Where did we go wrong, Papua New Guinea?

PAPUA New Guinea is known as one of the most corrupted countries in the world. And this is a status we acquired only after 30 to 35 years of independence.

Obviously, people like the Prime Minister Sir Michael Somare and other prominent politicians and long time civil servants are aware of this unfortunate classification that we have received, but to date, there has been no response from the national government either denying that statement or refuting it and at the same time, offering some explanation as to how and why we were tagged with that stigma.

It is high time we Papua New Guineans did some soul-searching to determine why we went wrong and how, and then further determine if there are ways we can fight bribery and corruption and eliminate it from Papua New Guinea.

It is a known fact that bribery and corruption in PNG is not an isolated practice or transaction. Bribery and corruption in this country has reached endemic proportions.

At a superficial level, the institution of State is very much alive; the machinery of government is still operative; the rule of law appears to be functional, and there is some social order in the country.

But when one starts to look behind the scene, what stands out the most is that the machinery of government is not operating impartially in a routine manner by application of established procedures under the rule of law.

Since independence, the

whole spectrum of the PNG society has undergone a complete transformation. In particular, the institution of State and the machinery of government have now become a billion dollar business for the politician, his family members, business associates and his cronies.

Thus, our system of government no longer functions as a public institution for the benefit of the public at large. Any benefit that ultimately trickles down to the public, is at best, an incidental aspect of the whole exercise which is geared for the benefit of the corrupt politician and his kind.

The frightening aspect of it all is that bribery and corruption in Papua New Guinea is now a way of life, a way of staying in business, and it is what keeps the State and the machinery of government in operation.

Just look at the Honorable Peter O'Neill, who has been appointed by the PM as the Finance and Treasury Minister. This MP was referred to unfavourably in the POSF Enquiry so his record in dealings of a financial nature were suspect, and this ought to cast a bad cloud over his status, but for the prime minister, this is not relevant. What is relevant is that Peter O'Neill is a close associate. Whenever the prime minister shouts, 'jump', he gets a prompt, "how high, Sir?"

The PM needs people like that to look after the national cheque book.

This is the kind of corruption we are talking about. The kind of considerations that ought to apply in matters of appointment to public offices have been discarded, so that such appointments are no longer based on considerations of merit including experience, good track record and personal integrity.

Papua New Guinea is the only country in the world where an ex-convict, a thief, and a child molester can hold public office.

The kind of consideration that merits appointment these days is the ability to deliver upon command without any question so that the more gullible a person is, the better his chances of being appointed to a public office of significance.

We pose the question: Is there any hope that things will soon change for the better so that we can get rid of this phenomenon of corruption in this country? Yes, we would like to see a change, but the indications to date are that corruption in this country has burrowed deep within the whole spectrum of society so as to permeate the entire system of government and public administration so that it has now become a way of life in PNG.

It is not an easy task to talk about changing this phenomenon, let alone, eliminate it forever from PNG society.

There is a saying in Africa that goes: "No wise man spits out juice put into his mouth".

Thus, when you realize that corruption is a billion dollar business in this country, you are awed by that realization and a sense of helplessness creeps in, before you become powerless, numb or simply slip into 'apathy mode' like where we are today.

The common man on the street now feels powerless to control the phenomenon of corruption and thus apathy reigns throughout this country.

From time to time, we get individuals like Professor Nongorr shouting 'murder' from the wilderness and then you hear objections from lost souls like Peter Donigi and if you're lucky, you get good people like Dr. Allan Marat and Belden Namah speaking their minds. But ultimately, the wind stops blowing and the seas calm and it is back to business as usual for the corrupted society of people and their multi-billion corruption business.

Thus, we return to our question: Any chance that we the people can change this phenomenon of corruption? From the available evidence, the unfortunate answer is a flat "No, not likely in the immediate future" and for the long term, the answer is, "UNCERTAINTY!"

We repeat our assertion that corruption has burrowed deep into society and is now so deeply-entrenched that any form of surgery will not remove it. In this country corruption is big business and corruption pays its bills so people can and do get rich by occupying positions of power and privilege; people get rich by making decisions affecting people's lives and career.

Yes, we may elect a new batch of politicians in the year 2012, but what good is that when they enter a service that is already corrupt? They will simply get corrupted like the rest; that, we call "corruption by association or corruption by circumstance" so that ultimately, they get fully sucked into the system.

Thus, corruption in this country is like a big black hole out there in space that is notorious for sucking anything that gets within reach. In this country, corruption sucks!

We are now heading the way of the South Americans. How do they do it over there? In South America, the saying is: "If we cannot change the corrupted system by the ballot, then we have to do it by the bullet".

Unfortunately, this is the way we are now heading in this country.

Slowly, the government is depriving the people of access to different avenues for addressing their grievances like the Leadership Code and the Environment Law Amendment and the refusal for people to stage peaceful demonstrations. This, in turn, is creating a bottle-neck situation which in time, will explode.

Our hunch is that if we do not get into civil unrest of some magnitude in this country, then we are creating conditions for the rise of a dictator. If that happens, then let us pray that it would be a benevolent dictator and not otherwise.

This is the way history unfolded itself in Africa and the Americas.

We already have likely candidates on the political scene busy spending public money and singing out daily praises for themselves in the local media.

World Bank approves loan

Papua New Guinea will receive US$15m from the World Bank to roll out a pilot rural communication project.

And the Minister responsible for Communication and Information, Hon. Patrick Tammur has welcomed the decision by the World Bank Board to release funding for this project.

"This is indeed welcome news. The approval now enables my Department to implement the roll out of the project in the pilot provinces of Simbu and East Sepik," Mr Tammur said.

The World Bank Board met in Washington on July 22 and approved the loan.

This followed successful loan negotiations between the State and the Bank in Sydney, Australia from 19-23 May 2010.

Minister Tammur welcomes decision

The State team was led by Acting First Assistant Secretary of the Department of Treasury, John Uware and also included Secretary for Communication and Information, Henao Iduhu, State Solicitor, George Minjihau, PANGTEL Director-General, Charles Punaha, and National Planning First Assistant Secretary (Aid Coordination and Management), Joseph Turia.

"As much as road, bridges and ports are important for our country's future growth and development, communication is equally crucial.

"This Government is progressively working towards connecting the nation through a communication superhighway where our people can quickly and easily source information and resources online," Minister Tammur said.

He said the World Bank approval would go a long way in connecting the rural people in the two pilot provinces, as well as up to 60 internet points in other parts of the country.

Announcing the approval of the zero-interest loan, the World Bank said the Rural Communication Project "will provide access to telecommunications for over 420,000 rural Papua New Guineans in the provinces of Chimbu and East Sepik, and facilitate public internet access in around sixty district centers.

"Increased access to information and services is expected to contribute to economic growth, social development and local business development in the project areas," the Bank said in a statement.

He reiterated earlier statements that the loan would be utilised through three components, namely technical assistance for the Universal Access Scheme (UAS), the UAS demonstration projects, where the bulk of the funding will be concentrated, and for policy and project management support.

The Minister said he was also hopeful that the wider Integrated Government Information System (IGIS) would soon be endorsed through the relevant and vigorous bureaucratic processes so that loan negotiations can take place with the EXIM Bank of China.

"This is the backbone that all communications will ride on, including this rural communication project and others like e-commerce, e-education, e-passport and other online applications," Mr Tammur said.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister, Grand Chief Sir Michael Somare, a strong

"IGIS will be the backbone for all applications will ride on."

advocate of ICT as a powerful tool for development said the "extension and maintenance of telecommunications infrastructure in many rural areas of PNG requires a great deal of investment."

In a recent statement on the project, he said: "The implementation of the rural communication project is a Government community service obligation (CSO) under the overall ICT Policy.

"There will be many beneficiaries of improved connectivity in rural PNG, including small businesses, agriculture producers, service industries, education and health services, government agencies, and rural and remote communities who would enjoy regular and reliable contact with loved ones," he said. ■

Secretary for Communication and Information, Mr Henao Iduhu expressing appreciation and gratitude to World Bank Country Director for Papua New Guinea, Timor-Leste and Solomon Islands, Mr Ferid Belhaj over World Bank approval of the loan for rural telecommunication roll-out. This followed successful talks follow up in Port Moresby several weeks ago. Mr Belhaj was with Ms Laura Bailey, (in center) the World Bank Country Manager in PNG.

Govt endorses climate change plan

The Government has endorsed the climate change action plan for the country.

The 39-page document features climate change mitigation and low carbon growth initiatives, climate related hazards facing PNG, and adaption measures to deal with them.

It also sets out a plan for immediate action to complete national consultation process and securing funding.

These include policy changes, potential regulatory and legislative changes and large scale programs.

The plan was launched in Port Moresby by the Acting Executive Director of the Office of Climate Change and Environment Sustainability, Dr Wari Iamo and PNG's roving Climate Change Ambassador, Dr Kevin Conrad at the conclusion of the Whole-of Government Climate Change Workshop recently.

Under the plan, the Office of Climate Change will be strengthened with manpower capacity and funding over the next six months to December while provincial consultations will be undertaken within the next three months.

Forestry and agriculture projects would be launched in selected areas of the country.

Opening the Climate Change Workshop, Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare said his Government was ready to access financial resources to implement Reducing Emission from Deforestation and Forest Degradation (REDD) in Papua New Guinea.

A United Nations-sponsored agreement has been signed to manage a funding of $US4.5 billion to undertake REDD fast-start actions over the next three years in developing countries like PNG.

At the Oslo Climate Conference, PNG was voted the co-Chair of the International REDD Partnership Agreement.

"As a Government, we have developed a draft national climate compatible development strategy.

"We are also establishing the new Office of Climate Change and Development but more work still remains," Sir Michael said.

He said climate change require the commitment of all stakeholders across government and sector boundaries. ■

M'Buke island gets PNGSDP assistance

The people of M'Buke Island in Manus Province will now be able to improve their agriculture projects with a K180, 000 funding assistance from the PNG Sustainable Development Program in partnership with the National Agriculture Research Institute (NARI).

The funding will support the M'Buke Island People's Association (MIPA) for two years to introduce NARI recommended crop varieties and techniques to alleviate the current food shortages and malnutrition problems on the island.

The islanders have initiated several self-help agricultural projects on the island for their benefit in the recent past.

At the official launch of the program recently, Chief Program Officer of PNGSDP, Ms Ginia Siaguru said her company was delighted to work in partnership with a local community that had been able to coordinate self-help projects.

"You did not wait for the help to come. You helped yourselves first and completed a number of projects before approaching the company for financial assistance.

"Therefore, the company is confident that this project meets our criteria of sustainability and will be completed successfully," she said.

The project will be implemented by NARI who has partnered with PNGSDP on a number of agricultural projects in Western, Oro, Milne Bay and Central Province.

Funding is made available through PNGSDP's Community Sustainable Development program, to support and promote sustainable development projects throughout the country.

The crops include drought tolerant yam, sweet potatoes and cassava. ■

Jiwaka women get funds

Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare has come to the aid of the Jiwaka Ecumenical Women's Federation (JEWF) with K30,000.

International Relations Advisor to the Prime Minister, Mr Leonard Louma presented the cheque on Sir Michael's behalf to JEWF advisor, Ms Elizabeth Lolo Bradshaw at the Morauta Haus in Moresby on July 16.

The funding was provided through the Prime Minister's discretionary funds.

Mr Louma said women's groups such as JEWF play important roles in the various communities they serviced and he hoped the K30,000 would be put to good use to help Jiwaka women.

"I have great pleasure in presenting this cheque to JEWF on behalf of the Prime Minister as it is an initial capital that will aid the women's group to achieve its aspirations," he said.

The JEWF comprises of women from various churches in the Jiwaka area and has about 10,000 members.

Mrs Bradshaw was grateful for the funding assistance and said, it was the first time for the group to get such assistance since it was set up in 1989.

She said the group's aim was to put an end to the stereo-type mentality, where women are made to feel inferior because of cultural barriers.

JEWF aims to empower women so that they can come out and make a difference in their households and communities," she said.

Mrs Bradshaw said JEWF will be officially launched on August 15.

Sir Michael will be in Jiwaka in August to the National Alliance Party Convention. ■

Somare pays tribute to Bishop Dambui

Prime Minister Sir Michael Somare has expressed sadness at the passing of the Late Cherubim Dambui, Auxiliary Bishop of the Port Moresby Archdiocese.

Sir Michael said he was deeply saddened when he learnt of Bishop Cherubim's passing.

"On behalf of the people of Papua New Guinea, the East Sepik people, Lady Veronica and my family, I send our most heartfelt sympathies to the immediate family members and the Catholic faithful of the Archdiocese of Port Moresby on Bishop Cherubim's death."

"Late Bishop Cherubim dedicated 35 years of his Christian life serving God and the Catholic Church - 26 years as priest and nine years serving as bishop."

"Bishop Cherubim was a dedicated man of God who committed himself first ordained in 1974 as a priest of the Diocese of Wewak.

From 1976-1979, he came into the political arena as an interim premier for East Sepik and later became the premier from 1979-1983. He then left politics and went back to serving the Church.

Late Bishop Cherubim became Director of Holy Spirit Seminary at Bomana from 1989 to 1990 and achieved yet another greater role when he was ordained the Auxiliary Bishop of Port Moresby Archdiocese.

"I had the privilege of having worked closely with him during his term in politics and also through the work of the church."

"I salute the late Bishop Cherubim for touching the lives of many through his service to the Catholic Church and Papua New Guinea."

"May his soul rest in eternal peace," Sir Michael said. ■

More students graduate from technical college

The Technical, and Vocational Education Training (TVET) has seen more students graduating in different fields at various institutions around the country.

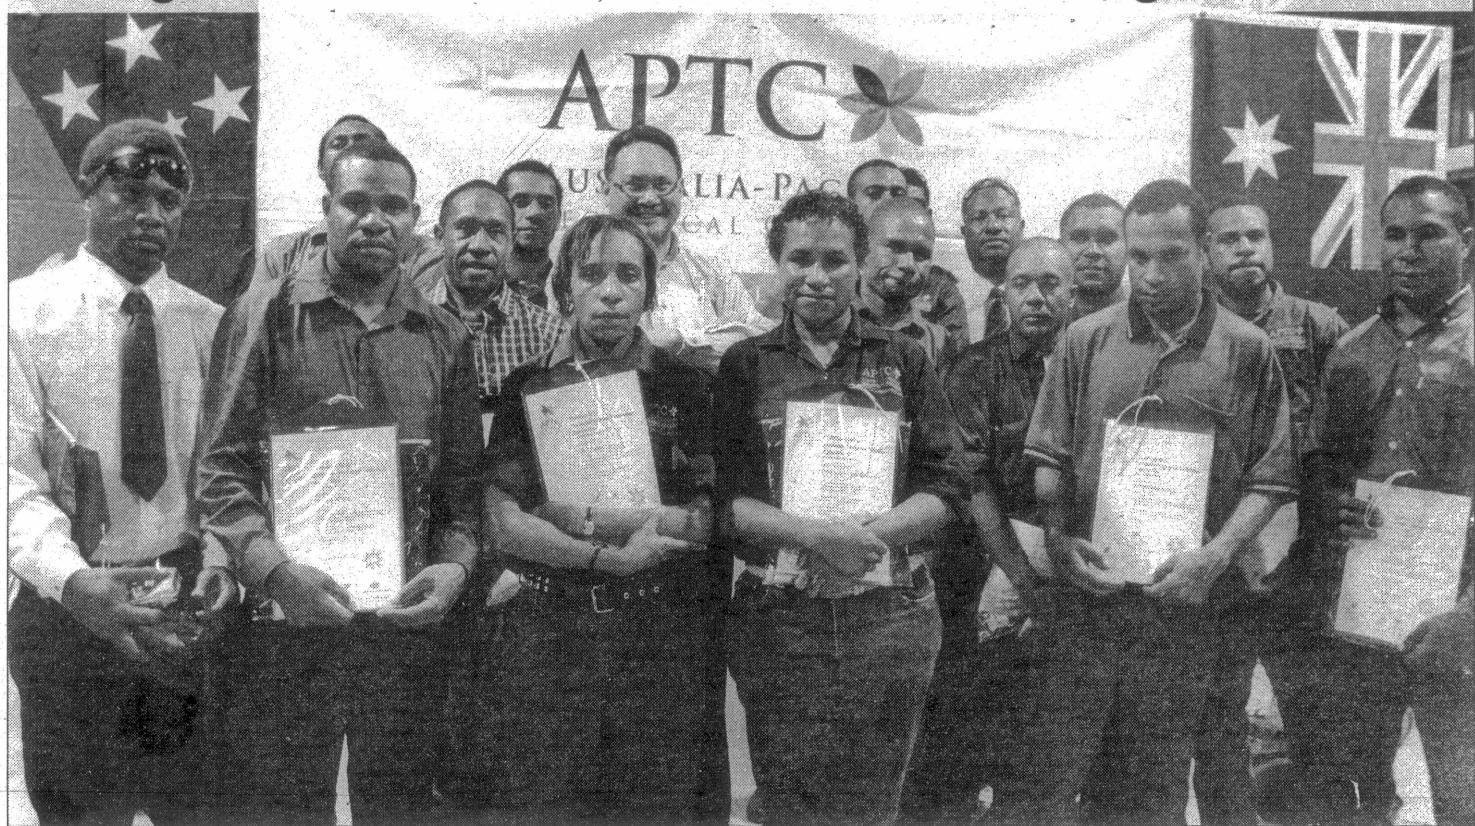

And one of this is the Australian Pacific Technical College (APTC) in Port Moresby, which saw more than 146 students graduating recently.

The students graduated with Certificate III in a wide range of trades including, carpentry, electrical, engineering, auto mechanical technology, painting and decorating, hospitality operations and tourism.

Among the students was 30-year old mother of two Doris Meliwane who proudly graduated in a trade normally dominated by men—automotive mechanical technology.

"Studying at APTC has not only helped in furthering my knowledge and experience in automotive engineering, it has given me confidence to work on an equal footing with my fellow male colleagues," said Ms Meliwane.

Education Minister, Hon. James Marape said our young people were coming out of APTC with the necessary skills to take advantage of resource-driven opportunities like the Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) project.

Graduants from the APTC College displaying their certificates after the graduation ceremony.

"APTC is also working with Port Moresby Technical College and Esso Highlands Limited to ensure that the Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) sector in PNG is reacting to the needs of industry."

"APTC is providing Papua New Guinea's future tradesmen and women with a chance to upgrade their skills and qualifications at a time of great opportunity for PNG," he said.

Australian High Commissioner to PNG, Mr Ian Kemish who was also present at the graduation ceremony said he was happy to see women graduating from technical fields.

"It is fantastic to see young Papua

New Guinean women pursuing non-traditional trades," he said.

The graduation ceremony brought to 388, the number of students who have graduated from APTC since its inception in 2007. ■

Child laptop program launched

The Papua New Guinea Sustainable Development Program has launched its 'One Laptop Per Child' (OLPC) program to schools in Western Province.

Children from Rumginae Primary School displaying their new laptop computers.

And students of Rumginae Primary School in the North Fly District were the first in the province to receive 61 new laptop computers through the OLPC program.

The program is seen as a breakthrough in the education system of allowing a child to use a laptop at a young age in an isolated school where there is no electricity.

The OLPC program tries to identify schools as potential partners in an effort to introduce rural children of PNG to advanced learning using computers.

Program Coordinator, Mr. Lawrence Stephens said it took PNGSDP three years to plan the idea of OLPC and asked Divine Word University (DWU) to assist as they have a particular interest in the education of children.

"The idea is to let every child in the developing world to have an opportunity to see and understand better. It also helps the teachers as well.

"The new laptops will introduce the children of PNG and others especially outside of the developed world to have an opportunity to learn many new things using modern technologies like laptops. We think the children of Rumginae have a tremendous opportunity for a new development for the future.

"Now, they are going to have the opportunity to develop skills that would have not been available to them until they got to secondary school. Now they can take with them as they go to school.

"We became involved in OLPC because we saw the opportunity to improve education in remote schools through this program. In our experience, many rural children are disadvantaged through lack of access to basic information other children take for granted in the developed world," he said.

He told the people of Rumginae that many schools in the country do not even have library books and curriculum materials and PNGSDP saw the tremendous advantage of schools being equipped with small computers containing huge amounts of information available to students and teachers.

He hoped to see the program reach all primary school children in Western Province.

Mr. Stephens said the OLPC is a 'trial program' that would cost K1million.

The trial will be conducted mainly in North Fly District of Western Province and Telefomin in West Sepik Province.

"On behalf of the Fly River Provincial Government, I thank you for making this possible because our standard of learning in Western Province is very low. We need new technology to raise the standard of education and we must treasure it," Western Province Education Minister, Mrs Apelis Sarsari said.

She urged the National Government and other stakeholders to support the program by funding more laptops so that the children of this country can have better access to information and quality education.

PNGSDP became involved in the OLPC program in 2008 and commenced the arrangements to purchase laptops in 2009.

The inventors of the OLPC are connected to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) in USA. Professor Barry Vercoe of MIT visited PNG in 2008 and called on the Department of Education and the universities to look into such initiatives. ■

US gives books to 'Buk Bilong Pikinini Library'

The United States embassy in Port Moresby recently donated 350 children's books for elementary to Grade 6 pupils to the 'Buk Bilong Pikinini Library' at Six Mile in Port Moresby.

The Prince George's County Alumnae Chapter (PGCAC) of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. and the Prince George's County Delta Alumnae Foundation (PGCDAF) in Maryland, United States donated these books.

Mrs. Antoinette Corbin-Taylor, wife of US Ambassador to PNG, and a member of PGCAC presented the books recently.

"The people of America place great importance upon all of its citizens, especially the most vulnerable members of our society."

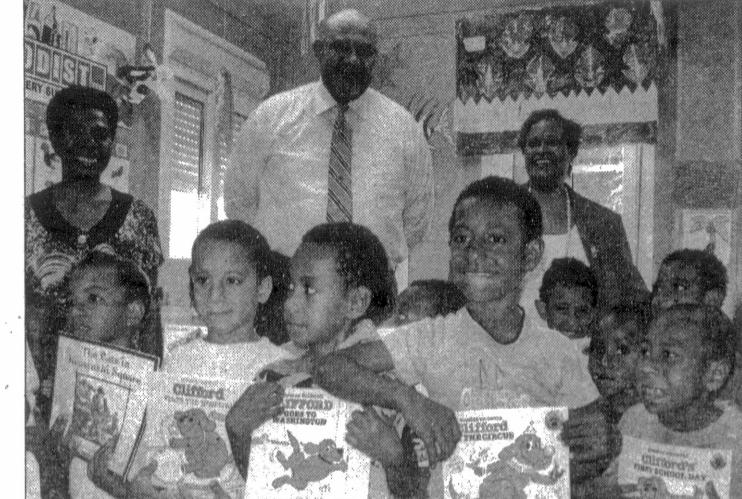

"We would like to commend the 'Buk Bilong Pikinini Library' for your commitment to doing the same for the people of Papua New Guinea."

"Your service to the community is admirable," she said.

Scholastic Books, one of the world's largest publishers and distributors of children's books, is renowned for producing educational materials to assist and inspire children to cultivate their minds to the utmost capacity.

PGCAC uses this same company to supply the books distributed in its local 'Reading is Fundamental' program for children in Prince George's County, Maryland.

It is the chapter's view that the children of Papua New Guinea also deserve the very best in quality books for children. ■

Resource boom poses challenges for PNG: PM

The Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare has told a meeting in Fiji that his Government was faced with a major challenge of mitigating the negative consequences of the resource boom in Papua New Guinea.

He said this include achieving meaningful development for the people.

He was speaking at the 'Engaging with the Pacific' meeting at the International Hotel in Natadola on Thursday, July 22, where Pacific leaders had gathered to discuss pressing regional issues, including Fiji's return to democratic rule.

"This can be achieved through re-allocation of resources from mining, petroleum and gas sectors of the economy to ensure long-term sustenance to support local participation, including joint venture undertakings with potential investors.

"The Government is also challenged to provide adequate resources to give equal priority to other essential service sectors like health and education," he said.

And he said growth will bring increased opportunities and challenges and Papua New Guineans are faced with substantive spin-off benefits including employment and micro investment opportunities for local construction, hospitality and real estate.

He said with the construction of the LNG project, opportunities will increase for both employment and investment in all sectors.

Papua New Guinea's total export value stood at just under K12 billion in 2009.

Of this, mineral and petroleum exports accounted for 78% of the total export value, followed by agriculture at 19%, forestry and 3.4% and fisheries and marine products at 1.7%.

Total import value stood at K7.7 billion for the same period.

"The Papua New Guinea economy has experienced positive growth since 2003 due to high commodity prices and prudent management by my Government," he said. ■

Papua New Guinea/Australia sign new Kokoda MOU

Australia and Papua New Guinea have signed a new joint agreement to protect the special values of the historic Kokoda Track.

This the second such joint agreement and aims to support sustainable development of the Owen Stanley Ranges, Brown River Catchment and Kokoda Track region. The first was signed in 2008.

Australia Foreign Minister Stephen Smith and his PNG counterpart Sam Abal signed the agreement in Aitutau recently.

Environment Minister Peter Garrett and his PNG counterpart Benny Allen said this marked the continuation of a joint commitment to work together to protect the Kokoda Track region.

"The Second Joint Understanding will also improve the lives of local communities by providing access to the potential economic benefits arising from the development of renewable resources including hydropower, water, forest carbon and tourism," the Ministers said in a joint statement.

The agreement covers a number of key objectives, starting with a safe and well-managed Kokoda Track.

It aims to enhance the quality of life for landowners and communities through improved delivery of basic services, income generation and community development.

Foreign Affairs Minister, Hon. Sam Abal

The agreement also promotes building the national and international tourism potential of the region, supported by a possible future World Heritage nomination.

Mr Garrett said Australia was committed to preserving the historic values of the Kokoda Track, a place of great significance to both Australians and Papua New Guineans.

"Through this initiative on the Owen Stanley Ranges, Brown River Catchment and Kokoda Track Region, which was established in 2007, we will continue to deliver practical improvements through a program of works that have already delivered very real on-ground results," he said.

"We have committed significant resources to supporting local communities and ensuring a safer and well-managed Kokoda Track, whilst protecting the important values of the Track and surrounding regions."

Mr Allen said PNG was pleased to commit new resources to continue the excellent progress made under the first Joint Understanding.

"We will be able to continue the important work on protection of the Brown River Catchment region, providing community access to the economic benefits associated with sustainable use of the water, power, forest carbon and tourism resources in the region," he said.

"We will also work towards a possible nomination of the Owen Stanley Ranges for World Heritage Listing." ■

Integrity of Political Parties and Candidates Conference

Conference navigates OLIPAC

The OLIPAC Conference in Alotau has been told that the Organic Law on the Integrity of Political Parties and Candidates had not strengthened political parties.

Former Minister for Culture and Tourism, Charles Abel said the OLIPAC law has held MPs together but did not work to intrinsically strengthen political parties as a cohesive structure.

He said the preceding sessions of Parliament demonstrated that political parties have become porous and he described the situation as 'a bad fishing net with all the fish swimming in and out of them.'

He was addressing key political party figures met in Alotau to formulate an alternative policy to enhance the conduct of Members of Parliament.

The OLIPAC Conference was held from July 12-16 at the Alotau International Hotel, and attended by Public Officers of most political parties.

Mr Abel said the Supreme Court ruling on July 7 regarding the constitutionality of OLIPAC law has now 'ripped the heart out of the law' which would have a huge bearing on the way forward for the 2012 national elections.

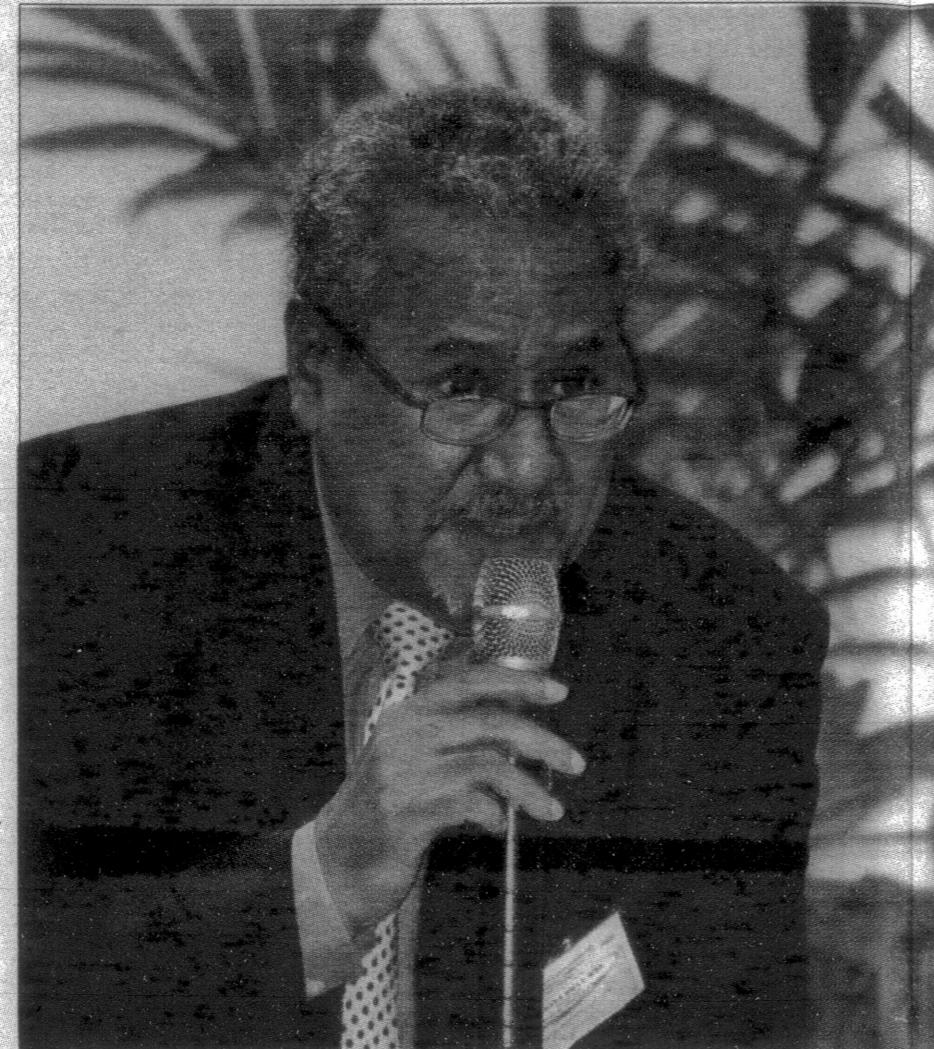

He said there was no question that restrictions imposed by OLIPAC law on MPs have directly led to the political stability, where in the eight years since the 2002 elections, there had been the same government under Sir Michael Somare's National Alliance-led coalitions.

'We know that the OLIPAC law held MPs together but did it work to intrinsically strengthen a party without a law hanging over it, as is the case in other countries with a mature party system,' he said.

'This week, I want OLIPAC to be put under the microscope.'

'Let us nurture it, not to our own detriment but for the well-being of our children now and for those yet unborn,' he said.

He challenged Conference participants to critically debate and analyse the existence of OLIPAC in our democratic and to achieve its intentions.

Registrar of the integrity of Political Parties and Candidates Commission, Sir Kina Bona speaking at the closing of the Conference on July 15.

Court annuls party law

The Supreme Court has ruled aspects of the Integrity law unconstitutional.

A full Supreme Court bench judges comprising the Chief Justice, Sir Salamo Inija, Deputy Chief Justice, Gibbs Salika, Justice Nicholas Kirriwom, Justice Bernard Sakora and Justice Gavara Nanu in a unanimous decision ruled it unconstitutional as it limited the rights of MPs and their freedom of choice.

The Organic Law on the Integrity of Political Parties and Candidates would have stopped members from voting against a party resolution.

They could not vote to remove a prime minister through a no-confidence vote if their party had earlier supported the Prime Minister.

The law ruled MPs would be liable for prosecution if they voted against any party resolution.

Western province Governor, Hon. Bob Danaya, through his lawyer, Loani Henao argued that it restricted individual MPs' rights and freedom of choice and challenged it in court.

The court ruled that it prohibited MPs from exercising their rights and was unheard of in any democracy.

Lawyer Henao said Members' rights have now been restored.

Mr Henao said: "That law had the potential of bringing about dictatorship in the country."

"That has been removed."

"We are back to real democracy."

MPs who felt intimidated are now free to leave a party and form and join other parties. ■

ADF repatriates war hero's body

A Royal Australian Air Force C130 recently repatriated the body of Fuzzy Wuzzy Angel, Mr Chahibus Julali, accompanied by his family, from Port Moresby to Wewak.

Mr Julali had recently been recognised by the Australian Government for his courageous work carrying water and ammunition for Australian soldiers based at Kehanbu airstrip in Yangoru, East Sepik Province, during the Second World War.

He had been presented with a Fuzzy Wuzzy Angels Commemorative Medallion by Australia's Parliamentary Secretary for International Development Assistance, Hon Bob McMullan MP, at a ceremony in Port Moresby on July 9.

Mr Julali was preparing to return to Wewak from Port Moresby following the medallion ceremony when he passed away unexpectedly in the company of his family on July 10.

Because of the extensive service Mr Julali had provided to Australian servicemen and women during the Papua New Guinea campaign, and following close consultation with Mr Julali's family, the Australian Defence Force (ADF) undertook to facilitate Mr Julali's return to his final resting place.

The ADF currently has air assets in Papua New Guinea for joint exercises with the Papua New Guinea Defence Force.

Reflecting the spirit of close cooperation in which those exercises are held, Australian servicemen and women have been pleased to utilise those assets to assist in repatriation of the body as a gesture of respect for a Papua New Guinean who had rendered assistance to their predecessors during the World War II.

Australia's High Commissioner to Papua New Guinea, Mr Ian Kemish, said: "Chahibus Julali provided valuable assistance to Australian diggers during the 2nd World War.

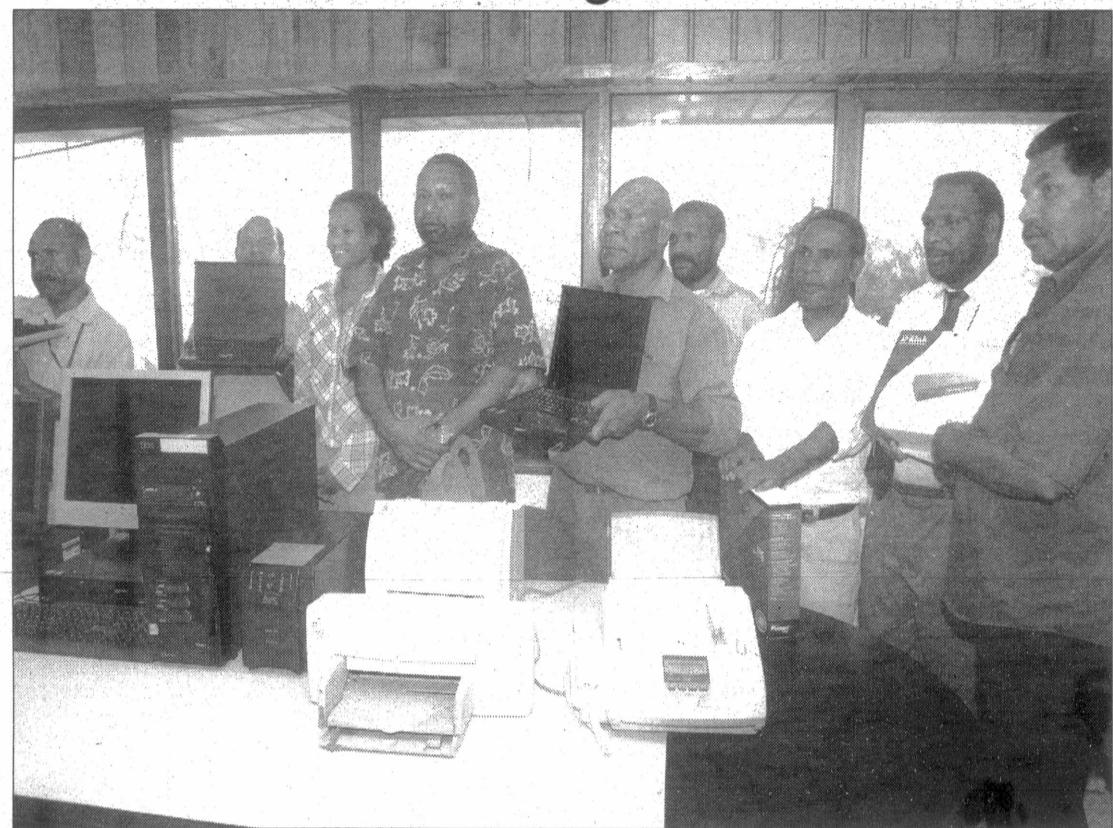

"We are deeply saddened by his passing, but pleased that, in a mark of the esteem in which his contribution is held by the Australian Government, the Australian Defence Force has been able to facilitate his final journey home."

Mr Julali was buried in his home village of Yobomunah in West Yangoru in East Sepik Province. ■

Police Association gets assistance

The Police Federation of Australia has assisted the PNG Police Association with Information Technology (IT) equipment and accessories worth more than K30,000.

And the assistance is in recognition of its sister union's efforts in the efficient and effective propagation of policies and issues pertaining to PNG police personnel's employment conditions.

Secretary General of PNG police association Mr Clemence Kanau said the donation of the IT equipment and accessories was timely for it would help the association's operations in terms of records keeping and data storage.

He told reporters at a media conference in Port Moresby on July 9 that he was pleased with the assistance.

He told reporters the equipments would be distributed among the four regions established soon.

Mr Kanau said, when established, the regional offices will promote the policies and objectives of the association by informing and educating police personnel in areas like insurance cover and social security benefit funds.

The equipments include a computer server, hard drive, two desktop computers, two monitors, two laptops, two printers, and a canon scanner.

He said the first regional office to be established would be in Lae, Morobe Province for the Momase region.

He thanked Mr Mark Burgess and Mrs Debbie Martiniello of the Australian police federation for their efforts in making the donations possible.

Mr Kanau also said he was assured by the Australia police federation to assist PNGPA with another A$ 300 (something close to K7000) to help the personnel in education and training through workshops. ■

Joint forces conduct medical patrol

Medics from the Papua New Defence Force (PNGDF) and Australian Defence Staff (ADS) have been conducting medical patrol on the north coast of East Sepik Province this month.

The medical patrol is the confirmatory phase of a Combat Medics course run at Goldie River Training Depot early last year by Australian Warrant Officer, Mal Woods.

The medical patrol practises 20 students – 17 male medics from the 2nd Battalion, Royal Pacific Islands Regiment (2 RPIR) based in Moem Barracks and 3 female medics from Taurama Barracks Medical Centre – in diagnostic, treatment and documentation skills working in local communities and villages.

This is the third confirmatory patrol that has been run since last year's course. In all, the three patrols have treated 1275 people in East Sepik and Central provinces.

Warrant Officer Wood said: "These patrols are excellent practical training for PNGDF combat medics under field conditions. They also provide valuable and much needed treatment and medicines to remote communities that find it hard to access health care."

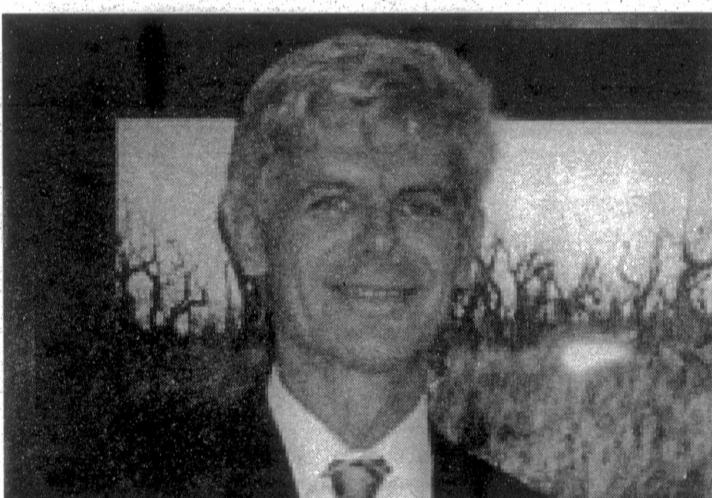

Led by Lieutenant Raymond Pakii, 2RPIR Recon Platoon Commander, the latest patrol treated over 560 villagers and children at Balam, Kauk and Lowan to the west of Wewak.

The PNGDF medics, supervised by WO Woods and Sergeant Jerry Aih, Goldie River Training Depot, have treated the villagers for malaria, respiratory and skin ailments, as well as arthritis with medicines provided by Australia, valued at K15,000. ■

Australia provides $50 million to PNG churches

Australia's High Commissioner to PNG, Mr. Ian Kemish

Australia will provide $50 million to churches in Papua New Guinea over six years to deliver critical health and education services to the most disadvantaged and remote people of PNG.

These services include building medical centres for people with HIV and AIDS, operating health clinics and schools in remote areas, training medical workers and school teachers and running primary schools.

PNG churches help to resolve community conflicts, respond to disasters and improve the income of PNG's disadvantaged people through growing and marketing cash crops.

Australia's support for these efforts recognises the vital role churches play in delivering approximately half the country's health and education programs.

Australian Non Government Organisations will work with PNG churches to deliver aid directly to the people. "This is a very effective way to ensure that capacity is being built and services reach the people most in need."

This new phase of the Australian Government funded Church Partnership Program builds on the success of the churches' efforts to date.

In the past Australia provided $35 million to support PNG churches to raise HIV awareness, address discrimination, improve health facilities, train school teachers and respond to emergencies such as the cholera outbreak in 2009 and the Oro floods in 2007.

The new phase will continue this good work. It will help PNG churches work more closely with PNG Government service delivery agencies.

The program will also support PNG churches to join forces to deliver health and education activities. This will maximise the reach and effectiveness of Australia's support. ■

Conference focuses on efficient electricity

Pacific Power Association delegates in their uniform at the Sir John Guise Indoor Stadium

The 9th Pacific Power Association (PPA) Conference held in Port Moresby early this month saw industry leaders passionately promoting best practices for sustainable electricity development in the Pacific region.

With the theme 'Promoting Utility Best Practices for Sustainable Development,' the Conference and related Trade Exhibition was attended by participants from the Pacific region including New Zealand and Australia as well as large energy companies from Japan.

The main features of the conference included business and technical sessions to better address power and energy issues.

More than 30 trade exhibitors displayed products at the sidelines of the conference.

The conference also witnessed a separate Utility Engineer's Workshop with technical presentations which addressed the theme "Breaking the Barriers to Efficient and Affordable Technologies".

Executive Director of PPA, Mr. Tony Neil said the meeting was critical for the future success of utilities, which are undergoing extreme hardship due to the ever increasing cost of fossil fuel.

He reminded participants of the position of the forum leaders in relation to the energy sector in the region.

"Our Forum Leaders have the energy sector as one of the five top priorities and is receiving much greater focus," he told participants.

He assured them that capacity building and energy efficiency on the supply side management were equally relevant to the solutions reached.

"It is clear that this potential is now being realised with major project undertakings to improve utility performance.

There's been increasing requests from regional and international organizations seeking contribution from the Association because of its knowledge and expertise on energy issues in the region," he said.

The conference was held at the Sir John Guise Stadium, with many regional and international dignitaries providing expert synopsis on energy issues.

It was described as the "largest ever" to be hosted by PNG Power

Aitape receives Kundu 2 TV service

The people of Aitape-Lumi in Sandaun Province can watch programs on the National Television Service, Kundu 2 TV.

Aitape is the first District to be connected to the television service under the NTS District roll-out program in line with PNG's Vision 2050 development goals, and is aligned to pillar seven which deals with information and communication technology.

The launch of the Kundu 2 TV service took place at the Aitape District headquarters on Saturday, July 17.

Local MP, Hon. Patrick Pruiatch gave K149,000 to the National Broadcasting Corporation to roll-out the TV service in his electorate.

More than 53,000 people will have access to this service and will also receive other services like NBC's 'The Tribe' radio and Radio Sandaun.

NTS Special Technical Advisor, Noel Mobiha who represented the Acting Chief Secretary to Government said the day was also significant because it was the 12th anniversary of the Aitape tsunami disaster.

Soon after the launch, people in the area were able to watch a television documentary on the Aitape tsunami.

"The satellite that is broadcasting the Kundu 2 TV signal can also be used to provide internet access and telephone services to the people of Aitape and other Districts and LLDs in PNG as part of the Vision 2050 rollout.

"Kundu 2 TV is for PNG because it's owned by the people of Papua New Guinea. The first rollout program was launched by Prime Minister Somare in Wewak on September 16, 2008," he said.

Meanwhile, Mr Mobiha presented K20,000 to Aitape High School and K30,000 to St Ignatius Secondary School on behalf of the Prime Minister to support ICT studies.

He said the funds should be used to purchase equipment that are ICT, science or computer related,

"I am proud to say that we must use Kundu 2 TV as the front-page of the PNG Vision 2050 roll-out program," Mr Mobiha said. ■

Emulate the dedication of heroes: GG

Papua New Guineans have been urged to emulate the dedication of our war heroes.

Speaking at the 29th Remembrance Day ceremony at the Ela Beach Memorial Park on July 23, Governor General, Sir Paulias Matane said this would instill pride in all citizens at the sacrifice of the veterans and remember them forever.

"There is no greater love from a man than to lay down his life for another."

And it is this selflessness and humility which are some of the key virtues in our constitution that we must embrace and practice to build a strong and prosperous nation," Sir Paulias said.

He said Papua New Guineans must remember and know that it was when Australia realized that they were alone in the war that indigenous people of PNG assisted them.

He said children of today must be taught the importance and significance of Remembrance Day.

"Children of today and tomorrow have the obligation to remember these brave people because their rights to be remembered far outweigh our rights to forget."

"I urge parents to ensure that their children understand the Remembrance Day and do not miss these ceremonies, just because none of their relatives died," he said.

This year's Remembrance Day

Papua New Guinea celebrated the 29th Remembrance Day on Friday, July 23, 2010.

Throughout the country, commemorative activities were held to remember those heroes who fought in conflicts and reflect on their services.

On Remembrance Day, the country also remembered the first battle and sacrifices of the military forces at Awala River in Oro Province.

Records show that on July 23, 1942 along the Kokoda track east of Awala, Lt Chalk and his first platoon of 35 men of the Papua Infantry Battalion fired their first shots in defense of our country and allies who fought in our freedom against the Japanese forces.

In Port Moresby, a dawn service was held at the Ela Beach Remembrance Park, led by the Police and CIS bands, and hundreds of people including war veterans took part in the ceremony.

Governor-General, Sir Paulias Matane addressed the occasion and expressed appreciation at the great service of those who lost lives to defend our land.

He also laid a wreath at the war monument in remembrance of those who sacrificed their lives.

Similar wreath-laying ceremonies were held at the Taurama, Igam and Moem barracks by the military hierarchy.

The occasion also reflected on servicemen who lost their lives in the Bougainville conflict and also the engagement of the PNGDF in the Vanuatu campaign and the contributions to the Regional Assistance Mission to the Solomon Islands. ■
