We are here in Belize to indulge in two of our hobbies: hunting for orchids in the jungle and looking for shells.

In case you never heard of Belize, until 1981 it was known as British Honduras. Long ago it was a great meeting place for pirates and buccaneers with its many secret cayes and quiet waters. Its hardwood forests were exploited in the 19th century, but it now depends mainly upon sugar and cocoa.

Belize City, the capital of Belize, is located on the Caribbean Sea, and occupies both banks of the river Belize. There are only two improved roads in Belize: one going north to the Yucatan; the other west to Guatemala.

We were threatened by wasps and stinging ants hidden in the clumps...

Driving for a short while we found our first orchid Epidendrum tampense, growing like a weed alongside the road. Shortly afterward we entered a dense jungle and stumbling over armadillo trails we found orchids reaching for the light in the tops of trees with others clinging to fallen logs on the fern covered ground. We carefully avoided collecting Enc. cochleatum, called by the local people the black orchid, the national flower of Belize, and Brasavola digbyana, an endangered species.

Best collecting was in an orange grove but we were threatened by wasps and stinging ants hidden in clumps of Coryanthes speciosa. We were enchanted by the tiny bright yellow Equitant oncidiums on the end branches of citrus trees. We returned home with more than two dozen different orchid species.

Now to the seashore: The Belizian barrier reef is second only in length to the Great Barrier Reef of Australia. There are hundreds of cayes and small islands along the reef's 175 mile length; some so small they support only mangroves; others show the remains of ancient Mayan temples. The larger cayes are now resort playgrounds offering snorkeling, SCUBA diving, wind surfing, and sailing.

The water was clear and we saw an abundance of fish, remains of a sunken ship, coral gardens, a pleasant contrast to the jungles and groves of the mainland.

We collected a few shells: on a rocky out-cropping along the shore we found Cyrpea zebra, which Brad needed for his SEM radula study. Queen conch and helmet shells were common in the sand and grassy patches in the lagoon.

The Belizean barrier reef is second only in length to the Great Barrier Reef of Australia.

A conch hatchery and research center on Ambergris Caye promises a long future for the conch industry in the islands.

Come to Belize if you want to see small rivers overhung by native orchids and manatees at the mouths of the wide rivers. You will be greeted by strikingly beautiful people: a mixture of Mayan, Indian, African and European.

WANTED A Few Good Women

The Oceanids Board is seeking women who would like to roll up their sleeves and work together with other committed women on various social projects. The time and energy commitment is up to you.

We have lots of small jobs - for example, helping with a particular mailing, or arranging the beautiful flowers that Dottie Conway always provides for a special birthday celebration, or helping to cook for a fund-raiser dinner.

We also need people to conceive of and carry out Big Projects, such as organizing a house tour or a benefit concert or something special that has never been tried before - like an Oceanids Oat Bran Sushi Cookbook.

Please let us know how you want to get involved with Oceanids! No matter the job, we guarantee a warm feeling of accomplishment and lots of socializing with friends.

Liz (or her answering machine) will be sitting next to the telephone (454-6858) waiting for your call. Please don't disappoint her (or her machine - it has feelings, too).

And a note of appreciation

A warm thank you to the many members who worked so diligently on the Fall Luncheon, the Paul Saltman Dinner, the Holiday Party, the Afternoon Tea, the Georgia O'Keeffe Outing, the Faculty and Staff Dinner, the Spring Luncheon and on the marvelous events (eight) put on by the Newcomers Committee. We also salute our Interest Group Chairmen, essential cornerstones of Oceanids.

We have exciting plans for the coming year, and know we can count on your continued support, - read that as help.

Liz Fong Wills

A reminder

You may recall receiving the information about our exciting new membership contest with the Oceanids membership renewal form that you received in early in September.

We hope you didn't line the bird cage with it, (unless the bird is eligible to join Oceanids).

This is a reminder that November 15 is the absolute deadline for the new membership contest. Please talk to your eligible friends/neighbors/acquaintances about the benefits of Oceanids membership now so they can come to the Fall Luncheon on Thursday October 19, to meet old friends, make new friends, and learn what the Interest Groups are planning.

Don't forget to have them indicate that you should be credited for their membership, so that you may win the big prize of two tickets to the Mary Beebe Lecture and Dinner.

They should send the membership form (or a reasonable facsimile) in this issue of Bear Facts to Elisabeth Marti as soon as possible!

Oceanids will be selling the La Jolla Money Book again. A number of our members have saved more than $64.00 through the use of one Money Book!

Get your copy from Jean Lindsley at the Fall Luncheon.

An Amazing Critic

Friends of Elibet Marshall and other readers of Bear Facts have heard of one unusual pet - Blackberry, her one-hundred fifty pound pig - and now La Jolla has acquired another surprising family pet, imported from New York City. The new Executive Director of the La Jolla Chamber Music Society, Neale Perl, told me recently about his Winlie.

Neale, an animal lover, is unable to have either a dog or a cat in his house because of his strong allergies to them, but learned that he was not allergic to rabbits. A rabbit, he states, is a splendid pet, easily housebroken and nice to have around.

According to his snapshot, Winlie looks like a soft gray cuddly stuffed toy with floppy ears and an especially appealing face. But this pet has an amazing ability - that of music critic!

Neale, a cellist, taught cello in New York City. One of his pupils, an older man, had what could be best described as a tin ear, yet he desperately yearned to play the cello. Lessons, Neale said, were extremely painful from his own point of view, and also, as it turned out, from Winlie's.

Usually calm, quiet and well behaved, Winlie became very lively, annoying and destructive during the time that the non-cellist was playing - even chewing on the rug.

However during the portion of the lesson when Neale himself demonstrated technique by playing his cello, Winlie would immediately quiet down and stretch out peacefully on the rug!

Not music criticism expressed in the convoluted terms in which reviews of concerts are sometimes written, but certainly a definite opinion of the quality of the two performances, expressed in actions rather than words.

Netty Paar

If you see a svelte Oceanid with short blond hair, sparkling blue eyes and an easy smile, be sure you say hello to our Newcomers Committee Chairman, Netty Paar.

Netty was born in the Netherlands in a village with the wonderful name of Breukelen-Nijenrode and moved to Utrecht at age eleven. She says she had a pretty normal childhood, nothing out of the ordinary; but she did relate the following anecdote. Because she was born during the war years, Netty calls her war trauma the fact that she never had dolls to play with as a child. An aunt had a lovely antique doll which Netty admired and coveted. When she was grown she asked her aunt about it, and was told it was in disrepair. Years later she found the doll in the crib in the nursery she was preparing for her first born! Netty repaired the doll and has acquired four other antiques dolls to date.

A formidable tennis player, Netty has played since age seventeen and met her husband, Hans, on the courts. Since her marriage, she has become very well traveled. The Paars and their three month old son came to the United States in 1969 when Hans began his graduate studies at Columbia University.

They lived in Chicago for four years, in France, near Geneva, Switzerland for three years; in Menlo Park, near Stanford for nine years; and because of visa problems, back in Holland for eleven months, before coming to UCSD. Hans at present is a visiting professor in the Physics Department. A daughter, born in the U.S. is now a 9th grader, and their son is a junior at UCSD.

This summer Netty and her daughter spent a month with Netty's twin sister in Canada and another month in Colorado with the entire family.

Trained as a physical therapist, Netty was able to use her training only for a couple of years - while Hans was a graduate student. She was able to convince the INS to change her visa so that she could work and help with the family's finances. Since that time, the family's finances has not warranted her help, so Netty has kept busy with other activities.

She became a TIP volunteer about six months ago. TIP is the acronym for Trauma Intervention Program coordinated by the Oceanside Police Department. After a week's intensive training course, Netty is now on call twice a month to give support to people in severe mental crisis such a family members of traffic or murder victims. She is also the Dutch-speaking volunteer.

Besides playing tennis, Netty likes gardening, reading, playing the mandolin and bridge - she has joined our bridge group and plays fairly regularly with the members. Netty describes herself as a competitive person. She was tournament director of a tennis club while in Menlo Park, and coordinated six tournaments a year.

With her organizational skills, we are extremely fortunate to have Netty take over the duties of Newcomers Chairmen. Welcome Aboard!

Georgina Sham

We Honor Georgina

At the Spring Luncheon
We honored Georgina Sham

The Maxine E. White Service Award was presented by Maxine to Georgina Sham
with the following words:

As an organization, Oceanids depends upon the service and dedication of its members. Today we honor a member who has played multiple roles in our organization. She has held most of the offices listed in the by-laws, has chaired most of the annual events, has played a major role in all of our facets - Newcomers, Bear Facts, Directories, Holiday Parties, Children's Parties, Food Committees, Clean-up crews and more.

During the last decade, Oceanids has had eight presidents, and seven of these can tell you that there was one person they could depend upon for help anytime and when all else failed.

Today we honor and show our appreciation to Georgina Sham.

At The International Center

The Friends of the International Center has not been idle this summer. Wednesday Coffee has met every week, we said goodbye to many good friends and made many new friends among our foreign visitors.

The Resale Shop did a brisk business on a truncated schedule but is now on its regular schedule. The Board has met twice.

The Directory of Members finally came off the press and there was a party to launch it on September 29th. At that time members were personally handed their directories and served picnic fare.

Coming up is the Russian Ethnic Dinner scheduled for November 10 to help Mayor O'Connor bring to a close the Soviet Arts Festival. All of our Ethnic Dinners have been sold out events so make your reservations early. Call the Friends' Office at 534-1124 to reserve your place.

If reservations are received before November 7th, the price of the dinner including entertainment by the Pleasant Peasants (a program of Russian dancing), is $5 per UCSD student; $10 per member, and $15 per nonmember. After November 7th the price will be $20 per person.

We're looking forward to seeing many of you this year and hope all Oceanids will also become Friends.

CAMPUS RECREATION will be offering evening instruction in yoga, dance, massage, swimming, tennis, aerobics and a wide array of other classes meeting once to three times a week beginning Monday, October 2 throughout the UCSD campus.

Schedules, fees, and locations for all RecClasses can be found in The Canyonview newspaper or by calling 534-4037 for more information.

All UC campuses are required by state law to provide adequate parking, yet the same law mandates that no state funds be used for this purpose. UCSD is one of the last of the UC campuses to adopt paid evening and weekend parking.

Parking fees alone finance the construction, maintenance, lighting, and security of university parking facilities. "As the university continues to grow and to offer more student and community programs, the demand for additional, secure parking has increased accordingly," said George Himel, associate vice chancellor of business affairs. "For example, simple resurfacing for parking lots can average $46,000 a year and $400,000 has gone towards lighting improvements and upgrades over the past two years."

The rate for daytime visitor parking remains the same at $4.00 for a full day or $2.00 for a half-day (good for any consecutive four-hour period). Evening and weekend parking rates are as follows:

- $1.00 per evening
- $2.00 Saturday or Sunday
- $10.00 per month
- $15.00 per academic quarter
- $40.00 per year

Metered parking is still available for short-term parking and all current UCSD parking permits are valid at night and on the weekend.

In the last decade, the Board consensus has been to have the spring luncheon off campus at an interesting place. Consistently, the attendance runs around 90-100 women.

This year's luncheon topped all the luncheons I have attended. The setting was old La Jolla - historic. The food was very good. Jonathan Saville was entertaining and the audience most attentive. Lila Butler is to be commended, as well as Georgina Sham who worked very hard to help her.

Nevertheless, about two days or so before the luncheon, only half of the crowd had reserved a place! Think how complicated it is to make name tags and arrange tables in the last hours. Each person arriving wanted to be moved to another table with her friends and that surely played havoc with the balanced arrangements that had been prepared.

Undoubtedly there are some who would have liked to have been moved to another table... and probably some who have made their views known.

Well, given the time the members allowed with their reservations and changing requests, it is a wonder that everybody had a seat! Besides, members probably talk with their friends frequently during the year, and the luncheon is an opportunity to visit with others.

It becomes complicated to have the annual meeting if some think the going price outside the university is too high. San Diego is a high-living place, and short of a picnic on the grass in Balboa Park, it's hard to find a place with pleasant surroundings whose price has not increased -- even the Woman's Club in La Jolla.

Our new officers must be elected at the spring meeting -- unless the by-laws are changed. If it's hard to get a quorum because of the cost of the luncheon, how then to elect the officers?

Maxine White

Avis Johnson received the Golden Heritage Award at the Spring Luncheon of the San Diego Chapter of the NAACP for her pioneer membership and work in the organization.

The San Diego Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has a membership of more than 500.

Ed's note: Other organizations have encountered the same difficulty in having to deal with last minute reservations. Read Georgina's article to learn how The International Center is dealing with this problem.

Oceanids Interest Groups are run for the benefit and amusement of Oceanids and, in some cases, outsiders as well. Oceanids are encouraged to join groups reflecting their interests though it should be kept in mind that several groups have certain requirements that may restrict membership. Since The Renaissance Singers perform in public, members are expected to have reasonably good voices and sight-reading ability. The Language Groups do not teach French or Italian, but were formed to enable speakers of the language to converse with each other. The Bridge Groups can accommodate limited numbers of people and must be able to form tables. We hope this won't discourage you from investigating these groups. Most believe in the more the merrier, and will welcome new faces warmly, eager to share their interest and expertise.

AVI- SET / BIRD WATCHING

This is a very informal group of members who not only enjoy looking at and identifying birds, old friends or newly identified species, but also enjoy exploring different natural areas, such as the coast, wetlands, canyons, parks, etc.

We generally stay within a half hour to forty-five minute drive from the university area, and we welcome suggestions from members about places to go. A telephone committee informs members about time and place of meetings which are usually on the fourth Monday morning of the month during the academic year.

In '88-90 our trips ranged from the US-Mexican border, the Dairy Mart ponds, up to the back country of Orange County, the Tucker Wildlife Sanctuary. Sometimes we struggled with the identification of different species among the numerous sparrows or warblers. Another time we were delighted with the appearance of the rarer, but easily identifiable, wood duck.

We are looking forward to the 89-90 season and welcome inquiries from all interested Oceanid members.

Sally Kroll

COUPLES BRIDGE - DAY

There have been some additions to our group. New blood is always welcome. Our aim is to play a competitive game in a congenial way, and we do. We have ignored inflation and still contribute 25c each toward the daily prizes.

Isabel Wheeler

COUPLES BRIDGE - EVENING

The evening bridge group meets the 4th Friday of the month at 8 p.m. All participants look forward to that evening.

We are a very congenial group and enjoy each other's company. We play until about 11 p.m. and then socialize while we partake of coffee and the hostess's favorite dessert.

We have been limiting ourselves to three tables. If you would like to join our group, please call Rose Baily, 453 2637.

GARDEN CLUB

Last summer The Garden Club group met at Pat Austin's home for a planning meeting. After visiting Pat's garden, we discussed our individual dream trips and organized a schedule for the year.

During the year, we visited several distant vineyards and nurseries including Culbertson's Winery in Fallbrook, Judy's Perennials in Vista, and the Art Alive exhibit at the San Diego Museum of Art.

We invite you to join us for an exciting year.

to be continued next month

The design of our newsletter restricts us to 12 or 16 pages (including frontpiece and address); therefore we are unable to print all of the Interest Group year-end reports in this issue.

1989 Oceanids Service A w a r d s

In the Spring of '89, the four UCSD Colleges (next year Fifth will be eligible) nominated two female and two male students as candidates for the annual OCEANIDS outstanding Service Awards. Each student receives a recognition certificate with the U.C seal on it, and a check for $150.

Revelle College recommended Kathryn Smith, who served the Resident Halls and Apartments as Publicity Chair and as a Resident Advisor for two years. She also served two years on the Judicial Committee, the organizational Committee, and finally on the Graduation Committee. The Dean's letter states that not only has Kathy been a participant in the above organizations, but in most cases the leader. Campus-wide, she was elected an Associated Students Senator. Kathy was admitted to more than one law School for Fall, but was leaning toward accepting admission to U.C. Davis.

Muir College recognized Noelle Terri Hildebrand, who double majored in History and Political Science. Noelle started out as an Orientation Volunteer, then became a leader. She was a member of the Muir Commuter Council, the Muir College Council, and for two years served as a House Advisor. The Dean says that Noelle was veritably the mother of The Wild World of Muir, which for two years served as Muir's open house event.

Noelle told me that, although it did not pay much, she had a job working for the enforcement of proposition 103 and was excited about her prospects. Also, she wrote Oceanids a thank-you note in which she says, My years at Muir College and UCSD have been rewarding, and it makes me happy to know I gave something back to the school.

Third College submitted the name of Isaac Mankita, who was a fifth senior majoring in Communications and minoring in Sociology. His list of activities and related volunteer work experience is two pages long. Suffice to say that Isaac was a Third College Resident Hall Advisor, a Dean's intern responsible for The Leadership Training Institute, Chair of Third College's Students Council, an intern for the UCSD Public Information Office, and finally a volunteer organizer for Third's Commencement.

I could not find out what Isaac is presently doing, but he shows on his June listing an intern position with the City of San Diego Fire Department researching compliance with health and safety standards. Wherever he is, we can be sure Isaac will keep himself involved. He writes he likes to serve as liaison among multicultural groups.

Each year I marvel at how the Awardees find the time to participate in and to lead various campus organizations while still managing to keep up their grades.

Warren College submitted the name of Scott Zafran, a Communications and Psychology major. Scott served first as a volunteer on the Warren Commuter Board, then became the Chair of that Committee, and later joined the All-Campus Commuter Board. He worked on the Warren Orientation, served on the Judicial Board, acted as peer advisor, and as staff for the Warren Leadership Conference held in '88. Outside campus he worked for the Arthritis Foundation and for Big-Sister-Big-Brother. He reports himself to be a strong active supporter of campus diversity.

At present Scott is working as a management trainee for a large car rental firm.

Each year I marvel at how the Oceanids awardees find the time to participate in and to lead these various campus organizations while still managing to keep up their grades. Their time-management skills are certainly superior to mine!

In the article about the history of SEA written by Ellen Revelle, the editor's error is corrected to read: The Revelles and the Munks were the only couples of the nineteen member couples who needed the 24 hour thinking period before making a decision about their lot choices.

Kitchen Exchange

One morning at the Kitchen Exchange:

10:30 - Herr Professor Baumann and family search the shelves for pots, dishes, silver - and, oh, a cot for baby!

11:00 - Ilse Warschawski lugs in a box of shining pots; she has scrubbed them so thoroughly that the logo is clear on the bright copper bottoms.

11:30 - Avis Johnson brings three big boxes of kitchen equipment to donate to the Kitchen Exchange. She is simplifying her life to fit a smaller home.

11:45 - Mrs. Sass, with beaming face, shakes our hands and says good-bye. Next week she and her husband will be home in Israel. She thanks all of you people who have helped us so much.

Do you have foreign visitors in your department? Bring them to the Kitchen Exchange - last year we helped ninety families get settled. We are located behind the International Center and open on Wednesday mornings, 10:30-12.

Donations are welcome.

STAMP COLLECTING

Thanks to Oceanids, the Stamp Group had a new member during this past year: a sabbatical visitor from Canada, very keen on stamps, whose wife found the notice in Bear Facts.

Our small group exchanges used stamps and shares the extra ones with others. It is very dependent upon the used stamps that are donated to us by Oceanids and members of the Friends of the International Center. These are stamps that would probably be thrown away if we weren't asking for them. Each of us has stamp-collecting friends with whom we share the duplicates, some of those friends are in other countries, and they especially appreciate receiving small batches of our stamps from time to time.

This Interest Group would welcome new members, and of course we welcome your donations of used stamps. The Oceanid's treasury benefits from our group, because we pay five cents for each of your stamps that we keep.
