the schools to receive enough funds to continue operating, so that the children can complete their education for the year," he said.

Mr Laimo also commended the Southern Highlands Provincial Government for paying a substantial amount of subsidy to support all its schools this year and further welcomed their decision to immediately release funds to the schools.

He expressed concern that a number of provinces in the past did not deliver their provincial education subsidy to their schools, and called on all provincial governments to ensure that they carry out their responsibilities to maintain and operate their schools.

"It is important to make sure that schools receive enough resources from all stakeholders to meet the full costs of staying open and education their children for the full year.

"The National Government policy is that education is a shared responsibility between all stakeholders, including national, provincial and local level governments, parents and the community," said Mr Laimo.

He added that this is the most realistic and cost effective policy because education is very important, although it is expensive.

Mr Laimo also appealed to all stakeholders to support the development, operation and maintenance of the schools.

Higher Education Part II

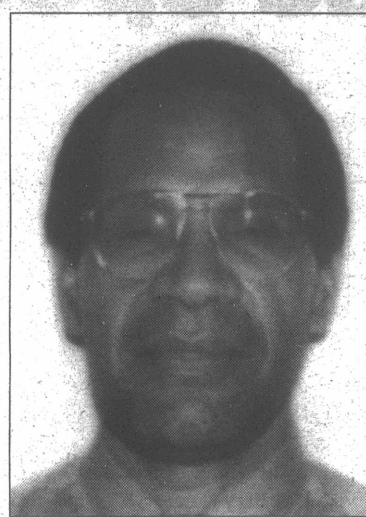

The Director-General of Higher Education, Dr Philip Kereme has announced that his Office is currently reviewing the PNG National Higher Education Plan (NHEP) II of 2000-2004.

Dr Kereme said the NHEP II is an incorporated vision of the 1997 White Paper on Education, Research, Science and Technology, which was approved in 1997 by the National Executive Council (Decision No. 111/97).

He said the objectives of the NHEP II were improvements in the productivity, responsiveness and responsibility and partnership among higher education institutions in eight plan components, each dealing with a key issue in higher education at national system and institution levels. These are:

- 1: Legislation, Structure and Coordination
- 2: Academic Programs
- 3: Access, Equity and Output
- 4: Accreditation and Quality Assurance
- 5: Distance and Flexible Learning
- 6: Resources
- 7: Institutional Governance and Management
- 8: Research, Science and Technology

He said the intended outcomes were development of higher education, research, science and technology, within a coherent policy framework, by increasing productivity in standards, quality and relevance of outputs and improving resource management and diversification of income sources.

Dr Kereme said diversifications of income sources were particularly important to offset the decline budgetary grants to the higher education sub-sector, as were standards, quality, and relevance of outputs.

He said as the plan period draws to the end, questions are being asked about; "the relative performance of the sub-sector since 1997.

"The White Paper on Higher Education, Research, Science and Technology was inaugurated in 2000 when the NHEP II was launched and questions have been asked how many of the 68 sub-components or activities of the NHEP II have been achieved.

Other important questions are the legacies of the last five to ten years (1991-2000) in higher education performance, long standing problems and new realities affecting program delivery and opportunities to be derived from the past and external technological and political impacts on PNG and higher education provision", Dr Kereme said.

He said the review also covers the next five to fifteen years. Such questions that must be addressed by the review exercise includes how the higher education institutions and research, science and technological institutes will support the processes of scientific and technological and social developments necessary to support a fully marketed economy, poverty alleviation and employment creation, service delivery and good governance.

"Any long-term plans must be concerned about the major obstacles likely to affect the country and the system over a fifteen-year time span. Therefore it will be necessary to take into account the most appropriate methods for identifying positive and other trends and the technical expertise that will provide the leadership to foreshadow anticipated eventualities and schedule the activities into several developmental phases (Short-Medium-Long Term). Partnership approach and open dialogue will be absolutely necessary for the review process", Dr Kereme said.

Participants in the review are all the six universities, science and technological institutes under the Ministry for Higher Education, Research, Science and Technology, and other departments operating tertiary institutions. The private education agencies for profit institutions will be invited to contribute.

Literacy awareness vital

A high rate of literacy in Papua New Guinea has caused millions of kina been lost from our valuable resources. This is according to Dr Mark Solon, the dean of Arts at the Divine Word University who spoke at the National Literacy and Awareness Council meeting in Madang last month.

Dr Solon claimed that National Statistics figures shows threat the number of illiterate Papua New Guineans will be three times higher than the educated population. The literacy rate according to statistics is improving by 1% while the birth rate is increasing by 3%.

"Papua New Guinea cannot afford to ignore the high rate of illiteracy. The economic, social and psychological cost will be far reaching and devastating for our children, said Dr Solon.

"If we do not address the situation now, we would not be able to compromise the future of our children and grandchildren".

He also stressed that if the trend continued PNG would be left in a disadvantage and unfair position in the trade, commerce and industry area.

AGRICULTURE

DAL Secretary: Agriculture extension summit a success

The Secretary for Agriculture and Livestock, Matthew'wela Kanua has described the two-day national agricultural extension summit held in Lae recently, as a great success.

Mr Kanua said the event was important in achieving the summit goal which was, to provide an opportunity and the processes through which agricultural extension policies and specific extension models would be derived, to facilitate and enhance development in the country.

"The contributions from the participants during the two days were stimulating and supportive of the summit goal, objective and the expected outcome.

"The issues and the resolutions arising from the summit were to be articulated and finalized at a post-summit workshop attended by selected key participants and invited resource personnel," Mr Kanua added.

More than 300 delegates attended the summit, representing relevant government departments, provincial administrations, agricultural commodity agencies, non-government organizations, private sector, donor agencies, farmer associations and individual farmers.

Mr Kanua said the consultations have commenced the processes, which will continue to be developed to ensure better coordination of agricultural extension delivery services to boost agriculture development.

"The consultations ensured that the outcome of the extension summit is an integral component of the National Agriculture Development Plan (NADP), which in turn is consistent with the objectives of the Medium Term Development Strategy," Mr Kanua added.

He also expressed satisfaction over the outcome of the summit and was confident that the national agricultural extension system would undergo positive changes for the betterment of the people.

Mr Kanua publicly acknowledged and expressed his appreciation to the major sponsor of the summit - AusAID, who also provided facilitators to assist with the summit proceedings.

Other agencies that provided financial assistance included the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC), The hosts - Department of National Planning and Rural Development, Department of Agriculture and Livestock and University of Technology also assisted with funding and logistical support. Trukai Industries and other private firms also supported the summit.

"Without the corporate sponsorship and commitment from the donor agencies, government agencies and private sector, the two-day summit would not have been a success," he added.

Mr Kanua paid tribute to the former Secretaries of DAL, Paul Sai'I, Miri Setai, Ted Sitapai and Utula Samana, for their positive contributions to the sector during their tenure and also for their continued participation in agricultural consultative meetings.

Gov't identifies law and order - priority

The Government has identified law and order as one of its expenditure priorities, besides, transport maintenance, primary health, basic education and the promotion of rural income earning opportunities.

The Department of National Planning and Rural Development, which plays a lead role in the implementation and monitoring process of government programs, has established the National Law and Justice Policy and Plan of Action, with the aim of directing the sector in the medium term and provides an overall rationale that links the work of each law and justice agency and guide them toward the pursuit of a common goal - that is 'A Just, Safe and Secure Environment.

Sectoral agencies include, the Police, who enforces the law; Courts that administer and interpret these laws; Attorney General, who provides legal services and Correctional Services, who provide custody and rehabilitation of convicted offenders.

A statement from the Department of National Planning and Rural Development says the law and justice system has been under review for more than three years.

"The most important reform to date in the sector is the shift from agency specific approach to a sectoral approach," it added

The law and justice sector is a system made up of inter-dependents parts where a shortfall in one part will affect the workings of the other parts. The Law and Justice Sector Program, the Justice Advisory Group and the Enhanced Cooperation Package provide external support.

The Law and Justice Sector program supports the implementation of the National Law and Justice Policy through a sectoral approach and further established the National Coordination Mechanism and the Law and Justice Sector Working Group.

The sector has appealed to all churches, non-government organizations, community based groups and communities to help achieve its goal.

Timber Market Information

Bridging the gap between buyers and suppliers of PNG timber products

Managing Director for PNG Forests Authority, Terry Warra.

A Message from the Acting Managing Director of PNG Forest Authority Mr Terry Warra

WELCOME to the first edition of this column on Timber Marketing Information System (MkIS) which will be published every month in Gavamani Sivarai. MkIS was established recently by the Papua New Guinea Forest Authority (PNGFA) in consultation with stakeholders, for PNG.

Our Timber MkIS is to be a One-Stop-Destination for the setting up and running of small to medium scale operations that buy and sell rough sawn, value-added, niche market and eco-label timber products. This service aims to bridge the information gap between timber businesses and assist the long-term development of PNG's forest resource owners. However, it does not get involved with the commercial aspects of buying and selling timber.

The Area and Provincial Offices of the National Forest Service will play an important role as collection and distribution agents, linking up with timber buyers, suppliers and their service providers across PNG. Our timber marketing network is also being extended overseas, in line with the PNG government's export driven economic policy.

Timber marketing data and information will be processed within the Timber Marketing Information Centre at the Forest Research Institute (FRI) in Lae, Morobe province. Technical reference and promotional material on PNG timbers are provided by our partners at the FRI's Forest Products Programme. The Timber Marketing Information Centre is working in collaboration with the Marketing Branch of the National Forest Service. It is part of the European Union funded PNG Eco Forestry Programme.

A comprehensive set of timber marketing tools are now being developed in consultation with our Technical Advisory Group of clients and in accordance with the National Eco Forestry Policy of PNG.

The policy is currently being finalised. It went before the National Forest Board during its meeting no. 101 held in Port Moresby on May 4, 2004. The tools include:

- A Start & Improve Your Timber Business Training Programme;
- Technical Reference Material on PNG Timbers;
- A Timber Marketing Information Database;
- A Market Access Map of PNG;
- A Market Research Report; and
- A Promotional Kit on PNG Timbers

This year a promotional team from the National Forest Service and the European Union funded Eco Forestry Programme will be travelling across PNG to introduce the Timber MkIS and its services to our provincial clients. For more information please contact the Timber Marketing Information Centre on: Tel: 472 7569. Email: info_market@fri.pngfa.gov.pg

Mining industry incentives for investment

Mining Minister, Sam Akotai, has assured the mining industry of the National Governments commitment to work closely with the industry in removing barriers to investment.

Mr Akotai told participants at a seminar recently that the government has already introduced a series of incentives in the new mining fiscal regime and has embarked on a study of Impediments to business with a view to removing barriers to investment.

The incentives introduced include simplified accelerated depreciation provisions, a competitive tax rate and double deductions for exploration expenditures.

In his opening address Mr Akotai said the government has placed export led growth as a key objective.

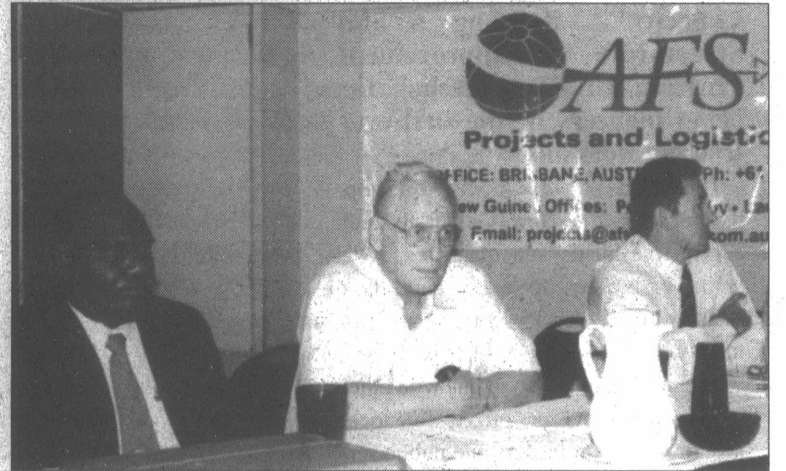

"We saw the need to increase exports of our agricultural, fisheries and forest products as well as our mineral products to find new exports", said Mr Akotai.

Mr Akotai said the mining and petroleum industries have produced most of our country's exports earning since independence. Total value of merchandise exports in 2003 were about 7.7 billion kina of that gold accounted for 2.8 billion kina

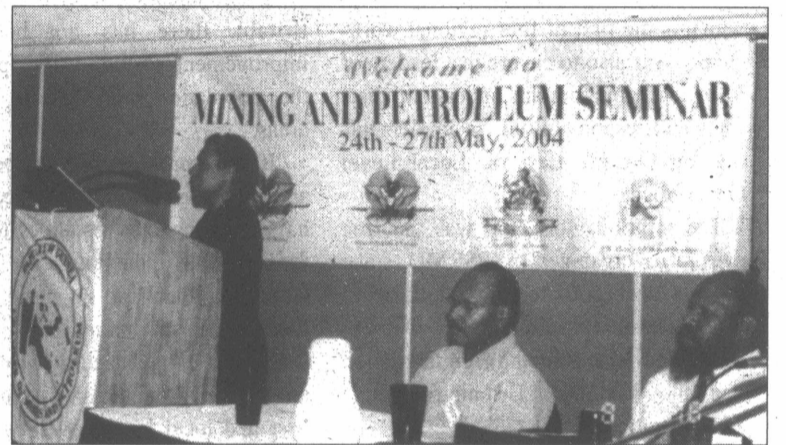

We are now facing a period of continued mineral production, stable to increasing exploration, several new mines, coming on stream in 2004 and 2005 and a closer relationship with the Ministry of the Environment.

"My ministry has continued to work with the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF). I have no doubt that we shall need their support and assistance over the next few years.

The World Bank intervention with the Department is a little over half way through its term and is making a positive contribution to the turnaround of exploration in PNG," the minister said.

The Minister also highlighted the issue of landowner compensation and benefits that has been causing increasing problems for resource projects.

He cited the recent toppling of the electricity powerlines between Hides Gas Field and the Porgera Mine and Mt Kare lawlessness.

Mr Akotai also announced plans to create a frame work, which places limits on landowner compensation and benefits via a review of the Mining Act.

Adopting a more sustainable approach to landowner benefits such as future generation trusts will also alleviate some of the problems and infrastructure development plans.

The Minister said next few years will be time for positive growth for our economy and our people sure we have to take some very tough decisions.

"I believe my government has started that process with the 2003 budget and various measures to ensure good governance.

The Minister commended the mining industry for the great contribution made to PNG economy and hoped that it will continue.

Future of mining depend on stakeholder interactions

Constructive interaction between the private sector, government policy makers and regulators and the landowners will have a positive bearing on the future of mining in PNG, Secretary of Mining, Mr Kuma Aua said

In his closing remarks at a recent mining seminar, Mr Aua said sharing of challenges and experience at venues such as the seminar would enable a deeper tolerance and understanding of problems and challenges facing the industry.

He said such an opportunity should result in a more informed approach to dealing with other stakeholders and their issues.

Mr Aua urged company representatives to understand the people and the manner of business in Papua New Guinea." You are the key contact points between your home offices and directors and your business in PNG.

"A better understanding of our country will enable you to better manage commercial and particularly scheduling expectations that were demanded by your boards and senior management, Mr Aua said.

He said recognition of Papua New Guinea's cultural attributes into the company's business practise will go a long way towards achieving one's corporate goals.

"This conference allows the technical merits of their endeavours to be aired and recognised publicly for the common good.

Some of the points that spring to mind include:

- the exciting progress towards development of Hidden Valley, Wafi and Simberi project
- the rapid advance of underground development at Kainantu Gold Project and
- the enthusiasm for exploration on existing tenements and for PNG in General.

He said there were several issues raised that the government will be addressing in the future.

Mr Aua acknowledged the presence of several landowner leaders and representatives at the seminar.

He also commended the organisers and thanked all the speakers for taking the time to prepare provoking papers.

Public Sector: Capacity building

Director General of the Public Sector Reform Management Unit (PSRMU), Bill Kua, commended participants of the Capacity Building and Structural Improvement Program (CBSIP) workshop, for being pioneers of the first-ever training workshop.

The purpose of the CBSIP Workshop, the first for the New Guinea Islands Region presidents and managers, is to empower leaders to understand their roles to ensure services reach the community.

The workshop is also in line with other reform programs organized for local level government leaders and public servants towards effective service delivery to a larger community.

Mr Kua said the aim of the workshop, which is the first of four regional workshops, was also to ensure that leaders of local level governments understood their roles and responsibilities in implementing the Organic Law on Local Level Government.

The training workshop was the first ever to be organized by PSRMU, since the introduction of the Organic Law on Local Level Government in October 1995, and was hosted in collaboration with the West New Britain provincial administration.

National Departments of Prime Minister and NEC, Personnel Management, Finance, Village Courts, Education, Health, Provincial and Local Level Government, National Economic Fiscal Commission also participated in the workshop.

Mr Kua said apart from the best telecommunication service in West New Britain, there has not been much improvement to eighty-five percent of the population who live in the rural areas.

"If these problems of service delivery are not addressed, the country will not have the financial resources to provide for its people in the long term. The infrastructures that are in place must be looked after and maintained," he said.

Mr Kua emphasized the need to have an 'Activity Plan' at the provincial, district and local level government levels, as a guide to achieve their expenditure objectives.

Mr Kua also encouraged participants to involve themselves in economic development and invest resources in viable projects.

With regards to HIV/AIDS issue, Mr Kua said, it has become a development issue in the country, and leaders of local-level governments need to incorporate their plans with mainstream programs towards the ongoing awareness programs.

Participants also contributed towards the HIV/AIDS Awareness Program in West New Britain, and money will be used towards community, care and counseling program in the province.

Mr Kua also challenged the participants to discuss openly the issue of HIV/AIDS to ensure that the communities are kept informed of the deadly disease.

Deputy Administrator of West New Britain, Willie Endo, also challenged participants to transfer what they learnt from the workshop into workable programs and further encouraged them to organize similar trainings at the ward levels and strengthen their networking.

Public Sector Reform - Kalinoe

The Government is moving forward with reforms to improve governance, transparency and efficiency of the public sector.

Chief Secretary to Government, Joshua Kalinoe, when addressing the Capacity Building and Structural Improvement Program (CBSIP) in Kimbe recently, said improving governance and financial compliance system was a key component of the Public Sector Reform program.

He added that strengthening of the government systems of administration and assist leaders at community level to perform their roles and responsibilities, are also paramount in seeing that basic services are delivered effectively in the communities.

As part of the strategy to improve and strengthen service delivery systems, the Government has endorsed the ongoing programs and initiatives by the Public Sector Reform Advisory Group (PSRAG) and Public Sector Reform Management Unit (PSRMU) with financing from the Asian Development Bank.

"This is an important program that will address a cross-section of public sector issues and capacity problems, improve management and reduce cost through the process of restructure, reorganization and performance management.

"The program will assist the Government achieve the objective of 'right sizing' of the Public Service in the country," Mr Kalinoe said.

The Capacity Building and Service Improvement Program training workshop is part of the overall public sector reform program to improve the capacity of service delivery systems and ensure that services are actually delivered.

Several reforms announced by the Government will be focused in four areas:

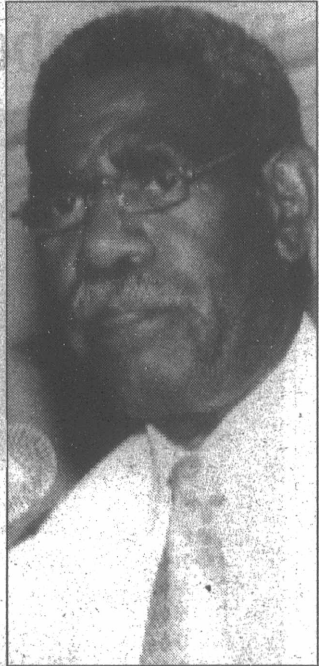

- Improving governance and financial management and compliance systems;
- Making major structural reforms to the expenditure of the budget;
- Restructure of debts portfolio and aid harmonization approaches as part of the introduction of a Treasury Corporation; and
- Ensure that policies are put in place for promoting export industries.

Mr Kalinoe said the operational deficiencies of the provincial reform system reflected the fact that supporting systems and institutions have not been established or have been inadequately developed, and key pieces of legislations remain outstanding.

However, the Government endorsed a review of the inter-governmental financial relationship in order to improve the system of decentralized government and service delivery.

The National Economic and Fiscal Commission undertook the review and the report was tabled in Parliament in July 2003, which proposed a number of reforms aimed at improving the delivery of services by introducing functional grants, and addressing other financial inequities in the current system.

Mr Kalinoe challenged both the national and provincial administrations to restore and strengthen the delivery systems for better and effective delivery of services to the people intended for.

Highlands highway Government priority

Minister for Works, Gabriel Kapris has reaffirmed the Government's commitment to maintain the Highlands Highway, which he says is one of government's high priorities.

Mr Kapris said in 2001 the Snowy Mountain Engineering Corporation was engaged to carry out a feasibility study to assess critical sections of the highway and to recommend ways to maintain them with suitable management arrangements.

He said despite on-going negative publicity the Department is working together with donor agencies and other stakeholders, to develop maintenance programs with the limited resource available to the government.

"The Lae - Nadzab section, the Kassam - Pass and various other sections in between the border of Eastern Highlands and Simbu have been upgraded with funding support from AusAID, which continue to play major role in the highway's maintenance", Mr Kapris said.

The Asian Development Bank and several private companies such as Chevron Niugini and Porgera joint Venture continue to play a vital role in provide funding for the maintenance of the Highlands Highway.

Mr Kapris said the Department itself, through funds from the National Road Maintenance program, is committed to ensuring maintenance of critical sections that have not been picked up by donor agencies.

"All these maintenance works are going on as the Government continues to negotiate with interested donors to fund the rehabilitation of the highway", Mr Kapris said.

Meanwhile, the Minister for Works has also reaffirmed the Government support for the Yumi Yet Bridges Program adding that the contract for the current program would expire in April 2005.

"Discussions are underway to find and extend Yumi Yet Bridge Program and include new provisions for building of wharves, jetties and ferries for maritime provinces.

He said relevant government agencies have been asked to consider the economic benefits under the proposal for extension taking into consideration the financial, operational, economic benefit.

the bridge program, and comes amidst indications that it would engage Mabey and Johnson, manufacturers of the bailey bridges used in the programs.

The Minister said a permanent solution for the Markham Bridge, the longest bridge in the country, would be to build a permanent dual lane Delta Bridge, which would require 18 bridges or so to construct.

As of February 2004, 63 bridges have been completed under the program while four were under construction. With its movement to the Islands region, the bridge program has now almost covered the entire country, even though there is still a lot more that needs to be done before the program's aims are achieved.

Orchard show attracts crowds

Orchards from Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore and Taiwan were on display at the Sir Rabbie Namaliu Orchard Garden at the National Parliament Ground on June 12 - 13.

Patron of the PNG Orchard Society and Minister for Foreign Affairs and Immigration, Sir Rabbie Namaliu, said the society had been working over the last 35 years to promote the development of PNG Orchard growing.

Sir Rabbie said that commercial growing of orchards especially for the export market was very viable in the country.

He hoped that the show will help promote the growth of the industry and encourage the growing of orchards for our own enjoyment.

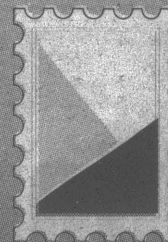

Papua New Guinea can learn from countries such as Thailand, Malaysia and Singapore in the development of successful, high quality orchard and other cut flowers project, the Minister concluded.

Thousands of residents in Port Moresby flocked to the show to see and enjoy the rare orchards on display from other countries.

Many interested people pledge their support for such a show and expressed their willingness to participate in future orchard shows in the city.

Chief welcomes Maladina back

Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare has appointed the Leader of People Action Party (PAP), Moses Maladina as Minister for National Planning and six vice ministers.

Mr Maladina was the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Agriculture and Livestock when he was removed from cabinet following a major cabinet reshuffle last month.

Acting Governor-General and Speaker of Parliament, Mr Jeffery Nape, swore in the Minister at the Government House on June 1.

Four new Vice Ministers have been sworn in. They include the Vice Minister for Works, Francis Kunai, Vice Minister for Internal Security, James Togel, Vice Minister for Trade and Industry, Timothy Tala and Vice Minister for Finance and Treasury, Robert Kopaol.

The Prime Minister said other Vice Ministers were still at their electorates, Former Minister for National Planning, Sinai Brown has been moved to the Public Service portfolio.

Sir Michael said the position of Deputy Prime Minister will be vacant until he assess the political situation.

"As a political leader, I have to make sure that my boat does not shake and to take precautions", he said.

Sir Michael said under the Organic Law on Integrity of Political Parties and Candidates, individual members maintained their individual mandate in all matters except for the election of Prime Minister, enactments of Constitutional laws, the budget and vote of no confidence in the PM. In this matter the will of political parties prevail.

Sir Michael also announced a Bill to amend the vice ministers Act and to change the title to parliamentary secretary.

The swearing ceremony was witnessed by Cabinet ministers and government members.

Somare explains: Why section 145 Amendment Bill is important

The Government has decided not to pursue this proposed amendment of the National Constitution Section 145 bill dealing with the motion of no confidence in government and to extend grace period from the current 18 month to 36 months.

Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare said under the National Constitution his Government's 18 months term in office lapsed last February 2004 and has forced certain members to take advantage of the Section 145 to plot the removal of the current Government.

Sir Michael said the original intention of a motion of no confidence (Section 145) in the Constitution is to ensure that a leader of government does not abuse his office and in the process expose the government and its people to unnecessary hardships.

This is one of the many checks and balances of a true democracy.

"Unfortunately we are witnessing again the abuse of the motion of no confidence provision by certain members of Parliament who are willing to risk the gains that this government has made to date to make their grab for power.

Sir Michael said the National Alliance Party originally wanted to change Section 145 to allow for the dissolution of Parliament to take place following a successful vote of no confidence because we feel it is the people of this country who choose the majority party to form government after a general election.

And therefore if leaders want to change governments on the floor of Parliament they should be prepared to go back to the polls and seek the mandate once again from the people.

However, after numerous consultation among the coalition partners, a compromise was reached that an amendment would be made so that a vote on

Section 145 could not be made until 36 months after the formation of government.

Sir Michael said contrary to what critics are saying, if we as Members of Parliament really believed that a government is not performing in the best interest of its people, it would not be afraid to go back to the polls.

Sir Michael said therefore that the behaviour of Members of Parliament at present blatantly show why amending Section 145 of the National Constitution is so important for the country if we want political stability that would guarantee an economic climate suitable for industry to prosper and more income opportunities for our people.

"Amending Section 145 will mean that my Government or any other government has the security to pass three consecutive budgets and put into effect our promised policies of the 2002 General elections".

"Without the amendment to Section 145, political instability will remain in the corridors of Parliament preventing Members from concentrating on their constituents and implementing change but rather worrying about being removed from office by opportunist who are putting their own interests before the interests of the nation", Sir Michael said.
