They have lost our blueprint for a just society

WELL, well, well, look at where we are now!

In our last column, we were unaware that Sir Puka Temu, Belden Namah, Charles Abel and others were moving from the government to the opposition in an attempt to move a No Confidence Motion against Sir Michael Somare and his government. That was like jumping out of the frying pan and into the fire.

That was bold, but not a wise move, one might say. Sir Puka was ill-advised to take that bold step without any fallback position to maintain the pressure on Sir Michael and his government.

It seems that Somare and his mob are now camping outside the Department of Treasury at Vulupindi House to organize entertainment money for the boys to celebrate their political victory.

Maybe we are all wiser now after that attempted coup was thwarted by Sir Michael and his mob using the Chair of the Speaker as if it were a magic carpet to ride home comfortable even before the race started. And where is our Opposition now? Sorry, they are still miles away and walking to the race-course. Little wonder, they lost the fight even before they walked into the ring.

Does that mean the game was forfeited because of their absence, or did the Opposition actually partake in the game, but lost after a fair fight?

Politics in PNG is like the City of New York that never goes to sleep. Thus, in this country, if you go for a nap and wake up, you are likely to find out from the media or even the local market place gossip, that you have lost your job. Yes, it is correctly stated: 'In PNG you must expect the unexpected!'

In the past where successful Motions of No Confidence were moved by the Opposition against the government, the procedure they followed was:-

1. Move a motion to suspend standing orders;
2. Move a No Confidence Motion against the speaker;
3. Appoint their own kind as a Speaker; and
4. Introduce the motion against the government.

We the members of the public are not privy to what strategy the Opposition adopted at the March Girls' Resort at Gaire Village on the Magi Highway to oust the Somare regime. Presently, all we know is that it was not only a flop; it was a disaster because they lost the fight even before they started it. Sir Michael and his mob simply redesigned the battle field and retreated to higher ground to watch the Opposition camp in total disarray.

Every time we send our players overseas to partake in any sporting game, and more so rugby, we often tell our players that first and foremost, they must be good ambassadors for PNG, enjoy the game and return home safely. This is our biggest mistake. We never make an attempt to get our players psyched up to win the game. Consciously or unconsciously we are telling our players that they do not have the ability to win, therefore, they must act like domesticated animals and return home after a fun game. They are never psyched up to use their wild animal instincts to get out there on the field and win their games. We lose the focus even before we go into the game so why play the game anyway, if the will power to win is not even there?

We can only guess that the Opposition did not get their battle plan in order before they sounded their war cry and thus gave their positions away to Sir Michael. To start with, Sir Puka and his ministers ought to have remained in government until when the motion to oust the speaker and only then they should have moved to vote with the Opposition; voted the Speaker out; appoint their own speaker; and finally vote on the motion against Sir Michael and his government. Done in that manner, every one of their supporters would have all left together as a group. Also, one wonders why Sir Puka Temu even made the announcement in the media that there were ministers and back benchers in government who would move at the right time to oust the government?

Obviously, Sir Michael quickly worked out who those ministers and especially who the back benchers might be and swiftly isolated the back benchers by giving them ministries and offering other lucrative positions like Chairmen of Parliamentary Committees. The back benchers are now happy to queue up against any motion to defeat the government. The ministers who did not move with Puka Temu are now 'sitting ducks' and there is Sir Michael, now playing the 'pluck a duck' game with them.

And where does the above case scenario place the Opposition? Unfortunately, they are now in 'defeatist mode', hence, the recent press releases that they have lined up a team of legal eagles to remove the fight from the political arena to the Supreme Court. This in itself is already a backward step that will only compound their political blunders. And why would the Opposition want to hear the Supreme Court tell them if Sir

Michael and his mob have erred legally by beating them politically in a political game?

One should ask: Why does it matter now what the Supreme Court says about who was right or wrong and how so? The essence of it all is that the Opposition lost a political game even before they started it. Where is the legal merit for going to court to cry over a political defeat?

Whatever the court says would not and should not matter in the least. The Opposition must now retreat; reassess its position; and work out a new battle plan for the November sitting. In our view, going to Court is not the way to go about it. The Opposition MPs clad in full battle gear are now marching into the Court Room to play a hypothetical game of politics. It is rather like stopping a rugby game to watch the video referee. Why not make the trip to Germany in search of that psychic Octopus used in the recent World Cup who could probably do a far better job than the Supreme Court could?

Finally, it is our view that the Opposition failed to oust the Somare regime for the following reasons:

1. Strategy-wise, the Opposition did not focus their attention to a single common goal, namely, a well-defined plan to oust the Somare government before any other considerations crept into the picture. The Opposition camp was too busy planning for distribution of the loot or the spoils of war and little time was spent to formulate their war plan or strategy to beat the government.

2. Thus, not having a war plan or strategy, the Opposition failed to reach the next stage to get their tactics right; namely, to get that Motion as far as on to the floor of parliament, and secondly, to vote on the motion. Sir Somare and his mob beat them strictly at that tactical level by not allowing the motion to get anywhere near the floor of parliament.

3. The Opposition camp at Gaire was like a women's gossip group saying the obvious in public about Sir Michael and his mobsters and telling everybody how they intend to 'rausim bol bilong ol ian ronim gavman' and on his part, Sir Michael was kept well-informed of what was going on in that camp, hence, the lack of secrecy culminating in Sir Puka being compelled by circumstances to go public with his plan to join the Opposition.

4. If the Somare regime has a 'Kitchen Cabinet' that moves the machinery of government in PNG, then by the same token, the Mekere Opposition ought to have a 'War Cabinet' to move the PNG Community to support him to dismantle the Kitchen cabinet.

Right now, the Opposition does not have a select group of people to plan their war games in secrecy against the Chief. Thus, Sir Mekere is reduced to conducting public meetings like the recent one at Gaire to work out a possible game plan that did not work.

What has recently happened with the Opposition's move to oust Somare, has ended in total disaster so all one can see now is chaos all around in the minds of the ordinary people who are demanding to see a change in the way this country and its people are being managed or governed. Our hunch is that the people are now in retreat to work out their own course of action against the government. The people had hoped and prayed that Somare would be reduced to 'humpty dumpty' falling off that wall but it appears that the wall itself collapsed from its own weight, so humpty dumpty is back on his feet walking on solid ground. Or is he?

Democracy is a game of wits against wits using the people as stepping stones to gain power in order to access money, perks and privileges. In essence, it operates on the same principle as the pyramid, so that the bigger and wider the base, the higher the peak and at the pinnacle, you can only place one single block of stone or brick to rest on the sum total of blocks that make up the pyramid.

It is a mistake for that single block at the peak to think that each of those million blocks below that carry its weight are insignificant and meaningless so that he can start to shift them around, chipping off their edges and generally rocking the pyramid. If he tries too hard to rock the pyramid, he will spin himself off the pinnacle because he is one block compared to the number of blocks that make up the main body of the pyramid. However, if he is allowed to chip away for long enough, he will then change the structure of the pyramid, hence its geometry. The pyramid is then ruined and can no longer maintain its essence as a pyramid.

It is also a mistake for each one of those million blocks to think that its position is so insignificant that it cannot play a role in the business of keeping that pyramid standing. In the like manner, each citizen in this country must make an effort to ensure that any government that sits up there to govern us, does so within the rules stipulated by the rule of law and further entrenched or protected under the national constitution. Thus, unlike what Sir Michael says, there is no mandate by the people to start chipping away at the constitution, nor is there a mandate by the people to conduct the business of government and public administration outside or above the realm of the rule of law.

Seen in the above context, our constitution is a blue print for establishment of a just society under the notion that all man and women are equal before the law, meaning, both the written law and the unwritten law typified by the law of nature.

the framers of the document gave us all the necessary tools to build the society and also told us how to build that society. But when one looks at the constitution in its entirety, one will not that the framers did not merely provide us a blue print of the society accompanied by the appropriate tools. They went as far as to lay the foundation, erected the structure of the society, nominated our judiciary to act the roles of the project managers, supervisors, and the architects and we the people were given the mandate to build that society through the Westminster system of government. In that sense, the ultimate power to build that society vests in the people who then select the politicians as the builders and we remain in the foreground thus keeping a 'watching brief' over the performance of the builders.

It is rather unfortunate that since Independence, we the people have in one way or another, cast aside the blue print for a just society and now we are building a society of landless squatters putting up little shanty towns using rusty iron sheets and living under the notion of 'self regulation' where the paramount consideration is survival at any cost. Meanwhile, our blue print mandate is to build that society and the Courts are oblivious to their duties as project managers and supervising architects and are now content to play the simple role of giving legal definitions to issues such as whether a spade is a shovel or a sickle is a grass knife.

We the people have lost the blue print for building the just society because we allowed the politicians to use the blue print as a stepping stone to create employment for themselves, their families and associates so the mandate we gave them to build our just society is now like a stimulus economic package to upgrade the politician's living condition, style and his personal ego. The end result is that we now have a highly volatile political society like a tinder bo ready to explode at any moment. If we do not stop for a moment go look for that road map to get us back on track, we will be another failed African or a Caribbean state or a banana republic from the Americas. Now we are one of the most corrupted countries in the world; a status we acquired in Sir Michael's lifetime as a politician.

Finally, is there any truth in the suggestion that Sir Michael is stepping down by August 14 to make room for a new party leader and prime minister? We are sorry to relay the message that he is definitely not stepping down and handing it over to Don Polye. Somare will remain until the year 2012 elections, win his regional seat, return to parliament, make Arthur the Prime Minister; and then walk off the stage: AMEN!
