

Provost-Third College Faculty Research Grants awarded to six Third College faculty members

January 11, 1974

Six members of the Third College faculty at the University of California, San Diego have been awarded the first "Provost-Third College Faculty Research Grants" in recognition of their substantial contributions to the development and operation of the college and to the education and general welfare of its students.

The awards, which will be given annually by the college, were announced by Dr. Joseph Watson, Third College Provost. According to Watson, priority consideration was given by the selection committee to junior faculty members in order to encourage their work on behalf of Third College and to support their research and publication and to aid them in promotion to tenure.

This year's recipients are: Dr. Edward Alexander, Assistant Professor of Chemistry; Dr. Carlos Blanco, Professor of Spanish Literature; Dr. Arthur F. Diaz, Assistant Professor of Chemistry; Dr. Ramon Pinon, Jr., Assistant Professor of Biology; Dr. Michael Real, Assistant Professor of Communications; and Dr. John Waterhouse, Assistant Professor of English Literature.

Alexander, Diaz and Pinon are associated with Third College's Science and Technology Program, Blanco with the Third World Studies Program, and Real and Waterhouse with the college's Communications Program.
