

Chamber music program closes spring concert season

May 26, 1972

The spring concert season sponsored by the Music Department at the University of California, San Diego will close with an evening of chamber music presented by students from the classes of Harris Goldman, Visiting Professor of Chamber Music.

The concert, which is free and open to the public, will be held at 8:30 P.m. Sunday, June 4, in the Recital Hall, Building 409, Matthews Campus.

The program will include "Divertimento," by Mozart with Pat Imsand, violin, Stephen Levintow, viola, and Alice Connolly, cello; "Trio in C Minor, Opus 9 #3," by Beethoven, with Karen Dirks, violin, Rachel Kam, viola, and Ron Robboy, cello; and "Haydn Quartet in G Major, Opus 77 #1," with Mary Gerard and Mary Karo, violin, Judy Hendershott, viola, and Mary Lindblom, cello.

Goldman is a former member of the Paganini Quartet and student of the Heifetz master class. He has been concert soloist and concert master with a number of symphony orchestras and is presently a member of the music faculty at the University of Southern California.

(May 26, 1972)