85 Arrested in War Protest

David Buchbinder

Approximately 85 war protestors, including several UCSD sydents, were arrested yesterday afternoon at 11th Naval District Headquarters in downtown San Diego.

On the second anniversary of the killings at Kent State and Jackson State, 1200 persons gathered at 1 PM Thursday in downtown's Horton Plaza to protest the renewed escalation of the Vietnam conflict. They then proceeded to the foot of Broadway and formed a picket line around the entrance to the Naval headquarters building, marching and chanting in a demonstration that lasted two trespassing on federal hours. At this time nearly a property, unlawful assembly. hundred of the protestors sat down in the entrance, blocking it; they remained there until 4:30, when watching police declared it an unlawful assembly and ordered the protestors to disperse. Upon the refusal of the protestors to do so, approximately 60 police moved in and arrested 85.

With a crowd of 200 cheering them as they were led into a County Sheriff's bus and two SDPD paddy wagons, those arrested were taken to the county jail and charged with and failure to disperse.

While this was in progress, approximately 200 protestors marched to the county jail. where they called for the arrested people to be freed. After about 15 minutes of protest this group disbanded peacefully.

When the protest ended organizers claimed it was, "a great victory for the people! We'll come back every day until the war is ended. even if they have to arrest 85,000 of US.

several weeks was made very official here in San Diego Wednesday. The GOP National Convention will move from San Diego to Miami Beach, Florida. Wisconsin State Senator Robert Knowles, the convention coordinator. relayed the official information to San Diego officials after it. was learned that the Miami Beach City Council extended its formal invitation to the Republicans.

Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

The narrow 4-3 approval of the Miami City Council in their bid for the convention, was made only after the Miami Council had been assured that the Federal Government would provide an elite 1000 member "peace corps" to maintain order at the conventionscheduled for August 21-23.

Also in the Miami City Council bid was an agreement to provide "all external security" bus service for delegates, and additional convention hall modifications up to $15,000.

In a letter from Knowles to vice chairman of the convention committee Richard Herman, Knowles cited several problems 'insurmountable" concerning the planned San Diego Convention. It was this letter that indicated to San

What had been unofficial for Diego officials that the convention site might be changed. The reasons for the convention move. Knowles and other convention officials insisted, were physical problems, not political.

Going... Going... Gone

The physical problems were the lack of accomodations and press facilities. The biggest physical problem, say many, was Peter Graham, the owner and operator of the Sports Arena. The contract for modifications on the Arena had been negotiated twice when Graham asked for permanent modifications that would have boosted the cost of remodeling from $76,000 to $400,000.

In a statement issued Thursday, San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson insisted that "San Diego has kept its bargain and gone far beyond that in the way its citizens have put themselves out to host the GOP convention. We have made clear our ability to do so."

In response to the question of why San Diego did not attempt to keep the convention. mayor's assistant Lan Thomas remarked, "The GO was lucky to get San Diego." Thomas also said that 75 per cent of the monies invested in convention planning will be rebated.

Admiral Leslie Gehres. San Diego Republican Party chairman described the situation as "schizophrenic: it makes the job of the local Republican Committee easier. They had been under pressure to contribute heavily to the money convention, now the can be used for individual candidates." Gehres also indicated that the Republican officials have passed a "hasty judgment" because they did not know San Diego or its people."

The Buick Convention. formerly scheduled for late August in Miami, is now contemplating a switch to San Diego instead.

Strike Meeting Condemns Research

Tuesday evening, May 2, a strike meeting was held in the Revelle cafeteria where approximately 250 students attended.

The meeting was chaired by a young woman who introduced herself as a member of the Women's Liberation Front and there were relatively few interruptions of the agenda.

The group almost unanimously voted for a student strike on May 4, a strike which they hope will effect "an immediate end to all US intervention in Vietnam."

The second measure on the agenda, a demand for the University of California to end all war research, was heartily contested as many with opposing views argued about a de-

Tommy Calimee

Dr. Clifford Grobstein, Vice-Chancellor for Health Sciences and Dean of the UCSD Medical School, took time away from his normally busy schedule to converse about a variety of issues and problems in medicine.

A man who has a sharp command of spoken English and a versatile, yet unique way of responding to questions, he is aware of his position in medical administration.

This is evident when he says, "Professionals in medicine will respond to any question with a different opinion, and we have a wide range of diversified opinions."

About the controversy surrounding abortions. Dr. Grobstein said, "All doctors are in some way concerned about human life and must choose between two lives, the choice of the mother sus the baby." He adds bluntly, "It's a knotty situa finition of war research. The vote to stop UC's participation in war research passed. Those present also gave a vote of approval to the support of the stationary engineers at Berkeley, and support the right of these workers for collective bargaining arrangements.

The final vote on the agenda was a measure to stop the increase of undergraduate students without the proportional increase of professors and teaching assistants. The measure against the increase passed.

After the meeting, several cadres were formed to promote the strike activities in different ways: one to work in the community, one to work with the CRAZY TIMES, one to work on leaflets.

AS Decision Expected Soon Steve Brault

"The chancellor is expected to come to a decision this week on the funding and structure of next year's student government," says Paul Kaufman, Associated Students President. He expressed belief that the AS structure would be drastically changed for next year.

After the results of the referendum, Kaufman felt it necessary to re-evaluate the whole idea of student government. "Instead of worrying how to keep the present AS going," states Kaufman, "we have to determine what necessary functions the AS carries out. There may be no AS per se.'

The functions which are essential to the university community should be funded by the whole community," said Kaufman. In Kaufman's proposal, submitted to the chancellor this week, the students would vote on what operations should be paid for by everyone. In the future, special interest groups desiring funding would have to go directly to the students through referendums in order to receive funding, instead of the present system which makes the AS the decision maker on what should be funded by the students.

When questioned on what he felt the future structure of the AS should be, Kaufman stated, "I hope the AS will concern itself more with matters of University governance. Students need a voice on the various faculty committees and boards which make decisions which affect their academic community.'

"The question of abortions is certainly broad and general in terms of the actual practice in the medical profession." he said.

There are religious denominations which are against abortions whether they are legal or non-legal. Dr. Grobsteins' response to the Catholic church, whose position is against abortions: 'Certain religions have rules to which its members must abide It's a question of concern and some adjustment.

"Even is the church there is no consensus about the abortion cotroversy. But it is indeed a practical matter, and one must se aside personal feelings." he said.

Dr. Grottein also answered questions about the Hippocratic )ath and some discontent by a group of graduating medical senirs who see the oath as being outdated and not with the time

He commeted on Hippocrates as being "a great medical leader of his tne. He deserves to be honored.

Dr. Grobstan said the Hippocratic Oath will be recited at graduation cermonies this year.

"However. here are other versions of the Hippocratic Oath. We will rece the Geneva version. which has some modifications, he said.

"You see, tery profession has some kind of ethical guidelines whit it sees fit to follow. The Hippocratic Oath is just one particur guideline for the medical profession." he

"I think studes today are looking again at formality. This is serious and inortant.

Students are pressing their feelings, and searching for the nature of their res in society." he said.

Dr. Clifford Grobstein, Dean of UCSD's Medical School

"An oath is merely a statement of dedication. The Hippocratic Oath is one statement of dedication to the medical profession.

Exhibiting a quality of tact and sitting patiently prepared for the next question. Dr. Grobstein commented on the soon-to-be graduating medical seniors.

The UCSD Medical School will graduate its first students this June, "and the entire administration of the medical school is excited about it." Dr. Grobstein said.

'All of the graduates have received their first or second choice of internships. Many of the students will probably venture into areas like pediatrics, in which they are deeply interested, internal medicine, surgery, and psychiatry,

'Community Medicine is another important area of interest in medicine. especially today. We have some students who will render their expertise in that branch of medicine." he said.

"Our students in the medical school are excellent," he declared.

Dr. Grobstein said. "Our first graduating ceremony in June is going to be a happy ocassion and a display for the medical school in terms of what it does. what it can do and what it will do.

The Muir College Council elections are being continued today, Friday, May 5 due to the moratorium on this campus yesterday. Anyone who did not cast their ballot on Wednesday should do so today between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the election table set up in the Muir Commons patio area.

Today MECHA will sponsor Cinco de Mayo festivities at the UCSD soccer field beginning at 10 a.m. Ernesto Galarza, visiting professor at Third College, will speak at 10. Reies Tijerina, from Alianza, will speak at 11:30, with Dolores Huerta from UFWOC speaking at 12:45. Entertainment is planned between speakers. Everyone and anyone is welcome.

Student Lobby Conference

Lieutenant-Governor Ed Reinecke and Speaker of the Assembly Bob Moretti will be two of the featured speakers at a joint legislative conference sponsored by students of the University of California, the state college and university system, and community colleges in Sacramento on May 8 and

According to Paul Gassaway, UC legislative advocate in Sacramento, the primary objectives of the conference will be to educate the 150 students that will attend legislative programs of various lobbies. Gassaway hopes that this opportunity will enable the students to contact their own legislators and cultivate liasions with legislators that deal with issues important to the individual students.

For UCSD students who are interested in going to this legis-lative awareness meeting, contact Michael Weiss at X1913 for further information.

Summer EPA Fellowships

An unusual summer fellowship for outstanding graduate and dergraduate students has been initiated by the invironmental Protection Agency. The EPA fellowship project will involve student investigation into present-day environmental concerns with special emphasis on the impact of the environment on society. These include (but are not restricted to) environmental management, leisure in the environment, quality of life, future of the environment, and enter-city environment. The 25 fellows themselves will participate in topic selection and will serve in five multidisciplinary teams with a well-qualified graduate student as team leader.

The program will be conducted in Washington, D.C., and will extend from June 15 through Aug. 31 for regular fellows, and from June 13 throrough Sept. 7 for team leaders.

Each fellow will receive room and board plus travel to and from his residence, and, in addition, a nominal stipend of $1,500 for a regular analyst and $2,000 for a team leader.

Applications should be submitted immediately; only those received by May 22, 1972, will be considered. Further program details and application forms are available at Career Planning Services, 6th floor, Building 2D, Muir College.

The International Center is sponsoring a fund-raising dinner to raise money to buy more furniture for the interior. Joan Walsh, coordinator of the affair, told the TRITON TIMES that the dinner will feature an international cuisine, and live entertainment.

Sam Hinton, noted folk singer, will be the master of ceremonies. In addition, Leimoni Gaheten has brought a group of Polynesian dancers to entertain at the dinner.

The International Center, a non-profit organization, will hold the dinner this Saturday at 6 p.m., at the Center. Tickets are $12.50 per couple or $7.50 apiece.

Students can attend the affair free if they bring a dish that will serve 15 people. Anyone interested in bringing a dish should contact Joan by Friday. The number to arrange to bring food or to receive further information is X1941.

McGovern Campaign Moving at UCSD

UCSD students are canvassing the dorms in support of George McGovern's candidacy for president. Their effort is to gain student participation for a person-to-person coverage of the North County communities. Their goal is to gather the support of at least 200 students to cover the precincts in this Precinct workers, often working in pairs, will poll McGovern's support among registered Democrats and distribute literature. Then, on June 6, they will encourage

McGovern supporters to go to the polls. These students hope to air support for McGovern not through charisma or through "power politics." Instead they base their effort upon the issues which McGovern stands for. These are some of the issues which McGovern's support is based upon:

First, McGovern has been consistently against the Indochina war. In the Senate, in 1963, he said "Our policy (in Vietnam) is a policy of moral debacle and military defeat." McGovern is opposed to Nixon's "Vietnamization" and would end all U.S. military operations in Indochina immediately if elected. He would grant general amnesty to all who refused to be inducted. McGovern, a former professor of history, has a legislative record of strong support for educational measures.. If elected he proposes to create 200,000 new scholarships for students of $5,000 dollars each. This and other social reforms would be paid for from $31 billion which he proposes to trim from Also of much interest to students, McGovern has proposed that prosecution be ended for the use or possess marijuana

The Wisconsin primary showed that even normally-conservative blue-collar and lower-class workers have supported McGovern's programs. Perhaps the most all-encompassing category of McGovern's support has come from the disenchanted, including students. tives and manipulated by money," said Fred Driscoll, a spokesman for the UCSD organization. "I think that voters can relate to McGovern's straightforward and honest approach as shown by his record.'

UCSD Students for McGovern will be sponsoring Robert Vaughn on the plaza next Thursday, May 11, at 1. Information on issues and community work is available at the McGovern tables on Revelle and Muir plazas every day, 11-2.

"We have been marching for years," says Driscoll. "Now we have a realistic opportunity for a real change.

Ojai Tennis Tourney Tritons lose to the best

UCSD may not have fared very well in Ojai last weekend, but the group had a great time warming the bench. The annual tennis tournament held in Ojai, a small town inland past Ventura, drew the best players in California, plus players from such places as Houston and Utah. A few of the many events of the tournament include mens' and womens' singles and doubles, the Community College, Independent College, Open, Pacific 8, Junior, and 16 and under divisions.

To demonstrate what a tough tournament Ojai traditionally is, it must be mentioned that some of the crowd-drawing entrees of last year, such as Jimmy Connors, Haroon Rahim, and Jeff Borowiak, all formerly of UCLA, have joined the and Jeff Borowiak, all formerly of UCLA, have joined the professional circuit this year. Besides the individual satisfaction of the winners, the Thatcher Cup is awarded to the college team with the most points. (A point is awarded each time a singles or doubles match is won.) The cup usually stays in the hands of a southern California team such as USC or UCLA, but this year Stanford surprised everyone but themselves by taking the cup for the first time in many years. They also happen to be the top-rated college tennis team in the entire nation. Stanford was led by Alex Mayer, who defeated former La

Jolla High star and currently USC's top player, Raul Ramirez, in the finals of the Pacific 8 mens' singles. Many other points were provided by the all-Stanford doubles consisting of Jim Delaney teaming with another former La Jolla star, Jim "Chico" Hagey, vs. victors Gerry Groslimond and Rick Fisher. Roscoe Tanner, one of Stanford's top singles players, also helped pace the team with his close win over USC's Dick Bornste

Besides the tournament providing great tennis, the town is full of great people. These people offered their spare rooms to players, as Ojai's accommodations could not begin to take care of the many people who came to play or watch the tournament. The "town" consisted of one main road and a seeming eternity of citrus groves. An orange booth was set up at the tournament, providing everyone with as much free, fresh squeezed orange juice as they could drink.

UCSD's entrants included Rudy Perkins in mens' independent college singles, Bruce Baxley and Bill Duke in the mens' doubles, Cheryl Elliott in womens' singles, and Irene Allen and Judy Abrams in womens' doubles. Everyone was capable of winning at least one more round than he, she, or they did. San Diego's luck was not the greatest, as Rudy was almost defaulted out of the tournament, and Brian Teacher, younger brother of Ted Teacher, had to default in the semi-finals of the junior singles because of an injured shoulder. UCSD could not be turned back by anything, though, as most of our representatives from the tournament stayed from

Wednesday night or early Thursday, until at least Saturday or Sunday to be inspired by the finals of the events.

With the prestigious Ojai Tournament behind, and the regular-season finale at USD Monday, all Triton eyes are on the NAIA competition commencing next Thursday at Redlands. The top eight UCSD netters are currently embroiled in intra-squad match-ups to decide which six members will make the trip. The district championships culminate a season of continuing improvement and provide a springboard to the national championships at St. Louis. Since the Redlands team is the defending national champion, its district will be entitled to send at least two squads to the St. Louis finals. Last year LaVerne, a team beaten by the Tritons this season, was runnerup to Redlands and accompanied them to the nationals. In short, the entire success of this UCSD tennis season will be tested severely next weekend, with the prize being a shot at the national championships.

"Peace" at the Cost of Freedom

Kevin Olson

The present outbreak of barbarism and lawlessness across the nations' colleges and universities is not surprising; indeed, it has me a regular occurrence whenever the U.S. Government dares make an attempt to win, or even avoid defeat in, the war in Vietnam. The "Crimson Communique promulgated by one of our leading universities is indeed quite crimson; I can think of no better propaganda for destroying moral and love of country. And now our own TRITON TIMES, which has exhibited occasional flashes of sound judgment and good taste this year, has also decided to abrogate its journalistic responsibility by editorializing for a student strike. Once more the guilty liberals are engaging in self-flagellation, innocently crying, "Why must the U.S. interfere with other countries?" "Why is there war?" The apotheosis of this buffoonery has been reached in the TIMES' ludicrons "strike for freedom," which is in essence nothing less than an attack on those freedoms that are now in the gravest danger.

There are wars, my children, because there are worse things than wars, like living in Russia, or Peking, or North Vietnam. War, as one man has said, is the second worst activity of mankind; the first being acquiescence in slavery. And the U.S. intervention in Vietnam was founded on the grounds of preventing said slavery; it was founded in the very name of

Plea for opened Eyes

Where lies our moral justification, cry the protestors, for our entering into the private affairs of a far-away land? If they would open their eyes, they would see. For the past 50 years Communism has been waging, an unceasing war against all civilized humanity, and against western civilization in particular. For the 25 years that war has been directed against the United States as the only force capable of standing in the way of its eternal, constantly reiterated goal of world domination. Is there not a moral justification to defend oneself against a relentless, ideologcommitted attack on all civilized values? There is, and that moral justification can be found in the streets of Budapest and Prague, in the forced starvation and slave camps of Siberia, in the tent of millions of innocent victims of Mao's mutilation of Chinese civilization, in the people shot trying to flee Cuba, in the bloody puddles beneath the Berlin Wall.

Indeed, the true immorality of our conduct is found in the confusion, the pusillanimity, the weakness of character that has characterized the American foreign policy of recent decades. How can history interpret, for example, the greatest power in the world allowing its sworn and implacable enemy, the second greatest power, to establish an armed base 90 miles from our shores? Or American acquiescence to the invasions of Hungary and Czechoslovakia, or to the treatment of Soviet Jews? How can history interpret our President, the man who so courageously defended Whittaker Chambers, shaking hands with the most merciless tyrant of all time, whose record for subjugation and mass slaughter surpasses that of Hitler and Stalin combined?

Communism vs. Western Civilization

This policy of pathos is apotheosized in the tragedy of Vietnam. Vietnam is not a private conflict, it is not a civil war. There can be no connict, it is not a civil war. There can be no civil war when eighty per cent of the artillery and force of the North Vietnamese army is supplied by the Soviets. Vietnam is but another chapter in the protracted conflict between Communism and western civilization that has been going on, on a global scale, since the end of World War II. And in this conflict there can be no "appearement" no there can be no "appeasement," no "coexistence," for we are faced with only two tragic, stark alternatives: victory or defeat. In an uncommon display of courage, President Nixon has risked his political career by renewing the bombing of the enemy, in a last-ditch effort to prevent the enslavement and butchery that would inevitably follow a Communist victory in Vietnam. But ARVN is weakening. Quang Tri has been conguered. weakening, Quang Tri has been conquered, and Hue is in grave peril.

My roommate, a South Vietnamese exchange student whose family and friends reside in Saigon, a few dozen miles from Hue, does not understand the student protest against American defense of his homeland. I suspect he believes, as do I, that in the decision between victory and defeat which still faces us, the cry of student protest and recreancy can only aid the cause of defeat.

Meanwhile, our enlightened young at home chant their solidarity with the Viet Cong, and rejoice at every American defeat and niliation.

VIETNAM: A Story of Atrocities and Lies American Atrocitie

David Kristofferson

At present in South Vietnam the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN), supported by American air and naval power, is involved in a life and death struggle with the troops of the National Liberation Front (NLF) and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (DRV). President Nixon spoke to the nation about the Vietnam situation on Wednesday evening, April 26. In his speech Mr. Nixon displayed his strong determination that the NLF and DRV "can not be allowed to win" a military victory in South Vietnam. He demonstrated his resolve by ordering the bombing raids on "military" targets in North Vietnam, including the port of Haiphong, and by strengthening U.S. air and naval forces in Southeast Asia. Mr. Nixon justifies his actions by saying, "What we are witnessing here, what is being brutally inflicted upon the people of South Vietnam, is a clear case of naked, unprovoked aggression across an international border. There's only one word for it, invasion." As Mr. Nixon frequently says, "Let's look at the record.'

igh the information was printed quite early in several books (Russell, Bertrand. War Crimes in Vietnam. 1967; Cameron, James. Here Is Your Enemy. 1966; for example), it wasn't until the publication of the Pentagon Papers that wide-spread public attention was attracted to the origins of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. Our fanatical fear of Con the post World War II period, our aid of the French colonialists against the government of the Viet Minh (which the French had legally recognized in 1946 before their aggression against it), the imposition of the regimes of Bao Dai and Diem on the Vietnamese people who desired their independence from foreign domination, Diem's refusal (with U.S. approval) to hold the elections provided for in the 1954 Geneva agreements which would have reunified the temporarily divided country of Vietnam, Eisenhower's fear that the Vietnamese would vote for the Communists, the denial of South Vietnamese selfdetermination, Diem's use of terror to suppress all opposition to his regime, the formation of the NLF to oppose Diem's tyranny, the subsequent fighting, the overthrow and assassination of Diem by a military coup in Saigon, the heavy U.S. involvement in Vietnam, the bombing of North Vietnam, etc., are all well-documented facts. We must stop and ask ourselves who has "brutally inflicted" aggression "upon the people of South Vietnam?

Diem Regime, Acts of Terror It was the United States that initiated the Diem regime and urged it to cancel the 1956 elections, thereby denying the right of self-determination to the South Vietnamese people. We supported this dictatorship while it suppressed all opposition in South Vietnam. In his book Atrocities in Vietnam (Pilgrim Press, 1970), Edward S. Herman documents many of the acts of terror employed by the Diem regime and compares them to "Communist" actions of the same period. He states:

There are no dependable quantitative estimates of the extent of terrorism during the Diem period, but there is no doubt that both political imprisonments and killings by the Saigon government ran into the thousands and that torture was used on a large scale. It was noted above that by its own estimate the Diem regime had incarcerated 48,200 alleged Communists between 1954 and 1960. Estimates of killings by the Diem government's 'security forces' and secret police range up to 75,000, but they can not be regarded as reliable. (p. 23)

In response to Diem's autocratic rule, several factions of South Vietnamese, non-Communists and Communists, formed the NLF to overthrow the Diem government and reunify South Vietnam with the North. The NLF employed guerilla warfare and assassination of people connected with the Saigon government as their means of overcoming Diem's oppressive policies. The Empty service and the beautomic of the service and assassing the service and the se policies. The Front grew rapidly because of the popularity of its objectives and soon gained the support of the peasants in the countryside whom Diem was herding into concentration camps, otherwise known as "strategic hamlets."

The situation in South Vietnam eventually deteriorated to the point where it was "necessary" for the U.S. government to support a coup against Diem to prevent the NLF from taking over South Vietnam. The results of the coup are well known. Diem was murdered by a South Vietnamese officer. Following his death South Vietnam went through a succession of numerous military dictatorships. Eventually it was "stabilized" under the rule of Premier Ky and later a 'democracy'' was established under the present president, Nguyen Van Thieu.

But were conditions any better for the South Vietnamese people after Diem? Referring to Edward S. Herman again, he documents the atrocities committed by the NLF (political assassinations and the 1968 Hue "massacre." which he shows was greatly exaggerated by the Saigon government) and compares them to the atrocities of ARVN (looting, the torturing and execution of prisoners. destruction of "Communist" villages). The incidents in his book are welldocumented, many coming from reputable U.S. newspapers and Congressional hearings. Because of lack of space I cannot list the separate examples, but I strongly urge everybody to read Herman's book Atrocities in Vietnam (Pilgrim Press. Philadelphia and Boston, 1970). He concludes his survey by stating:

The evidence would thus seem to support the view that. taking indigenous South Vietnamese forces alone, a greater degree of terror and volume of atrocities are attributable to the Saigon government and its agents than to the NLF and DRV. This results from the fact that terror has generally been employed by the NLF as a selective political weapon aimed at U.S.-Saigon authority: Saigon atrocities, on the other hand, have been a product of attacks by internal mercenary forces, with considerable fire-power but minimal indigenous political support. aimed directly at those large parts of the population of South Vietnam that do not support the Saigon government. (p. 40)

Herman then continues to document atrocities committed by, hard as it may be for some people to believe, our own forces. He quotes a Marine from the Congressional Record who said, "From my own experience the terror and havoc that we spread across Vietnam makes the Viet Cong look like a girl scout picnic."" (p. 41) Herman cites evidence of more massacres similar to My Lai. The civilian to military death ratio he quotes as being 10 to 1 in South Vietnam. He discusses the U.S. bombing of NLF hospitals in South Vietnam and of schools and churches in North Vietnam in "clear violation," as Nixon would say, of the rules of war agreed upon at the Geneva Convention of 1949. Evidence is given that was listed in Life magazine as far back as April 7, 1967, exposing the use of "cluster bombs" against "military" targets. This type of bomb is purely for antipersonnel purposes and cannot destroy factories, bridges, and other legitimate military targets. Herman states:

According to Lee Lockwood (Life, April, 1967):

In North Vietnam: A Documentary, John Gerassi describes a child in Hanoi's General Surgical Hospital, who 'had been struck by a pellet in one temple, exiting through the other blowing out both eyeballs in the process; the child was technically alive, although of course blind and incurably deranged.' (p. 72-73) Much of the outrage against U.S. bombing is directed at the use of antipersonnel bombs - particularly the CBU's (cluster bomb units), canisters which burst in the air, each scattering 300 baseball-sized explosives which detonate on impact, each spraying hundreds of pea-sized steel pellets at high velocity over a wide area. The pellets are coated with napalm and stick when hit ... One 18-year-old girl had taken a pellet through her left arm, one in her intestine, one through her finger and lower lip, and one, which I could feel with my finger. mbedded in the heel of her hand.

All of this is not to mention the use of napalm on "suspected ommunist villages," the "defoliation" and destruction of the South Vietnamese environment by lethal chemicals, the deliberate burning of villages by U.S. troops, the declaration of "free fire zones" in South Vietnam (When an area was known to be devoid of allied supporters it was declared a "free fire zone." which meant that it was "legal" to exterminate anyone found within, including women and children. Herman documents several reports of massacres conducted by U.S. helicopter machinegunners of peasants at work in their fields in such zones.) and many more atrocities. Again Herman's evidence is well-documented.

Who is the aggressor in South Vietnam? I think the evidence shows that the responsibility for aggression lies with the United States. It was the United States that originally blocked the South Vietnamese people's right of self-determination by instituting and supporting the Diem government against their will. It is the United States that continues to support the corrupt Saigon regimes, that has allowed these regimes to oppress and terrorize the people of South Vietnam, and that has elf attempted to tear the very soul out of South Vietnam.

And yet Nixon speaks of the NLF/DRV attempt "to impose a Communist dictatorship" on the people of South Vietnam "against their will," (and I thought only Pravda used rhetoric like that!). He has the gall to say:

If the United States betrays the millions of people who have relied on us in Vietnam, the President of the United States, whoever he is, will not deserve, nor receive, the respect which is essential if the United States is to tinue to play the great role we are destined to play of helping to build a new structure of peace in the world. It would amount to a renunciation of our morality ... (etc., etc.)

We have imposed the dictatorships on South Vietnam. We betrayed the South Vietnamese by supporting these oppressive governments. We have already renounced our morality; there is none left to renounce.

We are told about "the inevitable bloodbath that would follow for hundreds of thousands who have dared to oppose are not told of the th civilians who have died or will die in this brutal war. We are not informed that, as Herman states, the Saigon government is just as likely, if not more so, to carry out "reprisal killings" against its opponents if it ever gained full control. Herman says. "The boodbath argument also disregards the fact that in the post-Geneva period, as evidenced by the records of the International Control Commission, Diem and the 'Free World' forces were far more guilty of illegal reprisals than were the North Vietnamese." (p. 91) A NLF/DRV takeover would possibly mean death to many of the collaborators of the Saigon government. Continuation of the war will certainly result in many more civilian deaths than any possible reprisals, and unfortunately continuation of the war is the endproduct of Vietnamization.

No Peace in Vietnamization

Vietnamization is not a plan for peace: it only switches the responsibility of fighting to the South Vietnamese government As Nixon's actions have shown, our air support (and the inevitable civilian deaths that follow from it) is needed to prop up this regime. It is highly unlikely that it could stand completely on its own without U.S. bombs and advisors. We will either continue to bomb or a NLF/DRV takeover will bring peace.

Nixon continues to hope for an "honorable peace ... with South Vietnam and North Vietnam each respecting the other's independence." The NLF and DRV will never accept such terms. To do so would be for them to bow down to the U.S. subversion of the 1954 Geneva agreeme tns and allow Vietnam to be illegally partitioned. Continued on Page 6

'return to the streets" during Tuesday night's meeting, I feel an important point concerning the direction of current student protests to the actions in Vietnam should be made. While it is actions in Vietnam should be made. While it is true, as Dr. Lettau pointed out, that the overwhelming majority of Americans want the U.S. to unconditionally pull out of Vietnam and stop the bombing, that same majority rejects decisively the ideological imperatives which have so long emasculated the student antiwar movement and prevented its anti-war movement and prevented its translation into effective political action.

The vast majority of American action. The vast majority of Americans who are opposed to the war don't want to "burn Nixon in effigy," as Lettau suggested, or overthrow the government. They don't care how many treaties the U.S. has broken, or how imperialistic the U.S. is, or how many war crimes the U.S. has committed, no matter how indicative these facts might be of a deeper malaise in American government. They are, however, tired of a war which is obviously not in their best interests.

If we, as students, are to be able to effectively coalesce community outrage against the war, as has been suggested at fuesday's meeting and elsewhere, it will not be done by putting ourselves in an ideological straitjacket. We can, if we want, have a tremendous effect on U.S. policy by actively McGovern who are for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, who have a broad base of political support, and who have a good chance for election in November.

An Open Letter to the Policy Makers of UCSD

Recently I have once again fallen victim to the unequal practices of this University as regards graduate students and undergraduate students. I was completing a take-home quiz for one of my biology classes and desired to check out a book from the SIO library. I was asked whether I had arrangements to check books out from there since I was an undergraduate. I did not have special arrangements at that moment but because I worked at SIO for a year and often checked out library books under my boss's or my own name, the librarian allowed me to check out the book. I used it for one day and fully intended to return the book the next day when that the undergraduate at UCSD be treated equally in such practices as those of library use instead of being the "low man on the totem pole." Despite assurances to the contrary, undergraduates are the lowest of the low, and there is no denying it. This should not be. Undergraduates on the whole are just as responsible and trustworthy as graduate students, and are just as interested in furthering their education. So why is it that I cannot use the SIO library or S&E library where only graduate students can check out journals) or any other facility that my using would be reasonable

I think it is time such practices be changed and I invite the University community to comment on this matter.

Nazi Sympathizer?

Editor

I am writing to express my extreme disgust and anger at the actions of a UCSD student, John MacGregor, who on May 2 lowered the in memory of the late chancellor of German during 1932, Franz Von Papen, who died on this day in 1969. Certainly Mr. MacGregor must be aware that it was Von Papen who dissolved the Reichstag and lifted the ban on Nazi storm troopers, secretly joining forces with Hitler to become his vice-chancellor in a new government in January of 1933. In 1934, Von Papen was sent as a special envoy to Austria to prepare the way for the 1938 Nazi annexation. After World War II, Von Papen was brought before the Nuremberg court and was sentenced to eight years for his war crimes crimes. While Mr. MacGregor may identify with Von Papen's political philosophy (as his actions on the night of April 26 as described in last Tuesday's TRITON TIMES would indicate — exhorting a group of students to burn and stone the Chancellor's house), I personally feel that he has no right to impose his political beliefs on the UCSD commu and University regulations substantiate this fact. I would only hope that University administrators would be as strict in disciplining Mr. MacGregor as they have been in similar instances regarding students of different political persuasion, i.e., those students who disrupted the Ashbrook speech. ### VIETNAM...

Nixon stresses the importance of an "honorable peace" in Vietnam in serving to lower the risk of future wars and to allow future generations to live in peace. He emphasizes that these erations must not be forced to fight in any more Vietnams. This argument contains the fallacious assumption that nist aggression started the Vietnam war and that if nist aggressors win, they will be encouraged to try again elsewhere. In fact U.S. subversion and intervention is onsible for the Vietnam war. There would be no eason for the U.S. to fight any further Vietnams if it would ndon its foreign policy of intervention into the internal airs of other countries. Attention all students who are interested in working to inform the American people about the barbaric nature of the Vietnam war: believe that many people in the U.S. are unaware of the atrocities that have been and are being committed in Vietnam. This is evidenced by the strong primary support for candidates such as Richard Nixon and George Wallace. If the American people really knew the type of policies that these men represent, we feel that they would vote them out of power. We feel that many more people can be converted to the anti-war movement if they are made aware that the Vietnam war is an atrocity against the Vietnamese people and not a crusade for anticommunism. Going to UCSD next year & looking for roommate(s) to share a place in I.V. Let's get together & discuss possibilities. Howard 453-9044 F-72 Tioga.

going to find out what an apartment should really be like... like fully built-in kitchens, terrific bedrooms, carpeting, drapes, and a private patio outside your door. And, perhaps best of all, all of this is less than five minutes from campus.

So you see, two really can live as cheaply and as extravagantly as one... and after all, aren't two heads better than one?

Suggestions for possible free entertainment for the precommencement activity are also needed and can be offered at any of the above locations. The Muir College Student Graduation Committee: Bob Thornhill, Diddo Clark, Howard Eno, Jerry Turner.

Here it is, the first of the year. You've got those old Spring-Quarter-Where-Am-I-Going-To-Live?-blues. That place you've got now is falling apart at the beams. If you have to listen to apart at the beams. If you have to listen to that tap dancing clown upstairs for one more night, you're going to knock him for a couple of fruit loops. Is that what's troubling you, Bunky?

WELL, STEP RIGHT UP SON, GET YOURSELF A ROOMMATE AND RENT YOURSELF A LITTLE PEACE OF MIND AT LA JOLLA VILLAGE.

Look at it this way: If you and a friend go in on a place, it'll cost you as little as $72.50 a month. The money you're paying for the dive you're living in now can buy you a little more happiness and a whole lot more comfort and convenience.

It's the little things. Like two huge swimming pools. Or, maybe you'd like to lie around in the Jacuzzi until your body turns to jelly. It might even be a friendly game of pool in the billiards room...for pink slips.
