Jayne Relaford Brown is a lesbian-feminist poet who loves to do readings and teach women's writing workshops. Her work is currently in Portfolio and will be seen in Wanting Women: Erotic Lesbian Poetry and in an upcoming anthology of poetry on AIDS. She's putting together a short book of her own poetry.

She has been named a local hero by syndicated columnist Wendy Caster: "Jayne's humor, bravery, talent and stamina are a gift to us all, and she is indeed a hero. I predict that someday she'll be nationally appreciated as well, and we can all brag that we 'knew her when.'" (San Diego Gay Times, August 4, 1989)

San Diego Women's Chorus

Committed to providing women's music to the community.

The San Diego Women's Chorus is open to women who want to sing, or play an instrument, and to non-singers who want to become involved in the many varied responsibilities and details of supporting the chorus.

The Chorus is a group of feminist women of varying musical abilities, political interests, life styles, and life experiences. Under the leadership of its organizer Cynthia Lawrence-Wallace and with their combined energies, talent and commitment, they strive to present concerts that entertain, inspire, motivate, heal and create a feeling of community with their audience.

Please contact 265-2877 for more information.
