The Horse Trading begins all over again

S THERE any truth in the suggestion that politics and prostitution are both the oldest professions in the world?

Well, we will not go into that in this column to maintain an element of integrity because the subjects or subject might not be a proper subject for a public discussion.

Now that the Supreme Court has determined that it is unconstitutional to bind a member of parliament to his political party even after he had already exercised his choice when he voted for the Prime Minister, we are back to base where the politicians can resume their game of 'head-hunting' to overthrow an existing government to form a new one. One question that the Supreme Court did not answer is: "how often is the member of parliament allowed by the constitution to exercise that choice in his 5 years as a parliamentarian?"

Is it a constitutional right or freedom to switch party from time to time, and if so, how many times is a member allowed to exercise that right or freedom? And once that member has exercised that right or freedom of choice, is he not bound by that choice for the duration of his term as a member of parliament and if not, why not?

Ever heard of the word, "sanctity of contract"? Is it not unlike the case of the contractual or a quasi-contractual relationship between a member and his political party that would bind him for the duration of his term in parliament?

We prefer the view expressed by Peter Donigi that the Supreme Court ought to have laid a solid legal foundation for its judgement by declaring in effect that the parliament's right to pass laws is not absolute but a qualified right subject to certain legal preconditions. However, Mr. Donigi points out, maybe the Supreme Court wishes to deal with each case on its own facts rather than laying down a general principle. But what we require is a certain degree of certainty in the law, particularly when it comes to the issue of which was is the law leaning.

It does not help at all if we are to deal with all legal issues on a piece-meal basis without any guidelines as to which way we are heading.

Particularly at this stage of development where the State is playing havoc with the lives of the people, for instance, the Amendment to the Environment Act 2000, and the previous amendments to the Leadership Code, the Courts must come out strongly and exert a position of strength and direction; strength in the sense that it must come out of the closet and assert the prominence of the judicial authority of the people vested in the Courts and in the like manner, provide some judicial direction to the politicians as to which is the proper legal way to conduct the business of parliament.

The Constitution calls for judges to exercise "judicial ingenuity" and work towards the development of Papua New Guinean jurisprudence and particularly the underlying law, but to date there is no evidence that our Courts have picked up the constitutional challenge.

What we require from the Courts is a statement of the Papua New Guinean philosophy of law as embodied in the national constitution particularly when reading the substantive provisions of the constitution against the back drop of the National Goals and Directive Principles. The Courts must come out strongly and assert that the politician cannot start to water down the structure of the Constitution or attempt to do away with certain constitutional institutions which are fundamental to the integrity of the constitution as a whole.

In any event, now that the Supreme Court has disturbed the hornet's nest, they are all out again vying for the top job in the country, and thereby get access to the national treasury. When one reduces politics in PNG to its core element, it all boils down to the two words, 'power' and 'money' for the big boys, and 'perks' for their associates.

One would think that people enter politics to 'serve' people, but it seems not the case in this country. Let us take some of our members for the various electorates in the National Capital and ask what they have done with the K10 million that they collect annually? Where have they pooled all that money?

Now that our members of parliament are out there showing their true colours again, there will be a lot of money, prostitutes and booze flowing freely from hotel to hotel in and around Port Moresby. As is usually the case, most of the money will be coming out of the national treasury where the government will be trying to hold its membership together given that the Opposition is already out lurking in the background poaching candidates to swell its numbers to topple Sir Michael and his supporting parliamentarians.

From past experience, we know that members would openly side with the governing side, but behind the scene, they would be sending their scouts to find out who was meeting whom and what the likely number of candidates seeking to topple the government were. Done that way, the government members were kept abreast with the new developments so that if it appeared that the majority were with the Opposition then in the last minute, the government member would switch sides and vote with the opposition. This is the kind of horse-trading and money laundering that was stopped by the Organic Law on Integrity of Political Parties.

However, now that the relevant provisions of the Organic Law have been struck out as unconstitutional, the boys are out and about and at it again. And most of all, it is business as usual.

Anybody who thinks that politicians should not conduct themselves the way they do, is totally out of context in maintaining such a position. A politician is a politician which means anybody who trusts a politician is a bigger fool than the politician he or she trusts. One cannot expect a politician to act like a normal person otherwise he will cease to become a politician, hence he would lose his seat when he returns to the polls. Basically, a politician is a public parasite who does not know what hard work is all about. A politician does not have to earn a living because he lives off the hard work done by the common man and woman and from the proceeds he collects as taxes from people and businesses alike. And worst of all, a politician is the only one who can spend money without wondering where the next batch of kina will come from. These guys live off public funds like body lice or fleas. They are a despicable lot.

So here we go again. We have to slot in another recycled Prime Minister if the present one is thrown out in a successful Motion of No Confidence.

What else can we expect, when we have very few politicians whom we can label, 'new blood'. The bulk of them are tired old souls who appear to treat parliament as a retirement home or a sanitarium for the sick and the feeble.

We should pass a law to stop people returning to parliament after two full terms so that we can allow more people and new people to enter parliament to bring new ideas and stimulate development at the grassroots level. Right now, most of our members of parliament are living in either Port Moresby or Australia and they have no concept of what is happening in our villages throughout Papua New Guinea.

What we need to do now is have another look at the preconditions for standing as a candidate for a particular electorate. Those members who are not resident in their home districts should not be qualified to stand for that district or constituency.

This would force our members to return to their districts. Right now they are nowhere to be seen until it is election time when they will all be pouring back into the districts and villages promoting a cargo cult mentality. Let us undertake some major reforms in the whole parliamentary system.
