

Special offerings for 1974 Summer Session

May 8, 1974

Drama workshops, a chamber music program and courses on the oceans are special offerings scheduled for the 1974 Summer Session of the University of California, San Diego.

A regular six-week session will run June 24 through Aug. 2. Other special courses of two to 11 weeks are also planned throughout the summer.

The program, UCSD's fourth summer session, is open to students in good standing, at any college or university and adults who want to take university courses. High school students who will be seniors next fall may get an early start on their college education by enrolling in lower-division courses and selected special programs.

Tuition for summer session, a self-supporting program, is $30 per credit mit. Exceptions are physical education courses which are $20 per class and special programs which have varying fees.

According to Dr. Quelda M. Wilson, director of summer session, "This year's session offers the public flexible scheduling with courses planned throughout the summer in addition to the regular six-week session. Some evening classes are also available."

The drama program will highlight comedy with courses on the history of comic theater, comic masters of silent films and vaudeville and burlesque. The tradition of street theater will be explored in an experimental workshop on comic theater and other courses will cover the principles of transactional analysis as a tool for the actor.

A five-week chamber music institute will be conducted by Rafael Druian, concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic. Druian has directed the institute for the last three summers and will join the UCSD music faculty in September.

An introductory course on the oceans will be taught at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. The class is a unique opportunity for high school oniors and undergraduate students who normally cannot enroll in courses at SIO where all instruction is on the graduate level.

Also offered is a nine-week session for intensive study of the Spanish language which includes seven weeks in Madrid. Classroom instruction will be supplemented with a schedule of cultural activities and travel in Spain.

Physical education courses will include skin and scuba diving, surfing and tennis.

Highlighting the visual arts program will be a film series with courses an soap opera, war movies without John Wayne and the "now waves" of director-dominated movies.

Other academic work will be offered in anthropology, biology, organic chemistry, Chinese, communications, marine geology, history, linguistics, literature, Philosophy, physics, political science, psychology, sociology and urban and rural studies.

Registration is open now through June 20. Interested persons should contact the UCSD Summer Session office by calling 453-2001 ext. 1248.
