

Strike Escalates at Berkeley - Police Tear Gas Students

Violence erupted on the Berkeley campus yesterday in a dramatic escalation of the student strike that up until this week had proceeded relatively slowly.

Local newspapers described Wednesday's activities, in which 24 arrests were made during a melee in which some 60 police clubbed and maced students, as the worst violence on the Berkeley campus ever. However, Wednesday's action seemed minor in comparison to yesterday's police action.

Throughout the day police and students had participated in minor skirmishes. However, when rock-throwing began, the police began releasing canisters of tear gas on the crowd, which numbered in the neighborhood of 3000. This number included strikers as well as bystanders; estimates of the picket lines earlier in the day ran as high as 1000.

After a police helicopter arrived to direct operations, the police advanced through Sather gate. They moved in three flanks, dispersing the crowd and releasing more tear gas.

Tom Baker and Clay Anderson, reporters from the Triton Times covering the Regents meeting, were eye-witnesses to the violence. They escaped from the scene by hopping a huge wall, after a canister of tear gas had exploded 10 feet away. Baker reported that several persons were beaten "indiscriminately" by the police. The usual method, he said, was first to rip off the victim's shirt, then physically beat with billy clubs.

Late yesterday afternoon the police were still cordoning off the area, and several fires were raging on Telegraph Avenue. There was little action on campus since the police had launched a final massive assault which had pretty well cleared the area. At nightfall a huge cloud of blue smoke hung over the plaza from the tear gas.

By virtue of Governor Reagan's declaration several weeks ago that the Berkeley campus was in a "state of emergency", the Alameda County Sheriff is directing operations on campus. He has declared any gathering of more than six students to be illegal.

Charlie Palmer, the ASUC President at Berkeley, and David Kennister of the Radical Students Union, have both predicted that the National Guard will be called in by tomorrow at the latest.

The Regents meeting will be meeting in open session tomorrow and the students will probably concentrate their efforts on disrupting that meeting. Yesterday nearly 1000 students converged on University Hall where the Regents were meeting in Executive session, but the police advanced en masse to break up the crowd. At least one window was broken in the building.

Meanwhile, the strike continues. The TA's, faculty members, and members of the staff who are on strike have been notified by the Chancellor that they are subject to termination of their contract.

Regents Meet Today - May Discuss Marcuse

Today at 1:45 p.m. the Board of Regents will meet once again in open session at University Hall, across the street from the Berkeley campus. This meeting is likely to be the scene of massive protest demonstrations, and a possible overturning of Chancellor McGill's decision to rehire Dr. Herbert Marcuse is foreseen.

Yesterday, the Committee on Educational Policy met for six hours in executive session, an almost unprecedented occurrence. These meetings are closed to the press and are held to discuss personal matters. The two items on Thursday's agenda were honorary degrees and personnel.

Assemblyman John Stull, who has called for McGill's dismissal, testified before the committee for nearly a half hour. At a press conference he held after he emerged from the meeting, Stull stated that the Regents had been receptive to his demand to fire Marcuse, and somewhat less so to firing McGill.

McGill was non-committal upon emerging from the massive secret session. The only comment he would make to either the Triton Times or AS President Tom Shepard was that Stull had called for Marcuse's dismissal.

Finally, the CEP held a short open meeting, which proved to be less than spectacular. Not a word was mentioned about Marcuse.

The usual procedure at Regents meetings is for the respective committees to report matters they have discussed to the full board, which meets today. Therefore, it is almost a foregone conclusion that the Marcuse matter will be brought up and decided upon once and for all. Of course, the possibility always remains that a committee will be appointed to further investigate the matter. Another possibility is that at this point Chancellor McGill would resign.

P.E. Department Clarifies Situation

Dear Editor:

The Department of Physical Education can offer a swift end to the controversy that surrounds the future of intercollegiate athletics on this campus. That is, to simply let the student body decide as suggested by the Chancellor, on what direction the program should take.

The students themselves have always had the final say in all of our activity courses offered, as well as each of the 19 intercollegiate sports available in the total program. In no instance has a single activity been initiated by the department, as seems to be the general viewpoint expressed in recent student publications. Students by petition or group action have always initiated the formation of athletic teams.

In fact, the only time this department would attempt to thwart student demands would be if they should want to begin a "big time" athletic program as suggested by Mr. Ham in his letter to the Chancellor and initiated by the faculty in the Department of Literature. If this should ever come about, then indeed a true "athletic department" separate from physical education would have to be created, for we would not want to be a part of such a program.

We feel a moderate program of intercollegiate athletics, in conjunction with a strong program of intramural and inter-college sports, is a healthy approach to the problem.

In order to take this course, we find the major problem is one of scheduling institutions that adhere to the principles of complete amateurism, that have approximately the same admission standards, and have about the same undergraduate enrollment.

The best assurance of scheduling within these categories is to become a member of a conference with other colleges and universities subscribing in fact to these same beliefs.

Presently, UCSD competes as an independent (no conference affiliation) and for the most part against small, private church-related institutions and then only in a very limited number of sports. Ironically these same institutions refuse to schedule us beyond 1970 because of our projected growth in undergraduate enrollment.

A word about the "coaches" and the so-called athletic department: supervisors of physical education are employed as highly professional teachers extremely competent in their chosen fields. They are academic employees (non-Senate) subject of the same reviews and promotional procedures as the professorial series. They are not paid for "coaching," nor are they members of a separate "athletic department" Further, there is nothing in the academic manual stating that "coaching" athletic teams is a part of their responsibility.

We feel that the Department on this campus should serve the continued on page 2

Marines Arrive on Campus, Resistance Planned Today

The marines are returning to the Matthews Campus and are trying to reclaim their officers quarters, that is, building 250. This building has been in the possession of students and administrators for a year but the calm is about to be punctured as the marine force makes its attempted invasion.

Actually the situation isn't quite so dramatic. The marine force is really a recruiting officer and the forces attempting to repel his presence are students who feel that marines have no place recruiting on a college campus.

Since the beginning of the week SDS has been distributing leaflets calling for a termination of military recruitment. They have specifically asked that the invitation extended to the marines to recruit on campus today be withdrawn. Dean Murphy has not withdrawn the invitation, however, and, if the marines don't meet with any interference from student groups they should be on campus as planned.

SDS feels that the marines should not be allowed to recruit on campus because they are a counter-democratic force in the world which are used to "suppress popular governments in underdeveloped countries like Vietnam and the Dominican Republic." SDS feels that the Marines are used to protect American economic interests in other parts of the world and that in so doing the freedom and lives of these people are being violated.

Radical students feel that the university cannot be a sanctuary from the world situation. What is happening in the world affects the university and SDS contends that Marines are affecting the world in an adverse manner. Because of this feeling of involvement of the university in world affairs and the SDS accusation of the Marines as a counter democratic force, they are planning some type of demonstration today to protest the marine recruiting.

Dean Murphy defends them on different grounds. Last year the UCSD faculty endorsed the concept of an "open campus" to recruiting agents from all fields.

Also the AAUP, American Association of University Professors, and the ACLU have publicly defended the right of agencies to recruit on campus. He feels that it would be an abridgment of freedom of speech not to allow the marines to recruit. He also said that this is a career opportunity available to students and any student should be allowed to see the marine recruiters if he wants to.

With sadness and a deep sense of personal loss we must report that Valentin Quoidbach, of the Class of 1971, was killed Saturday night in an automobile accident on Torrey Pines Road. Craig Swanson, a passenger, was injured, though not seriously, and is confined in the Scripps Memorial Hospital.

In the short history of our college, Val was known for his concern for its academic distinction and the welfare of its students. He took part in discussions which led to significant improvements in the life of the college.

As a member of the Student Committee on Educational Policy, he acted as a medium of communication between the student body and the faculty.

As President of Portola Hall, he worked for greater student involvement in the affairs of the college.

Val was the worthy heir of great traditions and left to us a legacy of dedication and service to excellence. He will be greatly missed.

John L. Stewart; Provost, Muir Alan C. Batchelder; Dean

When asked if he would give the Friends of the Resistance an office in the same building, he said that he would not because they were not a recruiting agency.

Dean Murphy has said that he will do whatever possible under the authority of his office to enforce the right of the marines to be on campus. He said that there are three regulations which students may violate if they try to interfere with the recruiting procedures. They deal with (1) substantial interference of academic or administrative procedures, (2) physical abuse of university property, (3) failure to obey the directive of a university administrative officer.

McGill to Receive Student Petition

A group of students at UCSD circulated a petition yesterday voicing support for Chancellor McGill in his handling of the Marcuse matter. Some 900-1000 signatures were obtained during the 24-hour time period during which it was circulated, and Bob Munk flew to Berkeley Thursday evening to deliver the petition to McGill.

The petition read as follows: "We, the undersigned members of the UCSD community, wish to affirm our support of the leadership of Dr. William J. McGill as Chancellor of this campus of the University of California." The need for such a petition was seen because of the considerable pressure that McGill has received in connection with the rehiring of Dr. Marcuse.

Munk was met at the airport by AS President Tom Shepard who, with McGill, will decide how the petition can best be put to use.

Dial 411 for god! Kill a Cop... The Pope is Pregnant?

Now that we are all versed in the sociological significance and topical categorization of graffiti (Triton Times, Feb. 7, 1969) it's time to discuss the activity of collecting graffiti itself.

Grffiti gathering requires a certain amount of time, patience, ingenuity and a notebook. The first step is to locate a popular and well-used bathroom, like the one near H.L. Aud. at the end of the hallway.

The best time to be graffiti hunting is around 6:00 p.m. since most people are home or having dinner at that time. Then it is simply a matter of perusing each stall without being bothered by nosey patrons.

If, however, you go graffiti-hunting during class hours when the bathrooms are being used, there are a few general rules to observe:

(1) Be discreet. If there is anything people in a public bathroom dislike, it's a graffiti collector. In 1738, a graffiti collector cleverly disguised as a janitor in a Genoa, Italy restaurant, was discovered when a patron's suspicion was aroused by the lack of bathroom-type sounds coming from the stall. A near-riot among the enraged patrons ensued, resulting in the graffiti collector being swirled in the toilet for three minutes without air and his notebook being confiscated. So, don't let on that your purpose in the bathroom is something other than using the toilet or people will think you're perverted and you'll be subject to intense chastigation.

(2) First, find a "loaded" stall (which is something every graffiti collector savours; as opposed to a "loaded" toilet, which all graffiti collectors detest) then enter it, lock the door, and most importantly, sit down. People get uneasy when they don't see two feet pointed straight forward, and you don't want to get swirled.

(3) Scan the reading material at Evelyn Wood pace to get the overall, disgusting picture. Then pick out the good ones (which are usually written small and located in corners) and copy them down fast. After about three minutes, roll off some toilet paper for the proper sound effect. Continue scribbling as you slowly stand up and reach back with your right foot to flush the toilet. If you have some last-minute graffiti to get down in your notebook, you can now stall for about 10 seconds, then open the door (hiding your pen at the same time) and leave. With a little practice, you too will be gathering valuable graffiti with the same deftness and savoir faire as the best of them.

The latest graffiti is difficult to categorize because of its diversity, but most fall under the rubrics of dope, love, sex, and the ever-popular miscellaneous grouping. Here are some of their respective examples:

"Dope is fun"; "Get naked and smoke"; "Get high now"; "No reifers...no soul!"; "Grass works wonders"; "Dope works well"; "Stoning is definitely far out"; "Share a joint with a friend"; "Dump it! There's a narc in the next stall"; "Love is dangerous"; "love - why is it so painful?" (reply): "Hang-ups, idiot!"; "Caution: Virginity may be harmful to your health"; "36-25-36 or fight"; "Ti est episteme?"; "OB-EDIAH III is my dog"; "Paranoiod Youth Unite! Join the John Birch Society! Who knows - maybe your mommie is a commie"; "Is graffiti a dying art?" (reply): "Is prostitution?"; "Frogs and ducks"; "Lennon saves"; "The Big 'G' stands for Goomba"; "Malignancy is beautiful"; "Conquer and divide"; "Join the Army - help stamp out little yellow people"; "And this is a school for science and math majors?" -J.P.

As it was stated before, there is no halfway point - either we start scholarships or never give them. It is that simple. But there is one point that needs to be brought out here. I was wrong last week in assuming all the athletes were brought here by accident. Many of our fine players were recruited by coaches. The question at hand is how they were recruited.

Recruitment in itself is not bad. A UCSD coach can go to a high school athlete and say, "Come to UCSD. I can promise you will be able to receive an education comparable to that of any school in the country." He can promise the kid a chance to play, and even promise him a job in the gym earning $50 a month.

I don't consider any of this scholarship, including the job. It is only natural to have an athlete work in the cage handling equipment instead of someone who doesn't know the difference between a soccer and football shoe, or a tennis and badminton racket. After all, the biology department wouldn't want a lab assistant who didn't know the difference between H₂O and H₂SO₄.

Unfortunately, some of the athletes are unhappy here because it is hard to squeeze into one week; going to classes, studying, practice, traveling at times, working part time, and a little recreation. They claim they were brought here with false promises and unfulfilled expectations. One guy told me he felt there should be enough subsdiation offered to athletes so all they had to do was go to school and practice. But I can't agree at all to that. If an athlete can't keep his grades up, he should either drop athletics or transfer schools.

Listen--I'm as interested in and support UCSD athletics as much as anyone here. But if our reputation as an outstanding academic institution with a fairly good athletic program isn't enough to bring an athlete here, then I don't know if he should come here.

I hate to sound like an SDS member (Lord, please forgive me), but the time is right for change. In the past, athletes have been given money to come to college. UCSD is the place to change this. There hasn't been a time in the history of the world when the need for college education for all was as important as it is today.

UCSD should use the scholarship money to help students who are financially in need. If one of these happens to be another O.J. Simpson, fine. But we can not and must not go out in search of athletes for athletics sake. UCSD is the perfect place for the "New College" of the future; and it's motto will be something really wild, idealistic and imaginative - something like "All men are created equal."

But it's not the future yet; it's still the present, and we still have to settle this question. I am an athlete, and a student, and a sports columnist. In all of these positions, I am convinced that we should not give scholarships. For this stand I will be castigated and criticized.

But I am also a human being, and in good faith, I cannot bring myself to accept what the athletic department proposes. I think of Sir Thomas More in "A Man for all Seasons", and remember the words of Hamlet, "This above all; to thine own self be true."

I'm sorry, Coach, but in my heart I believe that the time for change is here and now. If I didn't write what I believed in, I could not hope to stay true to myself.

Russel Kirk, widely regarded philosopher of the New American Conservatism will speak at UCSD Wednesday. Kirk, author of "The Conservative Mind", has bypassed individualistic capitalism as well as socialism in recommending Christian philosophy for the mind and restoration of community to the heart. He has said "American conservatives ought to talk a great deal less about the laws of economics and a great deal more about the laws of justice."

He will hold a seminar on "Decadence and Recovery in American Education" at 4:00 pm, Wednesday, February 26, in the Informal Lounge, Revelle Commons. Later that day, at 8:15, he will give a public lecture on "Academic Freedom and Academic License" at the Revelle Main Dining Hall. Afterward, there will be an informal dialog with Dr. Kirk in the Beagle Guest Apartment.

The ASUCSD is holding a dance tomorrow at 8:30 pm. Strange Brew, a popular local band will play, and the Glass Eye will present a light show.

Confessions from a Smoke-Filled Room

by Larry Rafal

The most vocal criticism of last week's column came from a surprising (at any rate, I was surprised) corner of UCSD--the varsity athletics. It was a bit scary. I was shown to a chair, the door was closed and locked, and then my column was torn down bit by bit. I almost expected hot white lights and a man with a scar on his face demanding, "If you do not tell us all we want to know, we haf vays of making you talk."

Actually, it wasn't that bad. I learned some things that I had not known before. Therefore, I shall also devote this column to the scholarship problem in hopes of making my position clear.

As it was stated before, there is no halfway point - either we start scholarships or never give them. It is that simple. But there is one point that needs to be brought out here. Ruggers Drop Thriller to Cal State 17 to 12

UCSD lost to Cal State L.A. 12-17 in a brutal rugby game last Saturday. The much-outweighed Triton team fought hard throughout the match giving out as much punishment as they received. A liberal amount of blood flowed from each team.

Cal State dominated both scrums and lineouts, but due to hard open field tackling by the 3/4 line and back rows of the Triton scrum their possession was of no avail.

UCSD opened the scoring with a strong scrum drive of 60 yards led by Natheson. From a lineout on the 2 yard line the prop, Craig, burst through the opposition for the try.

The play flowed up and down the field with neither side dominating. Cal State won the majority of the set pieces, but UCSD broke up their attack by brutal cover defence.

Just prior to the half the Cal State scrum half scampered over the line for a well deserved try. Further scoring was a result of fine place kicking by Sertic of UCSD and the prop from Cal State.

The second half ended up as a place-kicking duel, both kickers succeeding from difficult angles. With five minutes remaining the score had narrowed to 14-12 in favor of Cal State. UCSD drove hard into the opposition territory, coming close several times. Finally, in the last minute of play the Cal State scrum half culminated a drive and scored in the corner to ice the contest.

Golf

The UCSD golf team lost to a powerful Cal Western team, 7-47, in a home match last Monday. The Triton team showed great improvement, despite their low score. John Bremer was low medalist for the Tritons with a 79. To indicate the strength of Cal Western, six Westerners shot in the low 70's. Last Friday's home match against Cal Poly Pomona ended in a 30-24 victory for the Tritons.

Basketball

Voting for the NAIA playoffs has been postponed because of the closeness of the contending teams. The decision will be available on Feb. 25. Because of the postponement, Saturday's game against Cal Lutheran will be an important one for our great Triton cage team.

Swimming

The Triton swim team won their only home match of the season, 53-51 over UC Riverside last Friday. Don Martinelli was the best swimmer of the meet, taking first in the individual medley, second in the butterfly, and participating in the medley relay which took first. The medley relay was won by the Tritons in a record 4:08.4 time.

ANYONE WISHING TO HELP in the formation and administration of the Canadian Information Center should call Rick Chunn at 453-1165. This organization is designed to provide correct information to those planning to emigrate to Canada.

THE UCSD REGISTRATION Committee has approved a grant of $3500 to the UCSD Soaring Club for the construction of a hangar at historic Torrey Pines Gliderport one mile north of the campus.

The hangar, a modern cantilever structure specifically designed as a low-cost shelter for gliders, will accommodate three full-sized sailplanes up to about 60 feet wingspan.

Until such time as UCSDSC has three planes, the extra space will be used to store equipment such as the launching winch. Space may also be made available to other campus organizations for equipment storage.

PRE-MED AND PRE-DENTAL students are invited to their quarterly meeting on Monday, February 24, at 7:30 p. m. in the Basic Science Bldg. of the Medical School, room 1105.

Dr. Paul Saltman, who formerly taught at the University of Southern California Medical School, will speak on "Your Future in Medicine."

INFORMATION CONCERNING California State employment opportunities is available in the Career-Educational Planning and Placement Office.

Each year the State welcomes a significant number of college men and women to employment in a variety of administrative, technical, and professional positions.

New State employees of capacity and determination will have the chance early in their careers to advance to positions of considerable responsibility. While the rate at which individuals will be promoted obviously depends on their personal ability and initiative, there is equal opportunity for all.

The information available at the CEPPC contains descriptions of the positions that are typically available each year, including educational requirements, employing departments, and the employment outlook as well as starting salary information.

Most of the positions are available through the State Service Entrance Examination. The deadline for application is March 14, 1969, for the test to be given April 12, 1969. Application forms for the test also are available at the CEPPC, 250 Matthews Campus, East Wing.

Cagers Win Two

A hard-driving Triton basketball team expanded their seasonal record to 18-6 this past weekend with wins over Cal-Tech on Friday and Cal Baptist on Saturday.

The game against Cal-Tech was no contest from the start,

Six Tritons' scores reached the 14-mark, for a final score of 122-46. This sets a new scoring high for the Tritons. The old mark was 114, also against Cal-Tech earlier in the season.

A hard-pressed and out-rebounded Cal-Baptist team went down to the Tritons 92-61. Cal played a reasonably tight game throughout most of the first half, but the UCSD players took advantage of a letup in the last minutes of the second period to run up a big lead by halftime.

They came back hard in the second half also and played consistent ball to the end. A hard press by the Tritons was the major cause for Cal-Baptist's 24 turnovers to UCSD's 3. The Tritons also outrebounded Cal, 47-29, to make the victory decisive.
