NEW ZEALAND - HELPING IN PNG

- New Zealand provided PGK40million (NZD23.75m) in assistance to PNG for the twelve months to June 2009.
- NZ is committed to spending up to NZD85million over the next three years
- NZ is focused on improving social services in education and health and improving livelihood opportunities for people in rural areas.

Health

NZAID will continue its long-term commitment to the Health Sector Improvement Programme, a joint approach between the Government and a number of development partners to build the capacity of the Department of Health, and improve delivery of health services nationwide. In 2009, NZAID signed an agreement to provide a further PGK16 million for health over the next four years. Specific support is provided through a number of partners targeting reproductive health, HIV and AIDS prevention, and community health. Community health projects such as Bougainville Healthy Communities Programme train villagers to be primary health care providers. Over the years a huge number of volunteers, mostly women, have helped their communities to improve their health and general standard of living.

Education

New Zealand is supporting PNG as it works toward a sector-wide approach to improve access to basic primary education. NZAID is also developing a comprehensive approach to human resource development in PNG that will expand its existing NZAID tertiary and technical scholarship schemes and will better link training to improving rural livelihoods. New Zealand offers around 250 scholarships per year for study in New Zealand and Papua New Guinea.

Improving livelihoods opportunities

New Zealand's contribution in this area is set to grow. New Zealand provides support to the Fresh Produce Development Agency, a Government extension agency linking farmers and consumers of fresh fruit and vegetables; and to Bris Kanda, which aims to build commercially productive partnerships between rural communities and service providers in the Huon Gulf. NZAID will explore ways to improve rural people's income from the agricultural sector by supporting government and civil society groups who can improve small-holder farmer productivity and access to markets.

Bougainville

New Zealand's involvement in the Bougainville peace process and subsequent peace monitoring missions is a special chapter in NZ-PNG relations, and remains a key pillar in our bilateral relationship. NZAID's engagement in Bougainville focuses on strengthening its law and justice system and improving government administration and service delivery. Over the past four years, a deployment of New Zealand Police have helped train Bougainville Community Auxiliary Police who help local communities deal with law and order and social problems in consultation with chiefs and traditional leaders. New Zealand also supports the work of a number of NGOs who provide business and trade skills training, counselling and health and education services.

"New Zealand supporting community policing in Bougainville"

The President of the Autonomous region of Bougainville Hon. James Tanis inspecting the wing of which he is patron.

The New Zealand Police have had a presence on Bougainville for several years now, helping to rebuild the Bougainville Police Service which all but disappeared during years of conflict. The focus is on the 350 Community Auxiliary Police, part-time officers who police remote areas throughout Bougainville. In addition the New Zealand Police coach and mentor senior officers within the regular force. Good progress is being made and, while the BPS still faces a number of difficulties in performing its functions, Bougainville now has an operational police force.

The New Zealand Police's work in Bougainville is funded by NZAID, the New Zealand Government's official aid and development agency. It is one of New Zealand's most important projects in Bougainville.

A very significant part of the project is the Female CAP recruitment and retention initiative.

In April of 2008, only 4 percent of the Community Auxiliary Police were female. Women in the rural villages and regions of Bougainville simply did not have access to any female police officers. This is a serious problem as many women are very uncomfortable talking about sensitive topics, for example, sexual offending, with a male police officer.

The aim is that 20 percent of the Community Auxiliary Police will be female. An increase in female Community Auxiliary Police Officers will mean that women have better access to female officers. It will also raise the profile of women in general, provide women with a role in enforcing law and order alongside male CAP Officers, and assist in developing a better service and response to crime and events in rural villages.

An analysis of the current female Community Auxiliary Police population dispelled many long-held negative views around the recruitment and especially the retention of female officers. The overall CAP distribution has also undergone analysis, so it is now clear where the current female Community Auxiliary Police Officers are located and, more importantly, where more need to be recruited.

As a result it was decided to establish an all female recruit wing. The President of the Autonomous Region of Bougainville was consulted and agreed to be the wing patron. Specific locations were targeted for recruitment and a recruitment drive commenced.

On 14 September 2009 some 22 women, all selected by their individual communities and chiefs, passed a pre-entry test and arrived at Buka to commence training in the Hon. James Tanis Recruit wing - the first ever all-female recruit course.

The course was designed for four weeks, however by working the course on Saturdays and in the evenings, it was able to be reduced to three weeks. On October 1 2009, with a large percentage of the population of Buka looking on, all 22 of the female recruits graduated.

In attendance was the President of the Autonomous Region of Bougainville, the Minister for Police, a Minister representing the Minister for Women, and a number of other dignitaries.

The Senior Provincial Magistrate administered the oath of office to the women, and at the conclusion of the ceremony, 22 much-needed female police officers had been added to the ranks of the Community Auxiliary Police.

There were many positive comments from the large crowd of onlookers, and all speeches agreed that there was a real need for the female officers.

On parade the officers made a very impressive sight, and the pride in their uniform and achievement was obvious.

The officers left Buka early on the morning of the 2nd October to return to their villages and communities. Upon their arrival they will immediately commence duties alongside existing male Community Auxiliary Police Officers already established.

While the objective of a population of 20 percent female Community Auxiliary Police Officers has not yet been achieved, this is a major step forward and will make a real difference to the women of rural Bougainville.

NOOMO Trading Ltd, formerly known as Rait Prais Stores, is one of the trade store business outlets in the Autonomous Bougainville Region (ARB) which continues to serve the people of the ARB with dedication and commitment. And it surely is contributing towards service, peace, development and autonomy through the service it gives to the people in its shops, warehouse, wholesale & retail & kaibar.

Business houses in the ARB need government support

Those people who have lived in Arawa during the pre-crisis days will remember the Kopeliz shops of which one used to be at Kaperia, Section 5. Well, that shop which was an arm of Kopeliz Painting, owned by an Australian married to Elizabeth, a Bougainvillian with their only sibling, son Greg, is a true survivor of the Bougainville crisis. As long as it had some stock, the shop remained open in Siwai during the crisis until the situation worsened back home and son Greg traveled to Rabaul and opened up there as "The Rait Prais" shop. In 2003, Greg who passed away two years ago after heart failure in Buka, married a Tolai woman and returned to Buka with their two sons. The business quickly picked up, expanded and now with outlets in Buka, Kokopau, Arawa and Siwai, it is on the top echelons of the competitive markets in the ARB.

According to Appollos Kuitai, the General Manager of Noomo, businesses on Bougainville have set themselves up despite the huge risks involved, coupled with no insurance cover to provide much needed services to the people on the island. They have done so with nil assistance from the government and he says that the least the government can do now is to assist in the following areas. Free up land for business houses to apply and set up so that the burden of high rental costs now paid to traditional landowners be lessened, and let PNG Power into Arawa, Kokopau and Arawa to reduce huge fuel costs incurred by the use of own generators.

Mr Kuitai is also urging the Autonomous Bougainville Government (ABG) to make way for overseas vessels to come direct into Bougainville ports so that money remains in the ARB instead of business houses going to Rabaul and Lae to get their cargo, thus spending huge sums of money in other provinces.

"If the national government or the ABG could come up with an open economic policy for business houses on Bougainville to get cargo direct from overseas and be tax free minus also the 10% GST, it will definitely help businesses in the ARB," says Mr Kuitai.

He says Noomo Trading's has plans for the future and one is to build its own shopping and freezer complex to cut rental costs. It also wants to improve its services to the people who matter most and one of the ways Mr Kuitai says that this could be done is by the government to free up land and services would expand. With about 60 workers in its operations throughout Bougainville, Noomo is helping Bougainville by its contribution in the restoration of services, peace, economic development and autonomy and Mr Kuitai says that the business no doubt is here to stay and continue its work for the people of the ARB.

Merchandise, Freezer Goods and Kaibar. Noomo Trading has its roots in Arawa from pre crisis days which operated a successful trade store business and painting company called Kopeliz, owned by the family of an Australian, Greg Boschat, married to Elizabeth, a Bougainvillian woman from Siwai and their only son, the late Greg Kopeliz who revived the business in 2002 in Rabaul, thence moved to home-base in Buka in 2003, to become one of the successful trade store businesses in the ARB.

Bougainville 21 Years on Since the Conflict....

By Veronica Hatutasi

THE BOUGAINVILLE Crisis arose from the Panguna landowners' grievances for better compensation claims of the land on which stands the Panguna Copper and gold mine, one of the world's largest open cut mines and operated by Bougainville Copper Ltd (BCL) for Rio Tinto, the Australian mining giant and parent company.

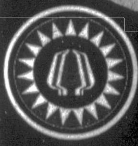

The new breed of young Bougainvillians headed by late Francis Ona, a surveyor and employee of BCL and a Panguna landowner as well, added to the grievances, damages to the environment and the river systems brought about by the four square kilometer "lunar crater" excavated and the massive degradation of the Jaba River by the waste from the mine tailings flowing into the Empress Augusta Bay on Bougainville's east coast.

A K10 billion compensation demand was thus claimed from Bougainville Copper Ltd. However, when the PNG Government and Bougainville Copper failed to address the grievances and demands, the birth of the conflict started "simmering" in September 1988 with the blowing up of the power pylons along the Panguna-Arawa road, reached boiling point in November and exploding in December 1989 when the PNG Defence Force and police mobile squad was sent into Bougainville to quell the troubles by the then prime minister of PNG, Sir Rabbie Namaliu.

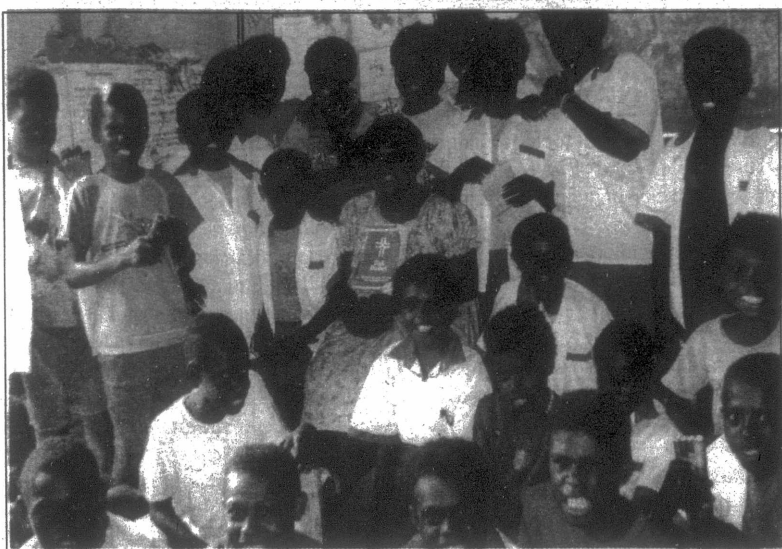

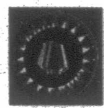

Secessionist sentiments on Bougainville goes as far as the early 1960's with the first occurring when the landowners from Rorovana village near Loloho opposed the concerted moves by Conzinc RioTinto (CRA) and the PNG national government to establish itself without proper consultation with them. The second attempt was in 1975/76 which was quelled by the granting of the "Provincial Government" to Bougainville, the first of such a system of government arrangement in PNG.

Achieving a better future for Bougainville through Education

EDUCATION and health are two vital service areas anywhere in the world, important factors or roadmaps in determining the social and economic progress of communities and countries.

Bougainville is one of the provinces in PNG which was at the top echelons in academic excellence prior to the crisis. However, the 10 years of combat, displacement and closure of schools has taken the island back by say, 20 years with many of its school aged and young people missing out on schooling. However, as normality slowly trickles into many areas of mainland Bougainville, so schools and health centres are opening up to cater for the lost generation of children and young people. It will take years of hard work, commitment and dedication to get the children educated and up to the level comparable as before.

The small township of Buka in the Autonomous Region of Bougainville recently came alive as students and the public gathered at the Isa Beach front in Buka to witness the launch of Bougainville's 10-year Education Plan. The Plan was carried into the arena on a special canoe known as a "mona" symbolizing transport from generation to generation in this sense the transportation of education in the region.

Bougainville is the 14th province out of the 20 provinces in Papua New Guinea to launch its provincial education plan.

The 10 year plan with the theme "Achieving a Better Future" sets out in general the vision and the goals of the Autonomous Bougainville government towards the development and delivery of education services in the Region.

Minister for Education Honourable James Marape in his opening remarks before officially launching the Plan acknowledged teachers for their commitment to the delivery of education services in the Region. He said the greatest legacy or monument of development in any country was human resources therefore encouraged teachers to continue the good work in educating the future of Bougainville.

The Somare - Temu government he said, was to launch Universal Basic Education Plan soon to ensure that all children are in school by 2015. He described the Plan as the road map towards positive development of the education in the Region. He also stressed the importance of Partnership at all levels.

"Community wide support is vital as it encourages students to do well and return later in life to support their school. He called on school boards to assist the government in using the Government school fee subsidies wisely.

He also mentioned that an estimated K10 billion was needed to rehabilitate existing school infrastructure in PNG in the next 10 to 20 years.

He called on the Local Level Governments to ensure that the K1m under the District Support Grants be used wisely and priority given to education. The Minister also during the launch committed K5 million to commemorate partnership between the National Government and the Region.

He said of the K5m, K1m would go to schools in North Bougainville, another K1m for schools in South Bougainville, K1m for schools in Central Bougainville, K1m to support the EQUITV program in the region and a further K1m to be used by the Governor to further support education in the region.

Meanwhile Brenda Tohiana - Chairperson of the Bougainville Education Plan Consultative Committee, stressed the importance of support from the Autonomous Bougainville Government and Development Partners as well as from those involved in education to be proactive in their approach towards the Plan.

Also during the launch, the ABG Minister for Education Honourable Michael Otoroa said the Plan sets the roadmap to education development in education and added that education was the main catalyst in human resource.

He said the Plan also outlined issues affecting education in the region as well as measures that can be taken to address these issues. He added that parents should be held accountable for their children's education and called on parents to ensure children were in school.

Follow your dream to realityIceblock sales starts business

By Veronica Hatutasi
AFTER 14 years of being a banker in Port Moresby and later in Buka, Philo Huriku decided to call it quits to work on a vision she envisaged while working at the Bank of South Pacific, Buka Branch.

"During lunch hour, I would go with my friends to the luncheon place, DJL, near the City Pharmacy in Buka town where this dream of having my own Kai-ba was conceived. The idea became firmly planted in my mind and I just had to do something. So I resigned in August last year and opened my very own hauska in September of the same year.

"If you want to achieve something and you work hard at it, you will surely get somewhere, as I can say now," a satisfied and ever cheerful Philo, mother of two beautiful girls says as we sit outside her little market where her ice blocks are sold.

Money from three years sale of ice blocks at K1.00 per cup is the capital which initially kick started off the building of her kai-ba and guesthouse. So this month, Philo and her family celebrate the first year of their business which is growing and proving to be a success. Philo's CSJ Guesthouse& girls and men to improve their lives and that of their families," says Philo.

"At the end of the day, all the food at the hauska is wiped out. I am satisfied to see the business grow each day. During my time at the bank, I saw other people's money grow, but now, I can be contented managing the guesthouse and Kaibari while her part Chinese/Buka husband takes care of their cocoa plantation and buying and selling of dried cocoa beans. The money they get from the cocoa helps in the running of their overall running of their business.

For the future, Philo plans to purchase freezer container and sell freezer goods as well.

Philo has a message for others wanting to start up something and that is, "if you have a goal, put all your effort in it, believe in God, have patience and it will bear fruit. In the end, you will be a happy person to see your efforts coming in to fruition," says Philo.

In the final analysis, the business is for my daughters' future.

"At least, they have something to lean on, but it is up to them to look after it properly and it will look after them," concludes Philo with much optimism.

"If you want to achieve something and you work hard at it, you will surely get somewhere"

Kai-ba has the edge over the others to pull customers as it is situated at the hub of Kokopau near the PMV highway truck stop and motorized dinghy pickup and drop off area. And the first place where the hungry customers go to is Philo's hotspot kai-ba.

Soaring up from K30 capital only

By Veronica Hatutasi

FROM a mere K30 six pack sales of noodles and biscuits from home, Hirupe Varieties Discount shops is the living proof of dedication, sacrifice, commitment and sheer determination to make something happen and become a reality.

Fed up of the going ons back home, especially after the Tonu U-Vistract and ex-combatants clashes incident, this young man. David Hirupe, who hails from Rupummo village in Siwai, southwest Bougainville decided to pack up and move to Buka where a lot of his fellow wantoks had already established their businesses, and try his luck with a trade store.

What money he had made in Siwai, starting with the K30 sales and thereafter, he took and travelled the long distance highway ride to Buka in 2005. Now he owns two shops in HIGHWAY TRAVELLERS ARRIVAL: The normal scene at the Kokopau beachfront, Buka, where trucks from mainland Bougainville destinations arrive and disembark.

Kokopau, one in Buka and one at his home-base, Siwai.

Trading as David Hirupe Discount Varieties shops, he is into general merchandise, electrical, freezer and wholesaling. His Siwai shop building which was built at a cost of K76,000 is currently on rent.

With success at his feet, David is content to see his business grow. And he plans to extend to Arawa and set up both retail and wholesale shops there.

The challenges which David face are similar to that of the other business houses in Buka and Arawa. High cost of rentals and power problems, especially at Kokopau.

Like his other counterpart business houses, his request is for PNG Power to set up in Buka so business houses could reduce their excessive petrol costs. He says this is the least that the government could do by listening to the many calls being made, not only by the business sector but also by government offices, individuals and the public at large in Arawa and Buka.

But for now, the trade stores which started from very humble beginnings, with K30 so to say, have become vibrant and sought after shopping malls for many of the men, women and children from Buka to the Atolls and onto mainland Bougainville.

Buka Court House Library

LAW Books are vital tools for judges, magistrates and lawyers for the proper application of principles of dispensation of justice.

Senior Provincial Magistrate Mr Peter Toliken made these remarks at the opening of the Buka Court House Library recently.

"Just as a hammer, saw, tape measure and other tools are to a carpenter so are the law books important to our profession.

"I stand here as the proud recipient on behalf of the Magisterial Service - as the managing partner of an important asset that will be of great help not only to us in the Courts but also to our agency partners and the small legal fraternity in Buka," Mr Toliken said.

He told the people of Bougainville and the invited guests present at the occasion that the Magistracy's Goal is to provide impartial, timely and independent decisions in an efficient and cost effective manner.

Two of the desired outcomes are for the magistrates to write judgements and deliver decisions on time and for the provision of a modern library service that will see the creation of provincial court libraries and recruitment of regional librarians.

"And I am glad to say that we have made a small but important step towards achieving those objectives.

"For us in the Magistracy the need for modern and adequately resourced library service is crucial for far too long we have been indicted by our brothers in the higher bench and the legal profession for our failure to give well reasoned judgements for our decisions.

"Our excuse for too long had been lack of adequate library facilities for proper legal research. Unfortunately, for us the tide has finally swung against us," he said.

Mr Toliken said that Magisterial Service is working towards providing every magistrate with a laptop and the necessary legal software and opening of the library was the first step towards enhancing the quality of their judicial work.

He added that while it is important to provide judicial offices with adequate legal texts and material it is equally important that they are provided with sound and well researched legal argument from the bar.

"I therefore invite our friends from both the public and private bars to use this facility so that we can achieve our common goal in dispensing justice and just results to those that come to the law for assistance.

"Magisterial Service will be managing the facilities but the service is open to all our agency partners and the private bar," he said.

Mr Toliken acknowledged the Bougainville Law and Justice Sector Working Group, AusAID through the Law and Justice Partnership and the National Law and Justice Sector Working Group for the funding of the key legal text books at the cost of K100,000.

He also thanked the Magisterial Services Librarian Mr Leslie Kolls for ensuring relevant books were procured, catalogued and set up.

Buka gets Public Solicitor's office

THE Autonomous Bougainville Region (ABG) now has a Public Solicitor's Office following its opening at the week-end. Acting ABG President and Minister for Justice and Police Hon. Ezikiel Massatt opened the facility and thanked the sector for ensuring the masses had access to legal representation.

"This office will assist the people of Bougainville who have missed out on this for the last couple of years. This new office also reinforces the sector's desire to provide service to the people," said Mr Massatt.

Public Solicitor Frazier Pitpit thanked the ABG for its commitment towards the facility and added that Bougainvilians now have an opportunity to have their matters addressed.

He said the roll out plan would extend to other provinces and the ABG is one such example, and further undertook to ensure there are circuits.

"I am happy to announce that upon the completion of this office, the officers will also be on circuit," said Mr Pitpit. AusAID's Chief of Operations Robin Scott-Chalton praised the sector for its service delivery commitment.

Ms Scott-Chalton added that the new facility aligned itself with the government's overcalling desire to have service delivery extend to the provinces. She applauded the sector for standing out in many of its activities.

Bougainville 21 Years on Since the Conflict....

But the 3rd and more disastrous is the one from which Bougainville and PNG are still recovering from and which between 15,000-20,000 people died. Bougainvilleans, agitated by a combination of factors, took the issue head on, formed an armed guerilla, the Bougainville Revolutionary Army (BRA) in September 1988 and mobilized against the mine's operation, leading in early 1990 to its closure or "mothballing" as it was referred to by Bougainville Copper Company (BCL).

What followed then is history. A war which waged for 10 years which completely wrecked and shattered the island. A war originally between the so called BRA rebels and the PNG Government Defence Force but took another terrible turn between 1990-1992, as Bougainvilleans turned against each other and brothers became bitter enemies upon the departure of the PNG Defence Force, BCL employees and non Bougainvilleans. These are the darkest days of the Bougainville conflict which has taken years to try and find a peaceful resolution to.

The path to peace has been tedious, long and winding, since it started in 1994. But with concerted efforts by the majority of peace loving people of Bougainville themselves who had grown weary and tired after living in a war zone, the national Government, Australia, New Zealand, United Kingdom and other Pacific neighbours including Solomon Island, Vanuatu, Fiji, international peace partners and donor agencies including the United Nations and its PNG based agencies, European Union, the governments of Japan and China, the Churches and NGO's, Bougainville has been able to end the combat and killings proper in 1998, to embark on a peace process brokered by New Zealand, which has progressed much and come this far and seen the establishment of an Autonomous Government in mid 2005.

The late Joseph Kabui was the first Autonomous Bougainville Government (ABG) president whose main task was to do the ground work in establishing this new entity and get it going, but upon his untimely passing, James Tanis, a new breed of young Bougainville leaders was voted in following a re-election in January this year.

A journalist's dream come to fruition

By Veronica Hatutasi

LITERALLY in the Nasioi dialect of Central Bougainville, Poonang Nava refers a particular house or transit place where migratory birds or people hideaway or take shelter in when night or bad weather finds them. It can also be a home away from home where one can wind down.

Juggling all these ideas together, former National Broadcasting Commission Journalist cum business woman, Pamela (nee Dewe) Dasiona appropriately gave her newly established guesthouse at Section 10 in Arawa the name, "Poonanang Nava Inn".

Tucked in pretty surroundings with neatly arranged flower gardens, visitors to Arawa definitely will not miss this building structure with a difference along the Section 10 road near the Bovo school which stands out from the rest of the houses in the neighbourhood.

Painted green with yellow on the sides and pretty arch-like shaped structure, this two storey building is definitely an instant eye-catcher which has been renovated and expanded. From an ordinary three bed-roomed house with plans for more renovation and expansion to cater for more guests and their relaxation needs.

Pamela and her husband Simon purchased the house from Pamela's finish pay funds in 2005 from the United Nations office in Arawa to make her dream come true.

"I thought of establishing a guest house, something different from the other guest houses around, to make a difference for the guests. The renovation started in 2007 through to 2008 and this year in January, we opened our doors to guests. During my time with the UN, I heard many complaints of rooms being too small in guest houses, so I ensured to make our rooms spacious with the three upstairs rooms fully air-conditioned and the six on the ground floor with fans. We still have a lot of work to do for improvement with plans to do a proper dining place, conference room and reception and waiting to check in room," says Pamela.

All the white goods for their fully furnished rooms costing K400,000 to date have been purchased from Brian Bell Ltd in Kokopo.

"The guest house is purely all sacrifice. No bank loans. Whatever money Simon and I have, we put it to invest in the guesthouse," says Pamela.

Poonang Nava is supporting in the peace and rehabilitation, services and development of Bougainville by employing young girls, widows and struggling single mothers and vacation practical job for students. The inn has also assisted a disadvantaged student attending the Madang Maritime College with a K15,000 school fee sponsorship.

"Youths have so much energy to offer that could be used for something worthwhile and we here would like to engage them to make them feel that they are worth. I feel contented to see them happy at work and learning and getting something. I feel that through the guesthouse, I will touch a wider spectrum of people," Pamela says.

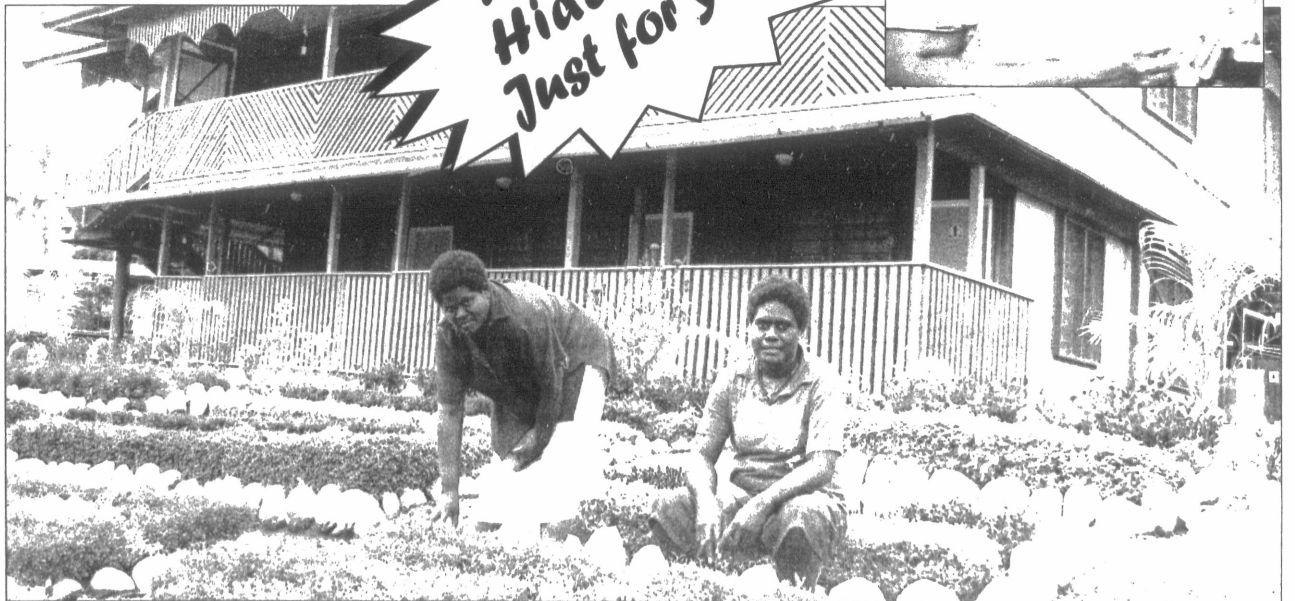

The inn has future plans to make the existing rooms self contained, erect a front deck for individuals and families to relax, a place where people can sit and enjoy either soft drinks, wine and liquor at a perfect hideaway away from the scorching heat of the sun or just enjoy the tranquility and peace which Poonang Nava Inn offers.

Businesses on ARB operate at risk ... Focus on service and employment

By Veronica Hatutasi
BUSINESSES on Bougainville are operating at huge risks despite the fragile and volatile situation coupled with nil insurance cover, with their main focus in giving services to the people of Bougainville. In its 10th year now, TKL Trading Ltd is one such businesses which could have wound up years ago, however, service delivery and giving employment to the people of Bougainville are two important factors for the company's continuity.

"It is a huge risk we are taking to operate as something could happen anytime and one could lose everything because of nil insurance cover and the law and order situation which can become unpredictable. We have thought of closing business and moving on, however, tough as it is, we feel obliged to our employees and at the interest of the people of Bougainville which keeps us going," owner Thomas Tanasu says. Because the law and order situation is unpredictable, Mr Tanasu says that businesses, including TKL, survive because of the goodwill of Bougainvilleans.

He also says "at the moment, Bougainville is a tough place to operate a business and you must be strong willed and have an appetite with risk and good community relations with a priority to give service and not to rip off people."

Popularly known by the people of Bougainville by its initials, TKL Trading, is the name which cocoa farmers, vegetable growers, subsistence and cash crop farmers, the agriculture industry and people building a new house after for its products as it is the namba wan one stop didiman and building and gardening supply shops they trust.

Opening in 1999 in Kokopau, TKL now has three outlets. The original shop in Kokopau which apart from the didiman and building and gardening tools, sells some general merchandise and sports goods, the second one in Buka town and since 2004, the Arawa shop. Mr Tanasu says that the move to Arawa was at the invitation of Chief Jonah Bianta from Kieta, Central Bougainville which he accepted no matter what because of his commitment for his people and his island home he wanted to do his bit and assist in its quest of bringing service, development and peace.

Since cocoa is the life blood of Bougainville which the people are now reviving and working hard to produce more cocoa, TKL will be around in years to come to provide the service which the people need to produce more and the best quality cocoa which Bougainville cocoa is known for and much sought after for at the international market.

Businesses in the ARB which TKL is one, are taking huge risks to operate since there is nil insurance cover and the security situation is unstable, but service delivery and giving employment to people to help rebuilt their lives is the driving force for our continuity.

TKL realises the importance of the agriculture sector, especially cocoa as the life-line for Bougainville, therefore, it will continue to provide best services suited to improve, protect and give the best and quality cocoa and other cash crop yields by farmers in the ARB.

Bougainville 21 Years on Since the Conflict....

He has prioritized peace, reconciliation and weapons disposal which during his first "100 days" as the man at the helm of the ABG office, personally visited the three regions in the Autonomous of Bougainville (ARB) to show his commitment and that he meant business to give an incentive to people to take ownership of the process for peace loving and gun free Bougainville.

Bougainville, 21 Years onAs we reflect on the coming of age of the Bougainville crisis, we take stock of the lessons learnt and where do we go from there, what positive developments have taken place, how are we to sustain the autonomy we have gained and the way forward towards a referendum for Bougainville.

To date, the general situation on the ARB is has quietened down with normality enjoyed on Buka Island, the Atolls and some areas of mainland Bougainville. People are going about their daily lives, picking up the pieces by engaging in fruitful activities which will benefit themselves, their children and families. In the villages, families are tending to their gardens as this is the main-source of food, many are working on their cocoa garden plots, replanting and rehabilitating them as well as selling wet and dry beans and doing markets while those from the small atolls sustain themselves by fishing. On the same token, the atolls including the Carterets Islanders who are the first climate change refugees in the world, as well as the Mortlocks, Tasma, Nuguria and Nissari Islands face a huge life threatening and scary problem, a challenge for the ABG to tackle.

Bougainville 21 Years on Since the Conflict....

A resettlement program has started and the first lot of Carteret Islanders are now settling on mainland Bougainville at the Catholic Church owned Tearouki Plantation in the Tinputz District.

Rising from the ashes of a devastating conflict, restoration of services and development in all facets of life has been gradual. The biggest deterrent is the presence of guns throughout Bougainville. The weapons disposal program initiated by the then United Nations Observer Mission on Bougainville in 2001 was good however, many guns are still in the hands of ex-combatants and pose a big threat, insecurity and fear among the majority of ordinary peace-loving Bougainvilleans. It is thus fitting that the ABG President, James Tanis, is making weapons disposal, peace and reconciliation his government's priority. In his first 100 days in office, he travelled the length and breadth of the island meeting with the various factions, ex-combatants, U-Vistract, leaders and communities to revive and strengthen the weapons and reconciliation processes of lasting peace, development and referendum in the region. Good governance, the presence and use of guns, law and order problems, rascalism and the current surge of drug use, marijuana to be exact, in the ARB are the major concerns and challenges which communities in the ARB and its leaders in the ABG have in their hands and must work hard at to resolve to achieve lasting peace, development and referendum.

But the onus is on all Bougainvilleans to put in a concerted effort together to attain lasting peace, development and make autonomy work and as the Minister for Higher Education, Science and Technology and member for North Bougainville, Michael Ogio summed it, "many of us elite Bougainvilleans and businessmen take a backseat and say ABG is not delivering.

We must offer alternatives in order to help it progress. We have come this far in the process to attain autonomy, but to make it work, we must cooperate and make it progress forward."

Current Developments:

The path to normality, peace, a return of services and development have been challenging but with concerted efforts of Australia, New Zealand, its other international peace and development partners, the national government and the people of Bougainville, things are moving gradually and there is a general atmosphere of peace and normality which have to be sustained.

As the leader of about 98 % of Catholic population on the island, Catholic Bishop of Bougainville, Henk Knonenberg said in terms of service delivery by the government, "the government tries but there still are a lot of problems. Guns are still around and even the police cannot do their job due to fear. Therefore, weapons disposal and attitude change is a priority."

On mainland Bougainville, government presence is minimal and even basic services such as health are in place because of the goodwill of the people who want peace, development and a better future for themselves and their children. But despite all odds, the people themselves have established small businesses to sustain their lives, and at the same time provide services to their people. It therefore is fitting to say that business houses are currently the catalysts for development and service delivery in most parts of mainland Bougainville.

Positive things are now happening in the ARB and one has been the establishment of the Panguna District toward the end of last year. The heartland of the crisis has now mellowed and the once hardliners in the conflict are now adamant in working towards lasting peace, restoration of services to their area, and reconciliation.

In the words of the ABG President James Tanis, Panguna is reunited for dialogue and peace movement. The crisis started in Panguna and I am giving it priority for Pangunites to spearhead moves to resolve it. "A weapons disposal and destruction ceremony spearheaded by James Singko took place at the Mine Tailings. Now we have a peace ministry in the ABG and on October 19th, there will be a major peace and reconciliation ceremony in Panguna," Mr Tanis said.

The Panguna District office is headed by a Central Bougainvillian who knows the workings of the government and his people Otto Noruka and his staff have a unique working relationship with the Me'ekamui in bringing normality, services, peace and reconciliation to the people in the district.

"The community has respect for the administration and staff here. We have a unique relationship and cooperation with the Me'ekamui without whose support, we would not have come this far. We are grateful for AusAID's K1.2 million support for infrastructure building and related costs. I am happy that the people's mindset is gradually changing from the state of confusion caused by fast money scheme principal, Noah Musingku and U-Vistract," says Mr Noruka from his Panguna office.

Gradual progress is happening not in the peace and reconciliation process only, but in the political and administrative arenas as well.

"We have identified the draw-down of powers to the ABG from the national government in five (5) areas including women, liquor time zone, and mining powers," says ABG President Tanis.

As it is in the Bougainville Peace Agreement, a referendum for Bougainville will be held between 10-15 years after autonomy. Bougainville has gained this in 2005 and with four years already gone, the timing is surely coming drawing nigh. So Bougainvilleans will have to work very hard to make this happen in a peaceful manner supported with good governance and the finances to make things work and move ahead.

New Dawn supports peace and development in the ARB

WHERE there is a will, there is a way surely rings true for former National Broadcasting Commission's Radio Bougainville broadcaster/journalist, Bougainvillian Aloysius Laukai.

TV, radio and newspaper industries are usually areas dominated by millionaire business men expatriates due to the high costs involved in the production machines, freight charges and the overall running of the business.

Hardly any Papua New Guineans have ventured into this arena except for the Sunday Chronicle which is owned by a national from the Southern Highlands province.

And so, it is a big challenge which strong willed persons in the likes of Aloysius has decided to go into. And he is doing it with enthusiasm, commitment and dedication.

"I saw the need for an independent media so I decided to give it a try. I got a group of ex-broadcasters from Bougainville together and came up with the idea. We then asked around for funding support and UNESCO as well as the German government came good with us," says Aloysius.

The German government assisted with the provision of equipment.

Aloysius says many who initially joined them gave up, especially when no pay was forthcoming.

"Many who helped with the initiative left when the going got tough, but I continued with my family and a few friends," says Aloysius who is laughing all the way now since receiving an international award recently from the University of Queensland's School of Journalism and Communication, despite its being on the airwaves for only a year now. The award is for outstanding contribution to the theory and practice of communication and social change through the Communication and Social Change Award which constitutes a commemorative plaque and a cash prize of A$2,500.00 (two thousand and five hundred Australian dollars). This year, New Dawn FM grabbed the top prize to beat 19 entries from Bangladesh, Burundi, Canada, Congo, New Zealand, Nigeria, Philippines, Fiji, India, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, Uganda and the USA as well as Papua New Guinea.

New Dawn FM was established with the assistance of a group of Australians who had worked in broadcasting in PNG, including Keith Jackson AM, Phil Charley OAM and Prof Martin Hadlow.

Aloysius says that the station focuses on local Bougainville content in news, music, developmental areas, autonomy and thereafter. It broadcasts 7 days a week commencing at 5am to 12 midnight. New Dawn FM is on 95.3 FM and has a staff of 13 young and vibrant broadcasters and staffers, headed by Aloysius as the Director. Currently, it transmits to Buka and north Bougainville as far as Waku-nai but it is hoped that transmission will be extended to Arawa and Buin.

New Dawn is now giving an alternative medium to the people of Bougainville as well as supporting peace, reconciliation, weapons disposal, services & development, autonomy and referendum.

Pioneer business ventures out

By Veronica Hatutasi

KOKOPAU is fast developing as the business hub of Buka and the Autonomous Region of Bougainville (ARB).

Ideally situated as the connecting point across the popular Buka passage between Buka Island and mainland Bougainville, it has been used as an access point since time unknown. But in the year 1994, Siwaian ex-school teacher cum businessman, the late Gabriel Hianu, big in built and full of humour known affectionally by most people as "Kapuha" became the pioneer to change the face of Kokopau to become the urban business and residential setting it is today. He broke new ground by establishing the first trade store, GC Hianu Trading.

Mr Hianu passed away in 2002, but his wife Katherine and her family of eight children are still holding the fort, however, they have ventured into new areas of guest housing and rented accommodation, plant hire, tavern and a newly opened kaibar. But in its heyday for about 10 years, GCHianu Trading enjoyed the monopoly of the business in retailing and wholesaling of basic foodstuff such as rice, tinned meat and fish, clothing and general merchandise goods, freezer goods, soft drinks and liquor. This was before other businesses came in about 2002/2004 and competition became the name of the game. After the passing of the founding father of Kokopau, Mr Hianu, the business survived through wife Katherine assisted by manager Thomas Karua and later, a couple of the sons. The pioneer business's venture into new areas such as guest housing is doing well with the Kokopau Beach Resort proving to be a popular transit house for guests and tourists to and from Buka onto the mainland. It also has a 5 room resort house on permanent rental for K250 per month. Mr Karua says that they have plans to improve and expand the guesthouse by adding another 5 rental rooms.

The business also rents out its workshop and wholesale building. The only problem which this pioneer trade store business encountered during the early years when the troubles were still on, is an armed hold up in mid 1996 when K15,000 was taken from the store.

Otherwise, Mr Karua says that although there are still guns in Kokopau, people don't use it for hold-ups or to intimidate others.

As is the concern of other businesses in Buka and Arawa, Mr Karua mentioned power supply as a major problem with fuel costs so high, and is joining his other colleagues in calling for PNG Power to bring its services to Kokopau.

Meanwhile, Katherine Hianu, a mother and grandmother, is now the Managing Director of GCHianu Trading who has the final say in all the affairs of the business. She travels to Rabaul, Kokopo and Lae in her business rounds. She appreciates and is thankful for Mr Karua for his prudent management and support which has helped enormously in holding the fort and venturing in to new areas. But she also wants the children not to relax, but to be responsible and take ownership of the business and help out.

She reminisced of the first years, how the place was just bush and how the family moved from Siwai and the clearing of Kokopau to make way for their trade store and residential house to be established and how for about 10 years, enjoyed prosperity and monopoly. Despite its closing of the retail and wholesale outlets, the pioneer business and founder of Kokopau is picking up business again in its guest housing, plant hire and tavern businesses and continue in assisting with the peace, services, development and autonomy.

Relationships will be Transparent: Tanis

THE Autonomous Bougainville Government will no longer accept invitations from private companies to make overseas visits, because this leads to expectations by the providers of such travel that they may receive favourable treatment of their business proposals.

"We will deal on a Government to Government basis, so that the integrity of the Autonomous Bougainville Region is not exposed to compromise," ABG President James Tanis said, noting that he had received a formal invitation from the Australian government to make a visit to that country.

"If there is a formal relationship on a transparent nation to nation basis, it can properly lead to investment proposals being considered.

"To otherwise engage in business transactions, and even the initialing of agreements overseas which commit the Autonomous Region to a deal with a private corporation, will almost certainly lead to the suspicion that private advantage, on either side, is being sought.

"New nations are not built this way," President Tanis said.

President Tanis said that the process of reconciliation to heal the wounds of the Bougainville crisis, required reconciliation with governments and peoples beyond the shores of Bougainville, as well as at home.

"We need the help of other nations, and we need to earn respect as a people with transparent values and commercial integrity, on the basis of which serious investors can approach us with confidence," the President said.

"Nations are not built by opportunists, but by committed and consenting citizens, with ownership of the democratic process, and participation in the benefits of development," President Tanis concluded.

Buka clans help construct road to jail

GROUND work on the Buka Rehabilitation Centre in Beikut has been a success with the help of the nearby communities.

Reports from the ABG government state that roads and other improvements have been carried out well by the people in Buka to clear the area, cut down bushes and trees.

More than 10 clans were cutting grass, clearing stones and rocks for the road and the fence to go up.

They have dug out most of the road and laid gravel using their bare hands.

It is believed that by the end of the year the fence would be up, the road to the prison site would be finished, a finished car park which is also in the process would also be finished.

ABG's special project officer Ephriam Eminoni has been at the helm of this project and has been working closely with the CS hierarchy. Philip Eka from the CS office has made several visits to the site and is believed to have briefed the commissioner.

Further reports confirm that a planned temporary site for prisoners to settle in was also in progress as they were becoming overcrowded in the police cells.

At the moment prisoners were kept in the police station cell blocks and it has become overcrowded sometimes; and too much for the police officers.

When the temporary site is put up, prisoners will be scheduled to help the rest of the community to fast pace the work that is currently happening.

Prisoners too are pushing for the work to happen as they need a proper place to live in.

Currently in Bougainville there are three Community Justice Centres (CJC) operating in Torokina, Wakunai and Tinputz.

In each of the CJs there is section for women, youths, sports, HIV/AIDS counselling; village courts and land mediations are happening more frequently because people now know the functions of the CJs and it's been very helpful to them.

Police women graduate ... Women play a vital role on Bougainville

EVERY woman on Bougainville will have access to a female police officer, providing advice, support and protection within her home community, as Bougainville Police numbers come up to full strength.

Although the police women now being trained and inducted into the force receive a short, concentrated period of instruction, they have full police powers to enforce law and order, and to arrest and charge law breakers.

Twenty percent of the full strength Bougainville Police will be female officers, their team leader Murray Lewis said this week.

He was speaking as the latest batch of recruits received their final period of instruction, before being posted as Community Auxiliary Police.

"It is very important that women in the community can have a female police officer to turn to for support, particularly in matters regarding home and family.

TOWARDS PEACE AND DEVELOPMENT: Women recruited to uphold the law.

"But these young police officers also have all the powers and responsibilities of general duties police.

"They will be respected and have authority within their own communities because it is from those communities that they have been nominated," Mr Lewis said.

The New Zealand aid program to Bougainville is facilitating the community policing project.

The rationale behind recruiting and retaining women in the community police auxiliary is that it will not only make female officers more accessible in the community, but will also raise the profile of women in general, provide women with a role to enforce law and order alongside male auxiliary police, and assist in providing a better response to crime and other events in the community.

To date the number of women in the CAP has risen from five percent to almost the twenty percent target, out of a total establishment of 350 auxiliaries.

Not all would-be auxiliaries make a success of their new careers as law enforcers.

Some find the work too demanding, or for other reasons fail to perform their duties to the satisfaction of their team leaders, and several have been terminated.

This unfortunate outcome has the positive benefit of making room for new recruits, and overall the scheme has proved to be an outstanding success.

The recent emphasis has been to deploy the new police men and women into areas of central and south Bougainville, where there is a demand for the services of women police in the communities.

Women CAPs have also been recruited, trained and placed in the Atolls communities.

As a measure of the commitment of the Autonomous Bougainville Government, the latest class of graduates passed out as the Hon James Tanis Recruit Wing.

President Tanis prioritises peace, reconciliation and disarmament

By Veronica Hatutasi
THE Autonomous Bougainville Government (ABG) is only four years old and despite the many challenges it faces, it is doing its best to serve its people in bringing peace, services and development.

It is a big challenge to be at the helm of leading Bougainville during the early stages when the foundations of autonomy, a new concept in PNG and the South Pacific region, is gradually being set from scratch.

But for James Tanis, a new generation breed of young Bougainville leaders, who does not believe in operating from a remote controlled office but sets his goals and visions and immediately pursues them by physically going out to the communities, seeing first hand the situation on the ground and tackling issues head on he surely is holding the fort, learning the ropes and steering the ABG ship forward with a fresh breath of insight.

In the 9 months he has been in office, since winning the ABG by election this January after the death of former ABG president, the late Joseph Kabui, much positive progress has been made, despite the challenges which people who are familiar with issues on Bougainville know too well of.

Mr Tanis, is a positive person, one who is not deterred and takes in criticisms as guide and balancing factor in his work and life.

"ABG is only 4 years old, but it is doing its best in such a short time, comparing it with the 34 year old government (of PNG). There is progress on Bougainville, and I can confidently say that we have done very well with meager (financial and manpower) resources compared also with the global conflict zones and the super-powers. When you look at nations, example, Africa, still struggling, Bougainvilleans must be proud of our achievements towards peace and autonomy. We have shown them that we are capable," Mr Tanis says.

Because of the short time that he will be in office till next year April when the elections proper for a new president is due, immediate priorities Mr Tanis is concentrating on are peace building and mending relationships, disarmament and weapons disposal.

"I never promised to build and maintain all the roads on Bougainville. I will rebuild and restore relationship and I am satisfied that in the last 9 months, I have built bridges to restore the damaged relationships which areas that matter most.

"The challenge is for all groups and stakeholders (in the peace process) to manage what I have set. It is also timely that (aggrieved and enmities) parties must now work to resolve issues.

"The president has no pre conceived plans to sort out all the issues, but I provide the leadership through the ABG and the national government," says Mr Tanis.

Challenges currently at hand include, one, Buin, which is for the factions on the ground, Panguna, for the landowners, BCL/CRA and the government (national and ABG) and the Mekamul faction in south Bougainville. But at the same time, I cannot overlook nor sideline the recent killings in Buka and Buin and the law and order situation on the ground," says Mr Tanis.

On the occasion of the 21 years Bougainville has reached since the outbreak of the conflict and the path it has followed towards peace, normality and a political solution, this is what Mr Tanis says.

"The 4 years since the ABG has been established which takes in the 9 months I have been in office, are all part of the bigger picture which is the 21 years of Bougainville's struggle to solve its original grievances and aspirations and for peace on the island," says Mr Tanis.

He breaks Bougainville's quest for peace and political freedom into three parts. The first being the decade of fighting between the state and the people of Bougainville which saw the destruction to property and lives and the attempt to restore peace.

The next being the decade of negotiations, reconciliation and weapons disposal, and the last and current stage being the leading up to the election and the establishment of the ABG.

His pursuit for lasting peace and a weapons free Bougainville has seen another positive milestone with the newly established Peace ministry within the ABG, headed by Robert Hamal Sawa. "The success of the re-establishment of the peace ministry and dialogue between Bougainvilleans are positives and we must accept the fact that we have more positive stories which outweighs all the others," says Mr Tanis.

On the drawing down of powers, Mr Tanis says that though the national government has not yet made any formal announcement on it, "the draw-down of certain powers have been identified, including women, liquor, time zone and the mining powers which is in progress," Mr Tanis says.

He says that Panguna is re-united for dialogue and things have improved.

In the next week therefore, several reconciliations will be held in Panguna with the first one happening next week Monday, October 19th.

Mr Tanis says that Panguna is setting a good precedence in proceeding with the reconciliations as the Bougainville conflict started there and it is only fitting that they initiate moves to resolve it for other areas on Bougainville to follow suite.

The main reason why Mr Tanis' priority is for peace and reconciliation to happen first is that lasting peace, development and progress in autonomy cannot happen nor proceed without peace and a weapons free Bougainville.

Unique cooperation between Me'ekamui and public servants moves Panguna

Veronica Hatutasi

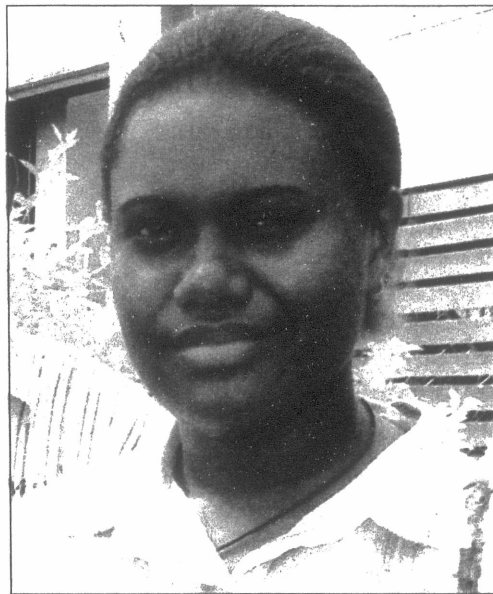

THE longing for peace, freedom, normality and harmonious relationship as well as receiving the basic services to make these yearnings realities, are universal.

So it is by no surprise that the people of Panguna, Central Bougainville, which is the very heartland of the Bougainville crisis are working hard to achieve, support and maintain the fragile peace process in the newly formed Panguna District.

This reporter was fortunate recently to hop on a K10 per way PMV 15 seater bus named, "The Last Beggar," up to Panguna to visit the Panguna District office, its manager and staff and get stories of the progress of their work.

By the way, the main highway road is in good condition after 21 years of nil maintenance however, in some parts, the sealed areas are beginning to erode away. But in general, it is heartening to see that from Arawa all the way to Panguna and the Jaba River, the sides of the main highway are kept clean from any tress, grass and shrub growth, unlike many of the other areas where normality has returned much earlier.

The newly declared Panguna District office is now occupying one of the former Bougainville Copper Company (BCL) Karoona single quarters building at Karoona. The three story building has been renovated with a K1.3 million funding from AusAID and so far, things are moving in the right direction.

COMMITTED TO SERVE: Dolores Roka, a Panguna District staffer is a young woman from the area committed to serving her people towards lasting peace and better basic services.

Renovation work is continuing with the 1st floor being occupied by the Panguna Health Centre, the District Manager's offices plus the Health, Education, DPI, Community Development, Technical Services, Information/Peace & Reconciliation and Local Level Government (LLG) offices on the 2nd floor and the single staff quarters on the 3rd floor.

Panguna District Manager, Otto Noruka, is from Central Bougainville and has his people at heart. He is working with commitment and dedication to deliver the much needed services to his people in the district, which they have missed out on in the last 21 years.

"The community have respect for the administration and staff here. We have a very unique relationship and cooperation with the Me'ekamui without whose support, we would not have come this far. The Me'ekamui government of Unity and Me'ekamui Defence Force are working in unity and consultation with us, so we are moving positively. We are grateful for AusAID's K1.2 million support for infrastructure building and related costs. I am happy that the people's mindset is gradually changing from the state of confusion caused by scam fast money scheme principal, Noah Musingku and U-Vistract," says Mr Noruka from his Panguna office.

He says that good governance and the establishment of good community relations is important and that is why it is crucial to see the women, youth and sports as well as the council of chiefs' offices off the ground.

Mr Noruka says that they are negotiating for more funds with donors to slot in a womens resource centre, law & justice, and police.

With a team of young generation, qualified, local and energetic staff, Mr Noruka is adamant that they will bring positive development and services. However, one of the challenges which he and his team will work around to, include, high expectations from the people to deliver. And as the District manager, he is trying to explain to his people the "lip service promised to the people". He also says that his vision is for the new district to become a training ground for new workers and hopefully, one of the young men will take over.

The newly renovated three story office building is surely towering high and majestic amongst the rubbles of the Karoona/Panguna area and Mr Noruka says that the official opening of the building will be in December.

Laying down the guns

THE surrender of weapons has been likened to the disarming of the soul.

"There cannot be peace while we live under the shadow of the gun.

"Likewise, we cannot ask God to bring us peace while we have blood on our hands."

These are the messages being carried into areas of Bougainville that have known war, and do not yet enjoy complete peace.

The messenger is a man who has known both conflict and reconciliation, and who is now tasked by President James Tanis with bringing the process of cleansing and forgiveness to those remaining areas of the once-troubled Region where peace is not yet fully restored.

Dennis Kuiai is a veteran of the conflict on Bougainville, now acting in the new Autonomous Government as CEO of the Division of Peace, Reconciliation and Weapons Disposal.

Like his President he is modest about the past, when facing the challenges of Bougainville's future, but like most men and women who serve the Autonomous Bougainville Government today, either as elected Members or as appointed public servants, he has belief in process, confidence that lasting peace can be achieved by following steps of cleansing and reconciliation that exist within the traditions of Bougainville society.

"We believe that all Bougainvilleans have a common cause, which is a free and peaceful society heading toward a referendum on independence."

"But during the crisis, and in the years since, we may have lost our way, as people took different approaches, or sought opportunities for themselves.

"The challenge is to reconcile not just the conflicts that have occurred in the past, but also the views on our best way forward."

It is not unique to Bougainville that the rule of law has in many places been taken over by the rule of the gun.

DISARMAMENT & WEAPONS DISPOSAL: Dennis Kuiai visits a cocoa garden near Torokina with US Embassy acting Ambassador Paul Berg, to see a WW2 bomb unearthed by village people. Several people have died in the area from explosions in unmarked ammunition dumps, which have also been the source of many illegal weapons dug up during the Bougainville crisis.

But in a post-conflict era, peace and guns do not lie easily together, and the weapons of all kinds that are still held in the wrong hands must be surrendered, destroyed or contained, the Tanis government believes.

"This is a process that belongs to everyone, and we are seeking to empower the chiefs and the women and other elements of traditional authority so that there is no longer just the power of the gun.

"This means bringing together faith-based and civil-based organisations and all elements of the government, so that all people can see where we are going."

The approach is practical, and measured.

North Bougainville is seen as being in a process of reconstruction.

Central and South Bougainville are still going through stages of reconciliation, and restoration of faith in the government, and the rule of law.

"The conflict started at Panguna, and we believe it can be ended there, and that is why during this month there will be cleansing and reconciliation ceremonies in that area.

"Elsewhere we have identified five impact areas where we can expect weapons to be surrendered, and conflicts resolved.

"These are key areas, with key people setting an example that should be followed throughout the region, including areas where ongoing conflicts have nothing to do with independence, but are being fought over with guns.

"Central to the process of Bougainville development is the peace process.

"While it is government policy to create opportunities for people to find employment and income from agricultural rehabilitation and mining, there is no more important issue than peace, and weapons disposal."

The focus of Mr Kuiai's efforts is now in Central and South Bougainville, where the reconciliation process should be followed by a return to Arawa as the seat of Government, as further evidence of a return to normalcy.

"Buka has been the crisis capital.

"As long as Government remains in Buka, there is still a crisis.

"I believe that we are making progress, and we wish to be seen as making progress," Mr Kuiai said.

Central Bougainville Catholic Youth Ministry unites youths

By Veronica Hatutasi

CHURCHES on Bougainville are a part and partial to the development process of the island and its people even prior to the establishment of the government there.

Therefore, the three established churches including the Catholic, United and the Seventh Day Adventist, have played a vital but low key role in the peace and reconciliation process of Bougainville.

The churches see reconciliation and rehabilitation as vital areas which must be addressed and they do so by prioritizing them in their programs geared to young people and adults traumatized by the Bougainville conflict.

The Catholic Church which has membership of about ¾ of the population on the island runs a rehabilitation centre for youths and a Family Life centre with networks in its parishes throughout the island which is greatly helping the people recover and continue on a normal life.

The Catholic Youth Ministry

in Central Bougainville was initiated by Bishop Bernard Unabali in Arawa in 2003. But between 2003-2004, the Austrian NGO Organisation, HORIZONT3000, supported the work with funding from the Catholic Children's Movement Austria and, with an assignment of a volunteering advisor, Harry Rettner. A re-structuring process was started and by 2006, organized youth work in Central-Bougainville was established. In 2007 a new advisor, Dete Siegert, started to work with the Youth Leader Team. Currently the work of the Youth Office focuses on improving the standard of youth work.

Since April last year a very strong committed youth leader, Ms. Barbara Kova was assigned from the Diocese of Bougainville as the new Youth Co-ordinator for Central-Bougainville. This youth program intends to contribute to the Integral Human Development of youth in Central Bougainville in order to help young women and men of this area to become valuable members of their communities; this will also help to strengthen the peace process.

It is important to implant in young people values and attitudes of self respect, balanced and organised living. Also to give young people skills to attain and express these values and attitudes so that they will be able live balanced and organised and that they will be able to foster positive development of their communities.

The Central-Bougainville

Youth Association is divided in seven parishes under the leadership of Parish Youth Co-ordinators. The parish structure contains Mass centers or Sub-parishes, Basic Christian Communities (BKK) and Liklik Kristen Komyunitis (LKK's).

With the invitation from the Panguna community, the Panguna Peace Youth Meeting was held for four days in May last year. This was the first time, where hundreds of youth from Central-Bougainville were allowed to enter the NoGo-Zone. Me'ekamui Vice-President Phillip Takaung, Panguna Administration with Patrick Oansi and Patrick Ita, the Hon. Member of ABG IRO-Constituency Dr. Benedict Pisi, Bishop Bernard Unabali, all parish-priests and other guests took part in this event who was chaired by the Panguna Sub-Parish Secretary Michael Gorotoa. All the youth delegation was lead by the Parish Youth Co-ordinators. The result of the meeting reflects the "solidarity among the young in Central-Bougainville".

Naiaga opens cash and carry outlet in Arawa

By Veronica Hatutasi

THE reality on Bougainville these days is that people are getting some sort of basic services through the various business houses on the island.

Trade stores, selling of cocoa beans and copra, PMVs, selling of garden produce, fish and other marine products, scrap metal and extracting alluvial gold and selling are the major areas which the people of Bougainville are able to go into to make money to access and obtain much needed services.

Buka-based with branches in Hutjena, Kokopau and Arawa, Naiaga Trading is one of the trade store business doing well for itself, with the latest addition of a cash&carry outlet in Arawa.

"Our priority is to bring services and also give employment to the people of Bougainville. Rehabilitation is another area we are assisting in, especially women, traumatized youths as a result of the crisis by engaging them in something useful to take their minds out of troubles. In this light, we support youths by supplying sporting gear to groups who approach us. We are the major sponsors of the Black Orchid rugby union championships which was held last year November in Buka, and which will be on this year. We also employ a couple of disabled people in our establishments, something we will continue to do," says Elizabeth Parum, a strong willed mother and now a business woman whose determination started the Naiaga trade store business in the late 1990s.

Naiaga is a vibrant flourishing business today, but it started from a humble beginning from the house where Elizabeth used to sell basic foodstuff, moving into a small rented room but by 2000, the business had grown with the inclusion of warehousing, wholesale & retailing of general merchandise. It now has outlets in Buka, Kokopau and Arawa, with plans to expand to Buin next year.

But to get the business started and get it going, it was a struggle for Elizabeth who started and nurtured what she calls her baby with sacrifice, sheer determination and hardwork.

"I joined the Bougainville Womens Business Association, attended workshops but to get further assistance to get my small business going was not forthcoming, though at that time, there was fund from AusAID to help women in such project. But I persevered and I am happy to see the fruits of my hardwork today," says Elizabeth as she and her husband Joe work in putting the final touches to their cash & carry outlet which recently opened its door in Arawa to serve the people in central and south Bougainville.

With big guns into trade store and warehousing businesses such as Jomik, Noomo, Likui, Tarliz and others and now, Nagaia joining in at Arawa, it (Arawa) is gradually becoming a halfway house for shoppers and small businesses and people of south and central Bougainville who have to travel long distances (about 9 hours for Buin and Siwai people) and pay high transport costs (K200 return trip) to and back from Buka.

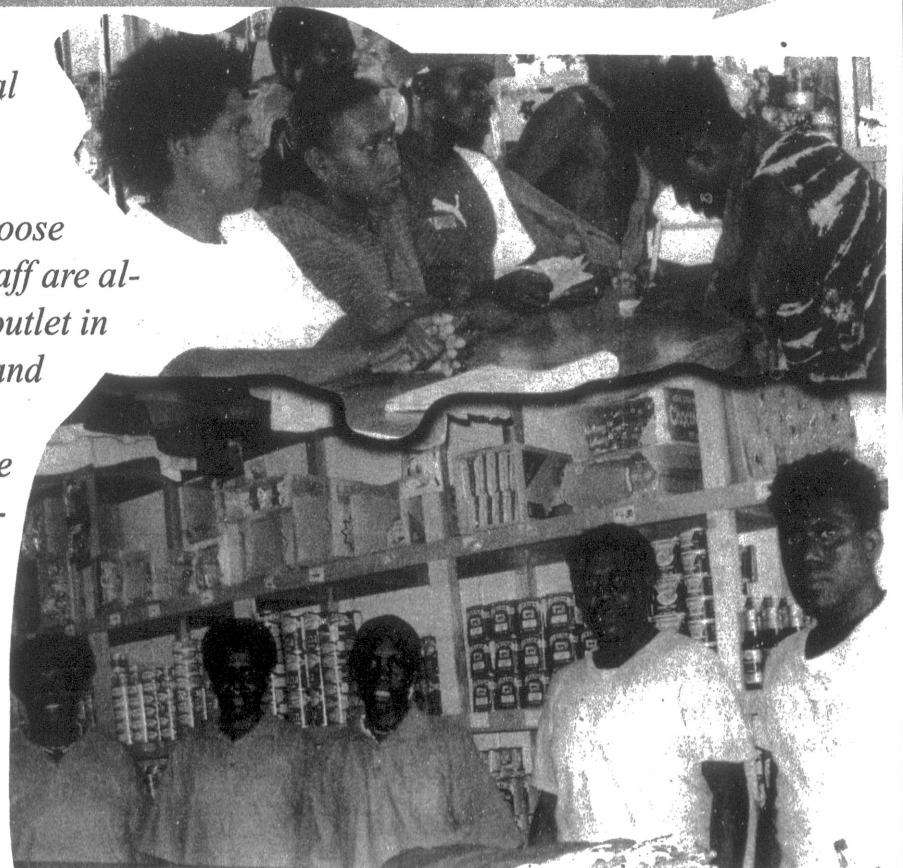

"We look at supporting women, church groups and the disadvantaged. We work according to the situation on the ground and act according to it," says Elizabeth.

It is all a Family Affair at Jomik

By Veronica Hatutasi

THIRTEEN years on since establishing itself on Buka Island in 1996, Jomik Trading Ltd has grown in a big way and is one of the most successful business stories on Bougainville.

From its humble beginnings in Siwai, Southwest Bougainville where it was mainly operating a small canteen with basic foodstuff and household items, Jomik Trading has expanded into a flourishing business venturing into retailing, wholesaling, warehousing, general merchandise of rice, tinned fish & meat, soft drinks & liquor and clothing. It is into freezer goods & Plant Hire, involved in major roadwork construction and maintenance on the major trunk road from South Bougainville through Central and Buka Highway. It is also the major agent and distributor on the Autonomous Region of Bougainville (ARB) for Trukai Industries, Hugo Canning, producers and makers of PNG's favourite tinned meat-Ox& Palm corned beef, SP Brewery beer, liquor and soft drink guns in PNG, Coca Cola Amatil Ltd.

Jomik Trading Ltd is a family business, run and owned by directors, Michael & Josephine Huuma and their children, from their base in Buka. Their fully stocked wholesale, warehouse and retail shops are in Buka, Kokopau and Arawa.

Wife and Assistant Managing Director of the company, Josephine Huuma, said the sudden unexpected success and expansion of the business was a surprise to the family which she attributed to God and good sound family management and support.

"For every successful man, there is a woman and in our case, I have been at the back of Michael in giving support and being a good guardian of the financial and banking side. As owners, the family has put in a lot of sacrifice and sheer hard work to see the business grow and expand to where it is today," Josephine says.

With 120 workers in all its branches & outlets, Jomik is definitely serving its people by giving employment opportunities to young people and adults alike.

"Our main focus is giving service to the people in the absence of government services, particularly into mainland Bougainville," says Josephine.

Despite its success, Jomik Trading as well as other business houses in Buka and Arawa pay huge bills to landowners, therefore, one of their main request is to the government to free up land so that business houses could set themselves up. Jomik Trading pays up to K10,000 per month in rentals alone to traditional landowners for the land where its shops and warehouses are built.

"The problem now is that there is no vacant land or where there is land, it is locked up and we want the government, through its relevant arm to do something in freeing up land for business to apply and set themselves up," says Josephine.

It is all a family affair at Jomik where parents Michael and Josephine are the directors, first born son looks after the account, Rodney the 2nd born son manages the Kokopau operations, another of the sons manages the Plant Hire while daughter Irene, a graduate from Lae Technical College in Business and Accounting is the office manageress and Administrator. The family and children are the sole shareholders of the company. Josephine says the company's future plan is to expand even more into Buin, depending on the shipping services.

Telikom VSAT installation such as this will be made on Bougainville

Bougainville up with next generation communications technology

A HUGE roll out of communications technology is underway in the Autonomous Bougainville Region of Bougainville (ARB).

Telikom in co-operation with the ARB and the New Zealand restoration aid program, is erecting 19 VSAT communication links across the length and breadth of Bougainville and its surrounding islands.

At the same time, next-generation Wireless telephones will be operational when Telikom launches its Fixed Wireless service based at Buka.

Shortly after this, Fixed Wireless will be available at Arawa.

Two containers of Telikom technical equipment are currently on the wharf at Kieta, containing all the components necessary to construct a new transmission site towering over Pok Pok Island in Kieta Harbour, giving line of site access into Arawa.

This tower, constructed by Telikom with Treasury funding, will support a Bmobile service into Kieta and Arawa, with CDMA Wireless to follow.

Telikom is also providing a High Frequency radio telephone link into the Carteret Islands and Tasman Island, to further enhance communications for outlying populations.

Not only is there a healthy trade in cocoa, copra and other valuable commodities throughout the Bougainville region at this time, but the cruel winds of climate change are posing challenges to island communities and emergency services, all of whom will be greatly dependent on the new Telikom links.

The new Telikom VSAT terminals will be installed to serve remote population centres across the Region.

It is believed that this will stimulate socio-economic development and improve the efficiency of service delivery to people isolated by distance and poor transport infrastructure.

The Autonomous Bougainville Government says improved telecommunication is a top priority, and that Telikom's VSAT system is the best choice to deliver immediate outcomes.

ABG Minister for Public Service, Communications Media and Culture, Robert Sawa came to Port Moresby to sign a contract with Telikom's Peter Loko for the installation of the fourteen terminals and associated telephone and internet services, which is supported by funding from New Zealand.

Mr Sawa said Bougainville suffers from an unreliable communications network and the installation of the VSAT system is expected to improve communications and make a positive contribution to economic activity and social life, particularly for people in the remoter parts of the Region.

"Large numbers of our people live rural areas, and to make a trip to town just to talk to relatives outside the Region is very expensive and time consuming.

"An efficient Telikom communication system at the people's door step is ideally the way to go, and as well as stimulating economic and social development, we believe VSAT will help create a well informed community with knowledge of issues and developments around them," Mr Sawa said.

Mr Sawa acknowledged the New Zealand government for its contribution and Telikom PNG for its assistance in the installation of the VSAT systems.

Signing the contract agreement, Telikom CEO Peter Loko said placing VSAT terminals into remote locations was expensive and technically challenging, but was seen as a partnership, with Telikom staff willing to go into distant places and give of their best, to provide vital telecommunication services to the people.

Telikom VSAT provides a small but powerful satellite terminal, powered by solar energy in the many places not in reach of rural electrification, making possible direct communication to the Telikom hub at Boroko.

Hanging off the smaller terminal can be six to twelve telephone lines, including public phones, district office and health centre phones, and perhaps an internet access link for school children.

Larger VSAT broadband installations can support a larger number of lines, and even a bmobile phone tower, if population numbers justify the installation.

In many cases, Telikom does not anticipate making sufficient revenue to justify the capital cost of installation, but invokes its Community Service Obligation, to serve the people.

ABG President James Tanis welcomed the telecommunications revolution, and said that a key benefit was the flow of information." Every Bougainville citizen must be in receipt of the information necessary for meaningful participation in the development of our Region, and our people," the President said.

Buka village court first to get evaluation and training

The Autonomous Region of Bougainville (ARB) was the first province to run Village Court evaluation and training programs under the 2009 planned activities for Village Courts Secretariat (VCS).

The VCS has undertaken to evaluate the impacts of the resource support provided to the village courts nationwide.

On top of this VCS planned to roll out training programs for provincial village court officers (PVCOs), district village court officers (DVCOs), LLG officers.

ARB was visited under this arrangement by Bruce Didimas of VCS and Ware Aulakua of LJSS recently.

Interviews, questionnaires and analysis were collected from all concerned offices in Buka for evaluation.

Some issues that were outlined during the evaluation were;

Discrepancies within the provincial administration, the PVCOs, the DVCOs the COE was cause for concern for the benefit of efficiency of the village courts operation in the region. Delay in monthly allowance, lack of proper coordination and communication, logistics, uncertainty in the level of funding to village courts were due to the 'one basket policy' maintained by the ABG etc were examples.

There was need for continued efforts by the regional authority/government to take ownership of LJS Partnership resource support provided to provincial law and justice agencies/offices through the VCS.

More support required, in terms of logistics (transport - vehicles and boats) and facilities (buildings) to house village court operating on both small Buka and mainland Bougainville.

Analyses and reporting of the data collected will occur upon completion of the provincial evaluation visits in the remaining 13 nominated provinces between August-October 2009.

Conflict-free mining is thoughtfully targeted

TRANSITIONAL arrangements are likely to be in place to facilitate the possible return to mineral exploration and mining on Bougainville, before the drawdown of mining powers takes place under the Peace Agreement.

The World Bank has committed almost K6 million to achieve what it describes as strengthening the foundations for a conflict-free mining sector in the Autonomous region.

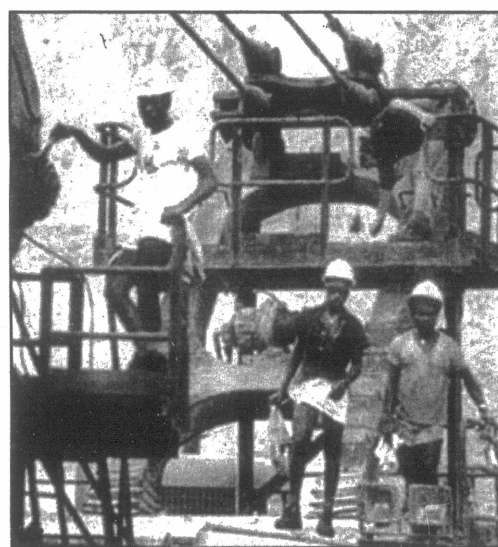

The ABG has recently established its own Department of Mining, which has a small number of staff and limited equipment and facilities.

The World Bank has committed the funds at the request of the ABG to build the capacity to manage the re-establishment of exploration and mining activities on Bougainville.

Building staff capacity

The principal target of the funding is ABG's future DoM staff, who will be supported to establish the organizational framework for the department and implement an effective policy and regulatory environment for mineral exploration and development in Bougainville, a World Bank document says.

Transitional arrangements will facilitate granting of exploration and mining licenses for Bougainville until mining powers are transferred to ABG, a Bougainville Sustainable Mining Policy, operation of a functioning

MINE WORKERS: Big shovel in mining situation

ABG Department of Mining, a Bougainville Mining Act, a Bougainville Mining Safety Act and enabling regulations, hiring of professional staff for the ABG Mining Department, twinning of ABG Mining Department staff into MRA and the PNG Mines Department, or other appropriate organizations, and the development of small-scale mining support services and outreach on Bougainville, the Bank says.

Respect for the risks

Mine related issues, particularly those at Panguna, are seen as central to the conflict that grew into the Bougainville Crisis, and the World Bank document pays respect to the risks as well as the potential benefits of promoting a return to both large-scale and small-scale artisanal mining.

"The possible re-establishment of mining activities in Bougainville will have critics and has the potential to re-ignite conflict in some areas if not managed appropriately. "The Project will include development of a communications and information program to ensure that all stakeholders are informed of the Project objectives and activities, particularly in Bougainville," the World Bank document says.

"All extractive industry locations in Papua New Guinea are subject to occasional conflict, often over benefits sharing.

"The focus on improving local governance and accountability is expected to help mitigate this risk.

"The Project will support training for local stakeholders in conflict resolution."

The World Bank, with more than K100 million to spend in several areas of support for mining throughout Papua New Guinea says it is including Bougainville in response to an invitation from the ABG to strengthen mining management capacity.

Mining opportunities identified

The document points out that there are both benefits and risks involved in the re-introduction of mineral exploration and development in the Autonomous Region.

The opportunities relate to the benefits of mining which typically consist of direct and indirect large-scale and small-scale mining employment, mining-related financial transfers, and improved access to employment opportunities and services including in particular health and education services.

The risks include environmental disturbance, loss of land for subsistence agriculture, and possible cultural harm.

A gender bias exists whereby the bulk of the benefits accrue to men whereas the bulk of the risks fall upon women and children.

All of these benefit and risk issues need to be discussed and made known to all stakeholders, the World Bank says.

"With the Bougainville Peace Accord and the establishment of the Autonomous Government of Bougainville, Bougainville could again become a prime destination for mineral exploration," the Bank concludes.

PFM a pioneer of peace and reconciliation on Bougainville

The acronym PEACE stand for People and Community Empowerment, achieved through Conflict resolution, restorative justice and win-win mediation using PNG Custom and Tradition. Bougainville has been one area that has strong chieftain system. In 1994, Peace Foundation Melanesia (PFM) went into Bougainville and assisted in providing Conflict Resolution training, to more than 8,000 people. PFM has had a major impact on the peace activities, reconciliation and the ongoing settlements of conflicts by using mediation and restorative justice skills.

Every village was encouraged to establish its own Peace and Good Order Committee to administer community justice through mediation and restorative justice under the auspices of the Chiefs, village police and village courts.

The importance of a strong Justice System in any society cannot be understated. The Justice System is made up of the Police, the courts and Correctional Services and central to its strength is the support of the community and community that is familiar with the role of each. All these areas must be strong and stable if law and order within society is to be maintained.

Peace Foundation Melanesia has a vision to be a strong and dynamic organisation promoting the use of mediation and restorative justice using Melanesian custom law, with a mission to provide people and community empowerment through the establishment of sustainable community justice initiatives that uses win-win mediation and restorative justice to repair community relationships and minimise law and order issues. For meaningful economic and social development to take place there must be peace in the community, the district and the province.

During the crisis in Bougainville, many Police were disliked. People had become frightened of some of the Police methods. The Police Stations in Buka and Arawa were burnt and damaged.

Citizens of Bougainville were without Police, Courts and Prisons for many years. Traditional methods of law and order in villages took the place of the government system. Chiefs were responsible and in most places still are. It was important that when the Police, Courts and Prison systems returned to Bougainville traditional systems were respected. The authority of the Chiefs was respected. Police too know how the traditional system works.

Traditional leaders must learn how the Police and court system works. When a person commits a crime he or she must first be reconciled in their community with the victim and the community. This must happen before the Police arrest an offender. For serious offences such as murder and rape – restorative justice must be used. The offender must be allowed to say sorry to the victim. The families of the offender and the victim must reach agreement on how to heal the broken relationship. Reconciliation must be agreed and as part of this process the offender is handed over to the Police.

This is the Melanesian way working with the Government system. The Government system must understand this. This is the way it must be.

Peace Foundation Melanesia has a training package that includes People Skills, Win-win Mediation and Restorative Justice which aims at empowering village and settlement people with Community Justice Skills to improve the quality of life in their communities.

Our participants are mostly village or community leaders – village chiefs, church leaders, councilors, magistrates, village constables, women's groups, youth groups, sports groups etc. All participants should have a group to go back to. In each course we take thirty (30) people. There should be gender balance (50% male and female) and a mixture of participants in terms of age, religious affiliation and position within the village or organizations. Age is not a problem nor is education. People of sixty or seventy are important to the group just as youths of 19 and 20 are. People who can neither read nor write are encouraged and are able to gain just as much at their own level from the course as people with a university degree. All the people who complete the ten days (two weeks) of training are provided with a certificate.

The overall process is conducted in three major phases and involves a community entry process, the conduct of the community justice course, followed by monitoring and mentoring to ensure desired outcomes are achieved in areas where there are trained trainers to impart the skills. However, where the designated area does not have trained personal for the conduct of the courses, a training of trainers (TOT) course is conducted. The diversity in tradition and culture amongst different tribes and communities makes it mandatory to have trainers who could reflect on practical aspects of their own peoples as well as role playing during the conduct of the community justices' courses.

The outcomes of our interventions are varied, and include respect for the rule of law, understanding of human rights, participate in political activities, changed attitude and behaviour, understanding gender issues and equal participation, and the ability to resolve conflicts through win-win mediation. The communities are encouraged to form voluntary community justice committees to resolve whatever broken relations amongst persons or groups so the possibility of escalation is minimised before any formal state systems intervene. The operations of the community justice committees are normally checked and where possible assisted through the monitoring and mentoring phase of the projects.

Bougainville had gone through a long period of instability that saw a total break down in law and order. The formal justice system as we know it, collapsed. Through the work of the community and those involved in the Peace Process law and order was returned to Bougainville and the justice system was reestablished.

Traditional Justice Systems also play an important and respected role in the maintenance of law and order at the village level. The formal systems, police, courts and correctional services must also work closely with the traditional systems for these to remain effective and important part of maintaining a peaceful society.

Peace Foundation Melanesia was awarded the "2003 Peace Prize" by the Asia Pacific Mediation Forum (APMF) in 2003.

Meanwhile, Peace Foundation Melanesia Inc in 2004 signed an MOU with the Community Justice Liaison Unit of the Law & Justice Sector Program aimed at delivering an awareness package on the roles and responsibilities of the Police, the Courts and Correctional Services as all three formal sector agencies at that time were in the process of being reintroduced throughout Bougainville.

This awareness package also defined the important role that Peace & Good Order Committees play in the Law and Justice sector. It was pleasing to the PFM Board of Trustees, the Management and the Trainers that all of their hard work over the years was formally recognized and that the people themselves had a part to play in reducing and controlling law and order problems.

Bougainville President welcomes first visit in twenty years by BCL

BCL REP VISITS BOUGAINVILLE: ABG President James Tanis welcomes senior BCL representative in PNG, Paul Coleman to Bougainville.

PRESIDENT of the Autonomous Bougainville Region (ARB), James Tanis said that the visit to Buka by the PNG representative of Bougainville Copper Limited, Paul Coleman, was welcome and timely.

"Mr Coleman has come to the Autonomous Bougainville Region at my invitation, for talks which have been awaited for some time, and which should be beneficial to all stakeholders.

"There are many issues to discuss, which do not include the resumption of mining, and BCL's first visit to Bougainville after almost twenty years indicates a willingness to talk these issues over in an open and friendly fashion.

"It may also give Mr Coleman another opportunity to meet with some of the people of Bougainville, and hear from them the issues that are of most interest to them," President Tanis said.

The BCL representative travelled to Buka last week and stayed for two days of talks with members of the Autonomous Bougainville Government and other interested parties.

Referring to the previous period of disputation, President Tanis said:

"The conflict must end where it started, at Panguna. It arose out of disputes between landowners, members of the North Solomons Provincial Government, the Government of PNG, and BCL and CRA.

"Therefore it is these stakeholders who need to be assisted to come together to end the Panguna conflict.

"As President, my role is to ensure that these parties come together to solve the problem once and for all," President Tanis said.

Mr Coleman said he was very pleased to be on Bougainville at the invitation of President Tanis, and the people of the Autonomous Region.

"Bougainville Copper Limited has had a long standing relationship with the people of Bougainville, and although it has been twenty years since we have been here officially, it is well known that BCL has always had an open door and a friendly welcome to anyone from Bougainville who has wanted to talk to us about is-issues of mutual interest.

"The Bougainville Copper Foundation has also helped to keep us in touch, through the programs of education and other assistance which have been maintained at all times since the crisis.

"BCL has a natural interest in viewing the state of its assets in the Region, and hearing from the people first hand, on the matters that concern them.

"There are many things to discuss, and it is very pleasing to be making a start on these talks, here in the Autonomous Bougainville Region, among the people.

"I thank President Tanis for having the vision and the concern for his people to initiate this meeting," Mr Coleman said.

Agmark assisting Bougainville farmers

By Veronica Hatutasi

AGMARK 'S name is connected with cocoa in the New Guinea Islands region was on Bougainville during the pre-crisis period, however, it left the island when the situation worsened in 1990.

But it returned again in 1994 and now, it is one of the major cocoa buyers and exporters on Bougainville.

The Agmark office in Kokopau, Buka with 30 plus workers is headed by a female Bougainvillean from the Tinputz area, Administrative Manageress, Claire Toboen.

Ms Toboen joined Agmark in 1998 after working at the Westpac Bank and Rabaul Battery Service in the East New Britain province. She won the top position she now holds for the Bougainville office since 2000.

The company has three sections at the Bougainville operations and this include hardware where building materials, chemicals and pesticides are sold, shipping and cocoa buying and exporting.

"My male colleagues give me a lot of support and we cooperate well. Yes, there are a lot of challenges, but there is always a way to handle them, For some reason, I have survived. With three division which I oversee, I find that this is what makes the job interesting. The challenges have made me a stronger person. There is nothing better than being on Bougainville," says Claire.

She says that since 1994 when the company returned to Bougainville, cocoa has picked up.

"During the cocoa flush season from May to June, the Agmark cocoa shed takes in 1,5000 bags of dried cocoa beans per day," says Claire.

She says that coca is coming good from most areas on the mainland with Tinputz being the heartland of cocoa. In Siwai only, the condition of the soil is not too good, Claire says. She says that many people are starting up small businesses from cocoa money, thus cocoa is here to stay on Bougainville, and so will Agmark to protect it and support farmers to get the best quality yields Claire says that Agmark on Bougainville has future plans to extend its services into Arawa and assist the people and farmers there. There also is a plan to purchase a vessel for Buka to serve the rural areas of northwest Bougainville not linked by road, says Claire..

Agmark is also assisting Bougainville farmers by setting up central nurseries for hybrid cocoa which will produce more, something which will be introduced and taught to farmers.

With the detection of the recent cocoa pod boarer on Bougainville, Agmark will definitely assist in combating the dreaded disease which could cripple the cocoa industry on an island which is the top cocoa producing spot in PNG.

Likui... the business with new vision and innovation ... Promoting local products

By Veronica Hatutasi

IF the Bougainville crisis has produced some positivity to the people on the island, look no further than Likui Trading for the proof. It has made the business innovative, resourceful, productive and self reliant which is now bearing fruit in producing, manufacturing, packaging and selling its own home made whole chicken, chicken pieces packed as "Swit Kai" similar to the popular Kwik Kai sold in supermarkets in PNG, pork meat and home grown rice with the brand name, Likui Farm Product packed and labeled on 10 kg bags. This is all done at the Likui Upana Farm in Siwai and the goods taken to their Arawa and Buka shops for sale. Apart from the poultry, piggery and rice farm, there is carpentry and saw milling done at the farm site at Upana.

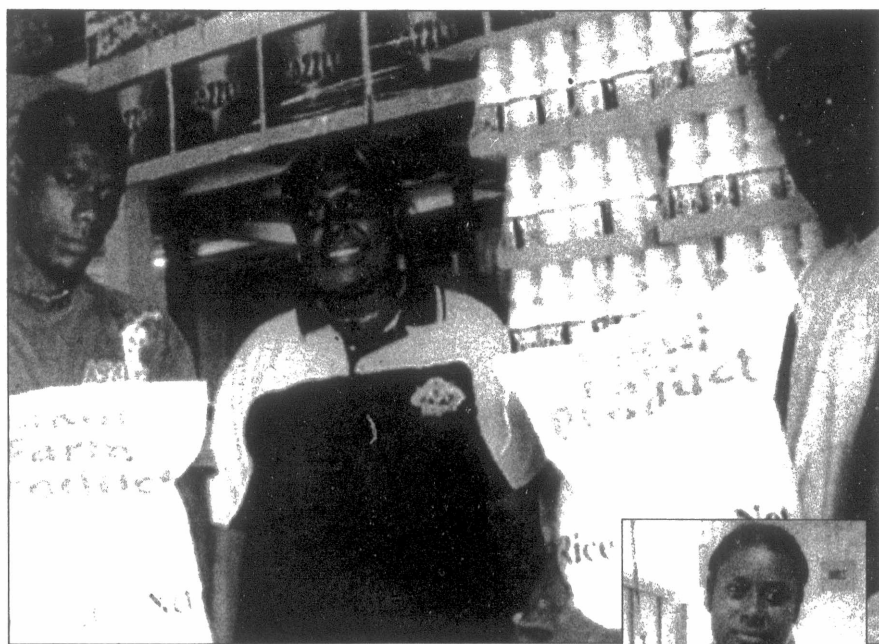

The master-mind behind all these new initiatives is none other than owner of the business, Nick Motou, a father of 7 children married to Melita, both from Laku village in the Mukakuru area of Siwai. The family, especially the mother, Melita, carries so much scars and bad memories of the crisis as she lost her mother, sister and almost her entire family in 1996 at the hands of the PNG security forces. But she has somehow survived through it all and moved on with her family in a new place and setting, far from the horrors of death back in the village in Siwai.

Daughter Josephine Diaike, the wholesale supervisor and office administrator took this reporter around their retail/wholesale/warehouse outlet in Kokopau and was amazed at the homegrown, manufactured and packaged chicken, eggs and rice and the initiative of one man now helping many finding employment apart from the homegrown protein readily available to the people for their meals.

"Dad saw the need to assist young people and adults by getting them involved in something useful to stop their idleness by giving them employment," Josephine said. More than 50 people work for Likui Trading in all its 4 outlets and the farm. So from the ashes of the crisis, Likui has risen to reach higher heights and become one of the vibrant, competitive business houses to be reckoned with in the ARB. And most of all, a pioneer in utilizing home grown and raised poultry and rice packaged to compete in the open market. The future holds much for this innovative and productive business house, so to speak.
