MAPA on the MOVE

by R. Daniel Hernandez

As the primary and general elections slated for the end of this year draw closer, local political organizations are mounting support for their respective philosophies and issues. One such organization is the San Diego chapter of the Mexican American Political Association. Gone are the names of Abe Tapia, Phil and Albert Usquiano, Daniel Chavez and many others who praised the name of the organization in the mid-1960's. Since those days MAPA has had a diminished role in local community and political activities. However, the association has experienced a dramatic resurgence within the past year, to once again be recognized as a viable political influence for the Spanish-speaking community in this county.

Much of the viability is attributable to the commitment which is being made by the organization's leadership. They are interested in making the local chapter an effective and positive influence within local politics. An indication of the progress which they have made was indicated at the association's Installation of Officers and Awards Banquet, which was held in late June in Chula Vista. The event was noteworthy in that it marked the first formal function MAPA has held since 1976, when the last active chapter recorded an event.

The new leadership took this opportunity to show its appreciation for community support by recognizing those individuals who have exhibited leadership skills in their respective areas of expertise. Among the honorees were; Diego Aguilera, Mateo Camarillo and Larry Montoya in the area of Business and Professions; Agustin "Gus" Chavez, Ramon Leyva and Vahac Mardirosian in Education; Nick Hernandez, Art Lujan and Luis Perales from Labor. State Assemblyman Peter Chacon and Mayor Roger Hedgecock were selected as Elected Officials of the Year. In the field of Media, Berta Alicia Gonzalez and Maria Puente were honored, as were Fr. Ned Brockhaus, Bishop Gilbert Chavez, Sister Sara Murietta and Fr. Jerry Sims in the field of religion. In the category of Special Community Activists, the award went to long-time Mapista Herman Baca. Augustine Sandoval and Norma Langhor were the recipients of the President's Award.

Among the honorees were other recognizable faces. Miriam Hernandez of KCST, channel 39 was the Mistress of Ceremonies. She introduced several well known contributors to the advancement of the hispanic population from throughout the state. In attendance were Irene Tovar, the State Chairperson if the California Democratic Chicano Caucus; Max Avalos of the United Farm Workers; former MAPA state chairman Julio Calderon, who presided over the installation of the new officers. (Calderon was recently defeated by Fernando Chavez by only ten votes in a heated battle for the top state post. Perhaps Calderon's comments at the installation dinner were a clue to the local chapter's success, "No longer is the organization a one-party sympathizer. This ability to transcend political lines will increase this organization's influence in political matters," he stated

A marked difference in comparing previous "mapistas" with the modern leaders of the organization is age. Although relatively young, they have recognized the need for positive steps by which to ensure political advancement by the hispanic community. They have devised various programs to attain their goals; voter education and registration drives, coordination of community forums on topical issues, and lobbying. Additionally, the local chapter of the statewide association has also involved itself in a program to improve corporate responsibility to the growing hispanic consumer.

The Installation and Awards Banquet was referred to as the first in a series of planned annual events. The San Diego chapter has identified some ambitious goals for its renaissance effort. If what they have accomplished of late is an indication, this community's future will be stamped with a positive political influence. In San Diego, MAPA is on the move! ●

KCST's Miriam Hernandez provided continuity to the evening's activities.

Breaking barriers

San Diego seeks to integrate Hispanics in diocesan departments

"When I started working here in 1978, anything that was not in English came to me," says Father René Juárez, director of the Office of Hispanic Affairs for the Diocese of San Diego. Life is much better today for Juárez and for the Church in San Diego. Perhaps more than many other dioceses, San Diego has sought to integrate Hispanics in all diocesan departments. Father Juárez, a Franciscan from the Mexican Province, credits the leadership of Bishops Leo T. Maher (the ordinary) and of Gilberto Chavez (the auxiliary). Other dioceses, following almost exclusively the model of relying on a special office for Hispanics, have given less emphasis to the hiring of Spanish-speaking persons in other departments. And some dioceses do not even have a special office for Hispanics.

The ideal of integrating Hispanics has not been fully realized, owing, says Father Juárez, to lack of bilingual skills and inadequate preparation. There is also a need, in the view of Sister Alicia Salcido, Alicia Salcido y Hermán Baca, líderes que pueden aportar mucho.

Breaking barriers

who is in charge of family catechesis, for diocesan personnel to link their efforts to those of community leaders. But already, said Juárez, "the voice of Hispanics is automatically taken into account." The Diocese has about 350,000 Catholics, half of whom are Hispanics. Of 90 parishes, 42 offer Mass in Spanish. There are 41 priests working directly with Hispanics. Nine of them are Mexicans and eight are Mexican Americans.

Father Juárez is among a growing number of Hispanics from other lands who have come to minister to the people of their culture in the U.S. Of some 1,500 Hispanic priests working in the country, fewer than 200 are U.S. born. This represents a significant change in missionary outreach, which traditionally has moved from the rich countries to the poor ones. Before coming to San Diego, Father Juárez worked in Phoenix, Ariz., and Stockton, Calif.

Because of the outlook of these Mexican priests, combined with the attitude of Mexican Americans and the insights of the Latin bishops at Medellín and Puebla, a new Church is gradually being shaped along the border.

"Too often being a Christian is confused with being an American," Father Juárez says. "The goal here is to create not an American or Mexican Church but one that is Catholic in its most strict sense. We seek a Church that will have the awareness St. Paul refers to when he speaks about breaking barriers so that the Truth that is Christ will unify. It should be a Church with a vision wider than the U. S., the continent or Latin America."

He is optimistic that progress toward that ideal can be made in San Diego. Conceding that there are always problems, he said that language is not one of them. In parishes where there is no prejudice, even people who don't speak Spanish have an open spirit that allows for harmonious development, Father Juárez said.

A big challenge is to enable the layperson to take a strong social, political and economic role in society. The Church, he said, must provide orientation, principles, education and, at given moments, public support. Along with other dioceses in California, San Diego voiced strong opposition to the roundups of undocumented immigrants by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

That is the type of public commitment which wins the respect of the people. □

La Diócesis de San Diego, Calif., busca la integración de los hispanos y norteamericanos para la formación de una Iglesia unida. La representación hispana a todos los niveles diocesanos es muy importante. Dirigida por el Padre René Juárez, franciscano venido de México, la Oficina para Hispanos educa para el liderazgo laico en áreas sociales, políticas y religiosas.

Juárez charla con el Obispo Gilbert Chávez (centro) y Alfonso Chávez, otro padre mexicano en pastoral.

Listened to that video, yep everything I expected. Its shot through with trite resonings that dont hold water but have that particular odor as do all bogus ‘arguements’ from Komintern/Accademia. “it isnt a migration issue-its a labor issue; and you cant fence in a labor issue” right . Good one. Hows it feel to be a ventrilloquist dummy, Baca? I dont have time to run the numbers on this guy, but for general information, there is a site called ‘ knowthenetworks ‘.com that details who is who, who pays who and how etc. Its pretty useful and the truth is that for all we know-this guy is a major player-its wrong to think that just because Katie Couric has never mentioned Bacas name or whoever, that they arent largely influential...that communist girl on the stage the other day is case in point.

2. Jim Says:

Illigal aliens sympathizers like Herman Baca are here in the US for one and only one mission, and that’s reconsquita. One can see deep hatred of America in his face, and he cant wait to see that day when America is succumbed to a complete invasion .

3. Fred Dawes Says:

you do know that AZTLAN is right out of hitler handbook right? the reds used this idea and we are seeing the real start of this plan with mass so called immigration for the ideals of pure evil Herman Baca is in many ways a new hitler and is the enemy of all good people. I can only hope this guy get whats coming to him someday.

Aztlan means pure tyranny in the old way and Bush is helping in all ways.
