INTERNATIONAL TRANSGENDER DAY OF VISIBILITY

March 31st, 2018

Aya Kamikawa

Japanese Transgender Activist

Aya Kamikawa is a Tokyo municipal official, the first openly transgender person to seek or win elected office in Japan. She was elected in April 2003. She won a four-year term as an independent under huge media attention, placing sixth of 72 candidates running for 52 seats in the Setagaya ward assembly, the most populous district in Tokyo. Despite an announcement that the government would continue to consider her male officially, she stated that she would work as a woman. Her platform was to improve rights for women, children, the elderly, the handicapped, and lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) people.

THE SDSU CENTER FOR RESEARCH ON SEXUALITY AND SEXUAL HEALTH (SASH) presents

SUBJECTIFIED: NINE YOUNG WOMEN TALK ABOUT SEX

APRIL 17th, 7-9:00pm
SDSU Student Union Theater

When it comes to sex, women are often seen but rarely heard. "Subjectified: Nine Young Women Talk About Sex" is a documentary that lets women define sexuality on their own terms. Featuring one-on-one interviews with nine diverse young women from all over the country, Subjectified unearths complex stories of female sexuality—stories that, up until now, have been shockingly absent from the pop culture in their authentic form. The stories may sound familiar: young moms, abstinent Christians, survivors of assaults and STDs. But outside the world of reality TV and sound bites, women approach their lives in complex and unexpected ways: sometimes hilarious, sometimes sobering, and always heartfelt. Faculty-led discussion with Dr. Jennifer Felner will follow.

Critical Gender Studies 122 - War, Gender and Security

April 3, 2018; 11:00Am-12:20PM
HSS 1228B

How are situations of war, conflict, and post-conflict gendered? How does a gendered lens help us better understand conflict at the global and local levels? What has achieving "security" meant? How does thinking "security" as "human security" change our goals in ending conflict? Explore these questions by examining a variety of conflict and post-conflict situations, exploring the actions of global peacemakers, and using a variety of regional and state/nation lenses.

Dolores Film Screening with Discussion

April 4, 2018; 6:00PM

Speak About It April 10, 2018; 7:00-8:30PM SDSU Montezuma Hall

Join us for one of Take Back the Week's special events, Speak About It, a performance that educates on consent and healthy sexual relationships.

Speak About It promotes healthy relationships through directly addressing issues of consent, sexual assault, and bystander intervention. We share wisdom from an array of experiences, successes, misfortunes, and personal discoveries, and bring audiences a humorous, powerful, and provocative show filled with dynamic true monologues and energetic skits. The show sparks dynamic conversations amongst young people about sex and sexuality, and educates and empowers students to create and sustain change in the communities.

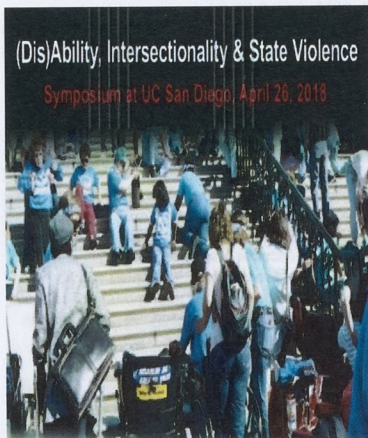

Chicano Legacy
April 23, 2018; 12:00-1:00PM
UCSD Geisel Library, Seuss Room

Join us to view this short documentary on the power of students to make change. The Chicano Legacy Mural was commissioned at UC San Diego in 2011 as a response to racist incidents on campus. The film explores how the first ever permanent, minority inspired public artwork on campus has inspired students and its impact on campus life.

The screening will be followed by a Q & A with the filmmakers Horacio Jones and Jorge Mariscal.

Open to the public. All are welcome.
 Refreshments will be served.

Hosted by the Library Diversity & Inclusion Committee.

Disability, Intersectionality, & State Violence Symposium
April 26, 2018; 11:00AM-7:00PM
UC San Diego Atkinson Hall

JOIN THE CONVERSATION: The sites, practices, and mechanisms most commonly associated with state violence provide a powerful lens for analyzing intersectionality across identities marked by ability, race, ethnicity, gender, class, age and other groups who experience heightened levels of vulnerability. This one-day symposium features presentations and performances by artists, scholars, community advocates and representatives of social service organizations to foster dialog around concerns with forms of vulnerability to violence that are generated, under-addressed or ignored by state institutions. Presenters will address the ways in which the conditions of schooling, psychiatric and other healthcare, policing, and incarceration, raise heightened concerns for the human rights of people at the intersection of minoritized identities and disability.
