National Water Supply and Sewerage Act 1986

MATERIALS, EQUIPMENT AND WORKMANSHIP STANDARDS FOR APPLICATION TO WATER SUPPLY AND SEWERAGE IN PAPUA NEW GUINEA

The Papua New Guinea Waterboard is established by the National Water Supply and Sewerage Act, 1986 with following functions among others under Clause 5:

- a) Exercise control over persons or organizations providing water supply and sanitation services or services relating to water supply and sanitation.
- b) Set Standards for materials workmanship and equipment.

PNG Waterboard wishes to advise all the Consultants, Contractors, Suppliers, and providers of private water supply and sanitation services and food and drink processors/producers the requirements for compliance to Standards for application to water supply and sanitation and services related to water supply and sanitation.

All private operators of water supply and sewerage services are required to be licensed to operate.

The PNG Waterboard has adopted Standards for application to water supply and sewerage, PNG Standards adopted from international standards by National Institute of Standards and Industrial Technology (NISIT). # Business of government in PNG like a jute box in a tavern

- Quit while you're ahead. All the best gamblers do. A fine retreat matters as much as a stylish attack. As soon as they are enough - even when they are many - cash in your deeds. A long run of good fortune is always suspicious. You're safer when good luck alternates with bad, and, besides, that makes for bittersweet enjoyment. When luck comes racing in on us, it is more likely to slip and smash everything to pieces. Sometimes, Lady Luck compensates us, trading intensity for duration. She grows tired when she has to carry someone on her back for a long time."

The above was not written with the Prime Minister of Papua New Guinea, Sir Michael Thomas Somare in mind.

It was written some 400 years ago in Spain by a Jesuit scholar, a Father Baltasar Grecian in his Pocket Oracle, "The Art of Worldly Wisdom", Doubleday (1992).

However, reading it now, you could be mistaken to think that it was meant for the Prime Minister Sir Michael Somare.

We have a system of government in PNG called the Westminster system, where the head of a government must accept responsibility for the collective wrongs of a government of the day. When Sir Michael sacked Dr. Allan Marat, he said it on the EM TV evening news, that in a Westminster system of government, like that which we have here in PNG, Cabinet solidarity is a must and where a minister goes public and questions a cabinet decision, then he as the PM must take appropriate action to protect that principle of cabinet solidarity.

Thus, Allan Marat was told by an angry Prime Minister that he could not sit in on a government caucus meeting for that morning even though Dr. Marat was at that point in time, still a cabinet minister holding the Justice portfolio.

In the like manner, Sir Michael must accept responsibility for all the wrong things that this government has done since coming into power. The biggest assault on the people of this country is the manner in which the government has gone about to amend the National Constitution. Overnight and without consultation with the people and a decent parliamentary debate, we saw the Leadership Code thrown out the window after Maladina did a cut and paste job with Sections 27, 28 and 29 of the Constitution.

Thus, with the original powers of the Ombudsman Commission gone, the Commission is now like a lame duck and all it is capable of doing right now is to croak, 'quack, quack' all night, but the honourable members of parliament can no longer be disturbed from their slumber, content with the business takings for that day.

We have said it in this column and we repeat here that the proposed amendments to the Organic Law on Duties and Responsibilities of Leaders is only a minor portion or an incidental aspect of the total amendment package proposed by Maladina and his colleagues to water down and render obsolete, the powers of the Commission.

These are mostly procedural aspects of the Leadership Code. Thus, in our view, Maladina had already accomplished what he had set out to do with parliament having passed the constitutional amendments.

What we ought to do now is to get the parliament to revisit the issue and that way, have the original powers of the Commission restored and further, the parliament must withdraw the proposed amendments to the above named Organic Law. If we can achieve this end, then we can say we have returned to the status quo. Right now, we are neither here nor there; we are everywhere, but nowhere near our target. We must focus on concrete achievement and not be content with promises by these politicians that they will take time to consider our views.

The problem we are now faced with in this country, is that there are no longer any rules and procedures to govern the conduct of government business. Letters sent to government departments do not get answered; telephones will ring until the line is engaged; and any personal visits to the department is a flop, because you will be told that the person to answer your query did not come to work for the day. Whatever system we adopted from the Australians simply does not work anymore.

This government alone has produced and launched a number of plans or strategies for social and economic development in the country. To name a few, the National Agricultural Development Plan (NADP), the Medium Term Development Strategy, the Millennium Development Plan and the like.

Overnight we even dreamt up one called, the Green Revolution where we were supposed to ferry coffee beans down from Tapini and Kokoda down to Port Moresby by the Defence Force and their Arava aircraft.

However, beyond the formulation, the presentation and the cocktail parties that followed, we hear nothing of the so many plans that we have come up with over the years.

The only cargo we ever ferried with our Arava Craft was Moti to the Solomons and not coffee beans from Tapini or Kokoda to Port Moresby.

There are far too many cabinet submissions now being considered for funding by the government especially now that the election fever is heating up. Let us take the cabinet submission by Peter O'Neill for public service housing for which K50 million was set aside and placed in a bank account with the Bank of South Pacific. Is that K50 million still sitting in BSP, or has it disappeared? And what about the police housing for which we heard another hefty sum was allocated? Take a look at the Gordons Police Barracks where our policemen live and work. It is a totally run down barracks with water and sewerage gushing out and at times onto the street across from the Gordons Secondary School.

If you look closely when you drive past the school, you will notice that the policemen and their families have vacated the dilapidated houses and have set up little sheds made of canvas and rusty pieces of iron sheets around the yard and some of them are actually living in these tin sheds. We suggest that the Police Commissioner, Gary Baki and his police minister should take a day off to visit the Gordons Police Barracks and do something about it.

Now getting back to the manner in which this country is being run, one thing that is very obvious is that each government department does its own piece of action, or gets a slice of the national cake, unfortunately not as part of a coordinated and comprehensive action-based national plan approved by the government. The active ministers like Don Polye and Gabriel Kapris get their own work plans approved and funds are allocated, while the rest of the ministers spend their time in limbo driving around Port Moresby in heavily tinted land cruisers.

One of our main problems with all these high sounding plans for social and economic development in this country is that the plans are formulated solely as a paper exercise by people who have very little knowledge of what is happening on the ground. Planning, if formulated for its conceptual value, is basically a statement of policy, but where planning is action-based, then the major characteristic of the plan will be the various projects designed for implementation with certain objectives in mind. Anything in the nature of what this government gave us as the Medium Term Development Strategy is plain hotchpotch. The people who wrote this so called 'strategy' cannot even speak English.

It is all mumbo-jumbo with high sounding phrases which mean nothing of essence but words and plenty of words.

It cannot be such a mammoth task to plan for six million people, most of whom live in the rural areas. The basic services to provide are village clinics or health centres, schools, good all weather roads, rural police stations and a workable court system from the village court to the local and the district courts and in particular the land courts. We had these systems set up in the past, but we never devised an effective administrative system to keep these institutions functioning. We set them up and after 6 to 9 months the system comes to a halt and becomes non-functioning for various reasons. Obviously, we have never heard of an effective administrative system which is functioning and self sustaining as an administrative unit within the whole umbrella of government institutions.

Right now the entire institution of government has collapsed and machinery of public administration has come to a standstill. We have lost the political will to maintain a responsible government to make good decisions for the wellbeing of the people. What holds the system in place in a country like England, America and Australia is the rule of law characterized by the notion of fair play under an impartial setting where there are established rules and procedures in place with inbuilt checks and balances to keep the institution of government alive and the machinery of public administration functioning. The entire public service we have is like one big retirement home for our civil servants because the minister and his associates are now interfering into the day to day administration of each Department or statutory corporation.

In this country the rule of law (under which everyone has a chance to survive under a fair system of government) has been replaced by the rule of the jungle where the governing principle is "survival of the fittest". The effect of this is that the bulk of the population which is rural and land-based are deprived of the basic services for survival. These people are now flooding into Port Moresby and Lae and all the major towns and cities. Even our members of parliament have left their own districts and towns and have taken up residence in hotels in and around Port Moresby. One classic example is the Gulf Provincial Government.

And the worst part of it all is that the business of government in this country operates like a jute box in a tavern or a saloon bar. In order to get the jute box to play your personal selection of music, you have to slot in a 20t coin and then press a button and the jute box comes alive playing your music.

The present government in PNG under the National Alliance Party operates under the same principle as the jute box.

If you have the money, then you can get the machinery of government to spin into action to dance to your tune, whereas, if you do not have the money then you cannot partake in the business of government, just like you cannot play that jute box.

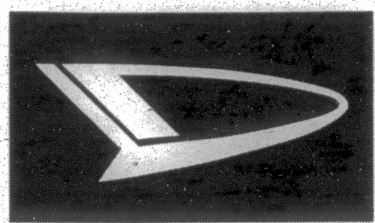

This government is only for the people with money, and plenty of it. It looks as if the National Alliance Party has stretched the user-pay policy a little too far and totally out of context.

Finally, we started this column with advice from a good old Jesuit priest 400 years ago, so it is fitting that we close with one more piece of worldly advice from him, thus:-

"No. 111 - DON'T BE A SETTING SUN.

It is a maxim of prudent people to abandon things before being abandoned by them. You should make even your end into a triumph. At times the sun itself retires behind a cloud so that no one will see it fall, and it leaves us wondering whether it has set or not. Avoid sunsets so as not to burst with misfortune. Don't wait for people to turn their shoulders on you: they will bury you alive to your regret, dead or renown. The prudent knows when to retire a race horse, and do not wait for him to collapse in the middle of the race, to the laughter of all. Let Beauty shatter the mirror cleverly, at the right time, and not to late when she cannot bear the truth."

Yu no ken ting blesing bilong wanpela wik em inap long narapela wik, Nogat. Wan wik wan wik yu nidim strong bilong God i kam long yu bilong inapim yu long autim tok bilong God. Yu mas mekim wankain olsem Aposel Pol i mekim. Em i askim ol kristen manmeri long prea long em, "Yupela i mas prea bai mi ken autim klia dispela tok, olsem God i laik bai mi mekim" Kolosi 4:4. Na gen Pol i tokim ol lain long Efesus, "Mi gat wok bilong autim gutnius, olsem na yupela i mas prea long God i ken strongim mi, bai mi ken daunim pret na tokaut strong long ol manmeri" Efesus 6:20.

Holi Spirit bai i strongim yu long autim tok bilong God, tasol yu mas pulap long Holi Spirit na prea long God i strongim yu long autim tok long strong bilong Holi Spirit long olgeta taim.

Holi Spirit bai strongim yu long winim traim

Jisas i pulap long Holi Spirit na taim satan i traim em, em i winim satan. Holi Spirit i laik strongim yumi tu bai yumi ken winim ol traim. Jisas i tokim ol disaipel, "Helpim tru bilong strongim yupela em i Holi Spirit" Jon 14:26. Pol i prea long Holi Spirit i ken pulapim laip bilong ol kristen. "Mi save brukim skru na prea olsem, Papa i ken pulapim Holi Spirit bilong em long bel bilong yupela, na mekim yupela i strong tru. Na mekim yupela i sanap strong, olsem graun i holim pas rop bilong diwai na mekim diwai i sanap strong" Efesus 3:16-17.

Holi Spirit i save helpim yumi sanap strong, na taim ol traim i kam yumi no ken pundaun. Nogat. Long strong bilong Holi Spirit yumi inap winim ol traim na sanap strong i stap yet. Taim Holi Spirit i pulapim yumi em i mekim dispela pasin bilong laikim ol arapela manmeri i kamap strong long bel bilong yumi Rom 5:5. Gavman i no stap moa wantaim pipel SAPOS yumi skelim ol hevi i wok bungim kantri tude, na bekim gavman i givim long ol dispela hevi, em i klia moa olsem dispela tingting i tru. Gavman i no stap moa wantaim ol pipel.

Bikos i gat planti bikpela rot we mani bai kam insait long kantri, Gavman i sanap em yet long bihainim laik na tingting bilong em yet.

Wanem ol dispela laik na tingting, bai yumi mas luksave long husat tru i wok go pas long planti bikpela wok gavman i karimaut wantaim ol dispela nupela projek bilong pulim mani i kam insait.

Nogut ol dispela pesman tu i save tromoi laik bilong ol i go insait wantaim laik bilong kantri na ekonomi bilong yumi.

Watpo na yumi tok olsem?

Long ol wik i kam inap tude, yumi lukim gavman i yusim ol namba bilong en insait long Palamen long vot na tok oraitim sampela ol bikpela senis long ol lo i bosim wok bilong was long pasin stil namel long ol lidamanmeri, lo i bosim lukaut bilong busgraun bilong yumi, na sampela ol arapela ol i bin oraitim, na i nogat wanpela gutpela tok paif i bin kamap long ol.

Olgeta wanwan samting gavman i bin mekim, em i strong yet na tok olsem em i mekim samting stret, na i nogat wanpela asua long pasin bilong em.

Tupela wik i go pinis, gavman i amamas tru na tokaut long ol i skelim nau ol sid mani i go long ol papagraun bilong Sauten Hailans aninit long bikpela Likwifait Netseral Ges (LNG) projek.

Tasol insait long tupela mun tasol, mipela i lukim tupela bikpela birua i kamap long namba wan bikpela ples balus bilong yumi long Pot Mosbi.

Em taim wanpela biknem bisnismen, ol i sutim na kilim em i dai long ples balus.

Na las wik tasol, sampela ol birua man i sut long ol pait gan gen long traim kilim sampela ol papagraun bilong bilong Moro ges projek.

Dispela i soim klia, olsem belhat pasin nau i kamap bikpela bihainim gro bilong ol bikpela risos projek, na gro bilong mani i kam long ol dispela ol projek.

Tasol gavman i no luksave long dispela yet.

Ol i bin go long Nu Yok, long sindaun kaikai wantaim ol bikpela divelopa bilong LNG projek, na ol i krai, ol i autim bel sori bilong ol, na tok olsem dispela projek bai kamapim bikpela mani tru bilong stretim olgeta hevi bilong kantri PNG.

Gov't for proactive partnership with ABG

New President of the Autonomous Region of Bougainville, John Momis at his first news conference since his election win. He was inaugurated into office on June 15 in Buka.

PM assures B'villeans...

PPrime Minister, Grand Chief, Sir Michael Somare has assured the people of Bougainville of his Government's continued commitment to prioritising peace-building on the island.

He further committed to working with the new President and representatives of the Autonomous Bougainville Government.

Addressing Mr. Momis inauguration in Buka on June 15, Sir Michael said the ceremony marks a significant step forward for Bougainville and Papua New Guinea.

The recent election saw former Governor of Bougainville, John Momis, win the presidential election.

Sir Michael said the successful conduct and peaceful outcome of the recent election reaffirmed the Bougainville people's commitment to the Peace Agreement, and added that the Government looked forward to developing an increasingly strong and proactive partnership with the new ABG.

"As Bougainville's partner in peace-building, we will work together with the ABG to promote development which will provide ordinary Bougainvilleans with opportunities to improve their lives and well being," he said.

He said Cabinet had also approved several transfer of functions and powers to ABG, and progress was being made to fast-track arrangements in areas such as health and education.

A Memorandum of Understanding between the Internal Revenue Commission and the ABG has also been signed for revenue collection, while arrangements are being finalized for managing the financial affairs of Bougainville.

Other functions and powers transferred included agriculture, lands and forestry, and trade and industry.

Sir Michael said the agreed process for transfer of mining, oil and gas continued to progress, and added that with increased functions, there was a need for increased capacity.

The National Government has also given priority to a number of high impact projects which have been designed to make a real difference to people's lives.

They include important infrastructure projects and programmes to provide rural people opportunities to help themselves.

Infrastructure projects on Bougainville, supported by the Japanese Government, include 15 bridges being rebuilt along the main east coast road.

Other projects supported under the Governance and Implementation Fund (GIF) with Australia and New Zealand include the construction of a border post on the border with the Solomon Islands; restoration and upgrading of the Buka ring road; and the installation of marine cables from Buka to Sohano and Kokopau by PNG Power Limited.

Sir Michael said cocoa and copra rehabilitation and rural electrification were also included under the program.

In the meantime, the United States Government was also assisting with the removal of WWII ammunition, weapons and other equipment left around Torokina to make way for the development of a major oil palm project.

Meanwhile, Sir Michael has paid tribute to outgoing President, James Tanis and his government for their commitment towards peace-building, and cooperation with the National Government. ■

Minister Allen calls for environment protection

Governor General, Sir Paulias being assisted by DEC staff to release a dove to mark the World Environment Day at the Variarata National Park.

Papua New Guinea is committed to protecting the environment and its biodiversity, according to Minister for Environment and Conservation, Benny Allen.

Addressing the World Environment Day celebrations at the Variarata National Park, outside Port Moresby, Minister Allen called on stakeholders to collectively raise awareness and understanding on bio-diversity and issues affecting life on Earth.

This year was declared the International Year of Biodiversity; Many Species, One Planet and One Future.

Mr Allen said PNG recognized the importance of bio-diversity protection, which was critical for human well-beings, as well as economic development and combating poverty.

"Our Government recognizes this call to meet global expectations to combat biodiversity loss, forest degradation, alleviation of poverty, gender equality, universal education for all tribes, fair and equal opportunities to participate in economic growth, climate change and sea level rise," Mr Allen said.

He added the Government was committed to meeting these challenges, while ensuring its biodiversity was preserved and protected, and striving to achieve sustainable economic growth for its people through various action plans, goals and visions.

Mr Allen urged all Papua New Guineans to make it their priority to preserve and protect the rich biodiversity of the country.

He also called on government agencies, churches, business houses and civil society groups to collaborate and use the vast resources in a sustainable manner to meet national goals and visions.

The World Environment Day was celebrated on June 4. ■

Commodity Boards and agencies urged to perform

Minister for Agriculture and Livestock, John Hickey has called on the agricultural commodity boards and statutory agencies to improve their performances to meet the objectives of Vision 2050 and similar policies and strategies.

Mr Hickey urged these organizations to review their roles and functions as a result of the realigned agricultural sub sectoral plans with the Development Strategic Plan 2010-2030 to achieve the Vision 2050 Plan.

Minister Hickey made the call during a meeting with chief executives and chairman of the sectoral agencies in Port Moresby recently. Those in attendance included Cocoa Board, Cocoa Coconut Institute, Kokonas Industri Koporesen, Coffee Industry Corporation, Fresh Produce Development Agency, NAQIA, Rural Industries Council and DAL.

Mr Hickey said most of the commodity boards and agencies were beginning to function more effectively than before. However, he reminded everyone not to be complacent but to work harder to boost the sector. He said he was encouraged that a positive indication that Board directors and chief executives and key personnel had realized the importance of the agriculture sector and were working together to develop their respective sub sectors.

The Minister said that all performance agreements for chief executives must be in place to ensure targets and objectives of commodity boards were met. He pointed out the importance of having an assets registry for all sectoral agencies and performance agreements to ensure that the agencies and their executives perform their duties effectively and efficiently. ■

Sweet potato/taro varieties on trial

Local varieties of sweet potato and taro that are well-adapted to the predicted future climates would be matched to target areas in the country, says a visiting specialist in agricultural biodiversity and conservation.

Sweet potato and taro were chosen because they are among PNG's most important staple crops.

Sweet potato alone accounts for 66 percent of the total staple crop production in the country.

Senior scientist from Bioversity International in Italy, Dr Ehsan Dulloo said climate change was imposing an unprecedented threat to livelihoods and food security, with great impacts over time and across locations, and PNG needed to match seeds to the needs of farmers for climate change adaptation.

Dr Dulloo was addressing participants at a recent inception Workshop at the National Agricultural Research Institute (NARI) headquarters near Lae earlier this month.

The Workshop also witnessed the launch of a new project on agricultural biodiversity in PNG.

The project; 'Matching Seeds to Needs' using locally available varieties for adaption to climate change and improving the livelihoods of poor farmers will be undertaken in the country in partnership with NARI over the next three years.

It is funded by Bioversity International of the United Kingdom at a cost of US$300,000.

Other major partners are the Fresh Produce Development Agency, (FPDA), PNG Women in Agriculture Development Foundation (PNGWADF), and the Centre for Pacific Crops and Trees.

NARI Director-General, Dr Raghunath Ghodake thanked Bioversity International for the 'new development.'

He said the impacts of climate change on agriculture were real and the project was important for the country.

Under the project, regions in the country that are under threat from climate change will be identified and results from global climate models will be used to predict the future climates in these target areas.

Dr Dulloo said based on these climate models, varieties of sweet potato and taro crops that are well-adapted to predicted future climates will be matched to these target areas.

Research supported by the Global Crop Diversity Trust is already underway in PNG to screen highland sweet potato germplasm for stresses.

In the meantime, NARI is funding a project to identify and use taro varieties that are resistant to leaf blight and high-yielding nutritious varieties.

NARI will provide planting materials, associated information and personnel in the field, as well as identifying the most useful varieties which will ensure that farmers sustain and increase production in the future despite changing climatic conditions.

The Centre for Pacific Crops and Trees will maintain elite lines selected through this project from national collections and make available planting material and information to breeders, researchers and farmers in PNG and other countries.

Technical assistance like training will be provided through complementary funding from the Global Crop Diversity Trust, a multinational organization.

The PNGWADF will play a key role in ensuring the participation of women farmers in germplasm selection and dissemination, assisted by private industries in PNG like FPDA and Alele Fresh Produce.

The Workshop was attended by representatives of project partners, the PNG University of Technology, Lae District's Division of Agriculture and Livestock and farmers from Morobe, Eastern Highlands and Central provinces. ■

Sir Paulias secures another term

Governor-General, Sir Paulias Matane has been returned by Parliament for a second term of six years.

The House re-elected him through an open ballot on June 25, 2010 following a motion by the Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare.

His previous six-year term expired on June 29.

Parliament endorsed Sir Paulias' eligibility for reappointment for a second term with an absolute majority of 84 votes to 13.

Other candidates for the post included, Sir Makena Geno of Central Province, Sir Pato Kakaraya and Mr. Ronald Rimbao, both from the Enga Province. ■

GOOD GOVERNANCE

PNG ready to act

Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare

Papua New Guinea is committed to winning the battle against climate change by defeating deforestation.

Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare echoed this position to world leaders at the Oslo Forest Climate Conference in Norway recently.

"PNG is ready to act. But, leadership will be required from both rich and poor countries to defeat climate change.

"To succeed, Heads of Governments and State must make the tough decisions. Transforming our global economy is a complex undertaking. Nothing in human history provides a clear roadmap.

"Therefore, my Government has developed a strategy for climate-compatible development and set up a new, lean and professional Office of Climate Change and Development," Sir Michael told the conference.

He said in PNG, deforestation and degradation contribute over 90% of the nation's total emissions, and many other countries have a similar profile.

But he said development options like logging and agricultural expansion, create tremendous pressure on the remaining forest reserves.

"Attempts to resolve deforestation have been suffocated by misunderstandings. The North told us the causes were issues like corruption and land rights. But, these are largely symptoms, not drivers.

"Developing countries understand that economics drive deforestation, pure and simple.

"The real problem is an international market failure. Today, markets value forests more destroyed than standing.

"Together, we must find ways to value forests more alive than dead. Year by year, more and more people begin to understand this reality.

"Candidly, I am not sure we would be here today without the 50 tropical countries working together as the Coalition for Rainforest Nations. This shows that tropical countries must continue to lead the way," Sir Michael said.

He said to succeed, developing countries must receive support for three overarching goals; development, mitigation and adaptation.

The Prime Minister said for this government seeks to triple GDP per capita over the next 20 years, cut emissions between 50 to 75 percent by 2030 and become carbon neutral before 2050.

He added that PNG must adapt economic growth by reducing vulnerability to climate risks.

"While PNG is committed to solving this global problem, we require international support to meet our objectives.

"Therefore, PNG's 'fast start program' seeks to reduce emissions by over 110 million tonnes of CO<sub>2</sub>e between 2011 and 2015 in order to begin a low carbon pathway leading to 1.1 - 1.5 billion tonnes of CO<sub>2</sub>e reductions before 2030," Sir Michael said.

He further said to achieve this, PNG's abatement program requires US $715 million to US$ 1 billion in resources from 2011 - 2015 broken down into: US$71 million for readiness payments, US$118 million for pilot program costs and US$526 - 811 million for performance-based payments.

"Overall, this would average around $7 or $8 per tonne of CO<sub>2</sub>e.

"Of course, in all of our development, mitigation and adaptation actions, PNG subscribes to principles of transparency, equitability, safeguards and professionalism.

"We believe that PNG's approach to 'fast start funding' can be used as a model for all REDD countries and we are happy to share our experience with anyone who is interested," he added.

Sir Michael said international mechanisms to deal with REDD have failed after promises have delivered nothing tangible to the Coalition of Rainforest Nations.

"The World Bank and the United Nations tangle us in endless process and conditionalities. Therefore, the 'Interim REDD Mechanism' must break from the past and deliver both finance and results," he said. ■

Own Vision 2050: public servants told

Acting Chief Secretary, Manasupe Zurenuoc, has urged public servants to take ownership of the PNG Vision 2050 in order to deliver the best services to the people.

Mr Zurenuoc was addressing an induction program for public servants in the Southern Highlands Provincial administration recently.

He emphasized that the primary role of public servants is being 'servants of the people,' while at the same time provide hope for the future through the implementation of the Government's Vision 2050 Plan.

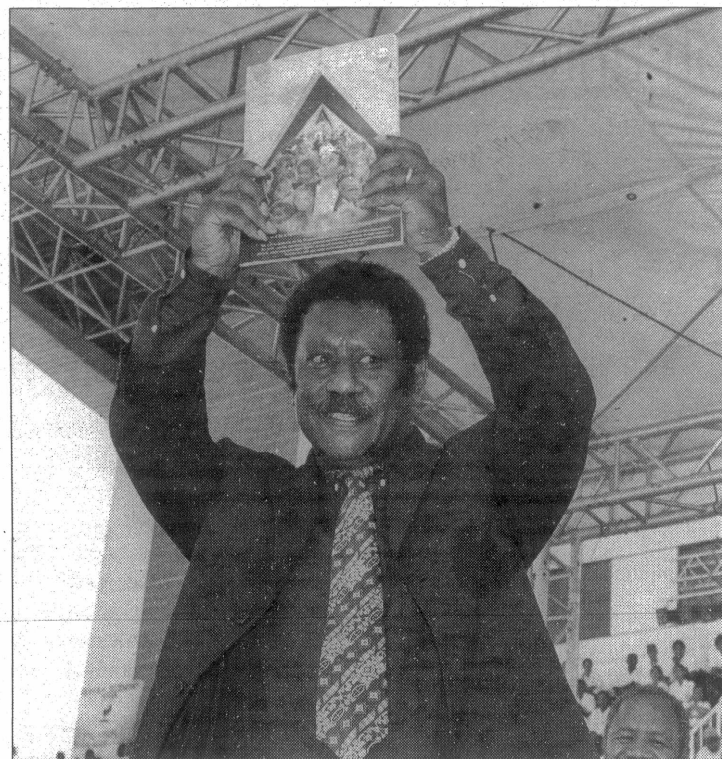

"PNG Vision 2050 is the higher goal. To achieve that goal, we have the 20-year National Development Strategic plan as a means to get there," he said.

Mr Zurenuoc challenged the provincial administration to have a 5-10 year short-term provincial plan and local level government plans to align with the PNG Vision 2050.

He further urged public servants to 'stand up and do your jobs like anybody else in the world.'

Senior managers of the Southern Highlands provincial administration have been directed to draw up short-term strategies to align with Vision 2050 by identifying key priority areas in policy planning and service delivery.

"While the actual implementation of Vision 2050 will come from provincial and district administrations, public servants are required to identify key areas in which to implement those plans," he said.

Meanwhile, Southern Highlands Administrator, William Powi said the induction program was conducted to get input from national departments and agencies on the best possible ways to align his administration's strategies with key initiatives of vision 2050.

Minister for Inter-Government Relations, Job Pomat, Southern Highlands Governor, Anderson Agiru, Secretary for Personnel Management, John Kali, and other heads of national government agencies attended the induction workshop. ■

NEC awards road work contracts

The National Executive Council has awarded two contracts for the maintenance of sections of the Highlands Highway, bordering Eastern and Western Highlands provinces.

Dekenai Construction will undertake periodic and emergency maintenance works on the road between Kassam Pass at the Eastern Highlands/Morobe border, while Cameron Construction will upgrade and seal the 15.94 kilometer road from Puya bridge to Baiyer bridge in the Western Highlands Province.

Prime Minister, Grand Chief, Sir Michael Somare, while announcing NEC decision, expressed his Government's gratitude to the Australian Government, through AusAID under the Transport Sector Support Program to rehabilitate that portion of the Highlands Highway.

The project is also included in the 3 to 5 year routine and periodic maintenance plan established by the Department of Works.

Meanwhile, Sir Michael said the upgrading and sealing of the 16 kilometre road project was the third stage of the Mt Hagen to Baiyer road which is fully funded by the National Government component as per the Asian Development Bank loan agreement.

Sir Michael thanked ADB for its funding assistance in the upgrading of the national roads. ■

Momis commends Bougainvilleans

The new President of the Autonomous Region of Bougainville, John Momis has paid tribute to the people of Bougainville for choosing him as their leader for the next five years.

"You have given me your hand of trust and I promise to do all in my power to honour this sacred trust to serve you," he said.

Mr Momis was speaking at the inauguration of the second Autonomous Bougainville Government early this month and commended his people for behaving with dignity throughout the election.

He added the commitment shown to the rule of law and the peace agreement was made clear by the peaceful way the election was conducted.

Mr Momis outlined five principles, which will guide his government over the next five years.

They include: ■ unification of all Bougainvilleans to cooperate and work together in consultation with one another;

■ improve and develop the people's welfare, through a new approach to promoting economic development to grow the economy in a new and meaningful ways;

■ securing Bougainville's political future under the Bougainville Peace Agreement, which means full implementation of autonomy, preparing for the referendum on independence and achieving complete weapons disposal;

■ promoting good governance and the rule of law, and end evil of corruption; and

■ building public awareness of the Peace Agreement and ABG policies.

He urged all Bougainvilleans to have a clear understanding of the way forward on issues confronting their region.

Mr Momis also commended the international community for their continued support. ■

Zurenuoc receives report on universities review

Mr. Zurenuoc.

Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Manasupe Zurenuoc says he has received the report on the review of Papua New Guinea universities.

Standing in for the Prime Minister, Mr Zurenuoc thanked the head of the Review Team, Sir Rabbie Namaliu for the Report on the country's six universities.

The institutions covered under the Report included the University of PNG (UPNG), University of Technology (Unitech), University of Goroka, University of Natural Resources, Divine Word University and the Pacific Adventist University.

The Report highlighted the current acute problems faced by the four State-owned universities and two private universities and made recommendations on how to address them.

"Papua New Guinea needs a long term strategy for better supply of public goods including universities. That strategy needs to recognize that while higher education is essential, it is expensive," Sir Rabbie said.

He explained that the country's universities made significant contributions to national development in the early years.

"They can do so again, but right now, the quantity and quality of graduates is far short of what is needed, due to inadequate resources and a range of governance and general service quality issues.

"Rehabilitating or replacing run-down existing assets and restoration of quality should proceed any investment in expansion," the Report said.

The presentation at the Morauta Haus was witnessed by the Review Team Members, Professor Ross Garnaut, Higher Education Commission Chairman, Mr Simon Kenehe,

Other officials included the Acting Secretary of the Department of Prime Minister and NEC, Ms Margaret Elias, Education Secretary, Dr Joseph Pagelio, Chief of Staff of the Prime Minister's Office, Mr Paul Bengo and senior officials. ■

New library for Bilur school opens

Minister Tammur and his delegates admiring the Patrick Tammur Memorial library at Bilur after the commissioning ceremony.

Students at the Bilur Primary school in the Bitapaka LLG area of Kokopo, East New Britain will now have access to a brand new library, thanks to the local MP and Minister for Communication and Information, Hon. Patrick Tammur.

The new 'Patrick Tammur Memorial Library' was officially opened by the Minister on June 9, 2010.

The library was funded by the Kokopo Joint District Planning (JDP) and Budget Priority Committee (BPC) under the District Services Improvement Program (DSIP) and built at a cost of K35,000.

Mr Tammur urged students and the surrounding communities to look after the facility.

"All of us must take ownership of such infrastructure set up by the government for our own benefit and for the benefit of our children today and in the future," he said.

He also urged the students to frequently visit the library and read more books and improve their standard of spoken and written skills.

He assured the Bilur community that he would do more for the school in the near future in terms of new classroom buildings.

Many who spoke during the occasion described Minister Tammur as the man behind education in the electorate and urged him to do more for their children.

Minister Tammur also promised the delivery of road infrastructure and other projects for the electorate. ■

2012 elections taken to schools

The Education Department and the Electoral Commission are presently developing a novel plan as part of its overall electoral awareness drive for the 2012 general elections.

The two entities are into serious discussions on the incorporation of electoral governance content in the social science curriculum as an example of what a whole-of-government partnership can do in building a strong, democratic nation.

Deputy Electoral Commissioner, (Operations) John Kalamoroh said the initiative, supported by AusAid, is targeting Grades 6-10 students.

Mr Kalamoroh said while these age groups would not vote in 2012, the idea was to develop a culture of electoral awareness and responsibility in our younger generations as 'leaders of tomorrow'.

He said the educational materials are being developed and will be 'workshopped' in August 2010.

He said the initiative had been progressed by both organisations since 2009 aimed at building relationships, establishing common grounds, and arriving at an acceptable understanding of the importance of building a political culture that supports and respects democracy, including having fair and free elections.

Mr Kalamoroh was speaking at the recent Inter-Departmental Electoral Committee (IDEC) meeting at Morauta House, Chaired by Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Manasupe Zurenuoc.

This meeting heard from the Commission on lessons learnt from the 2007 General Elections, as well as the recent by-elections in the Western Highlands and Rai-Coast.

The Committee will meet monthly and later increase its frequency as 2012 draws nearer. ■

Momis meets PM Somare

President John Momis paid an official visit to Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare at Morauta House on June 21, six days after being sworn into office as president of the Autonomous Region of Bougainville.

President Momis showed keen interest in strengthening close relationship with the Government to restore basic services to the people of Bougainville.

Sir Michael assured Mr Momis of his Government's support to rebuild and reconstruct Bougainville.

Both leaders agreed that there were several areas that needed urgent attention and further discussion, 'in due course.' ■

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

PNG gets over K1 billion in budget aid

The recent Australian Federal budget has underlined Australia's commitment to Papua New Guinea, with an increase of around K100 million over the previous year's allocation.

Total development assistance to PNG in 2010-11 will be around K1.1 billion.

Australian High Commissioner to PNG, Ian Kernish said the huge allocation underlined its commitment to PNG's development.

"This underlines the Australian Government's commitment to supporting its close friend and neighbour.

"This is an important time for Papua New Guinea. The efforts of Papua New Guineans over the next few years should chart a course for ongoing development and greater prosperity for the people of this country. Australia is pleased to be in a position to support PNG in its development aims," he said.

The High Commissioner said priority areas identified under the PNG-Australia Partnership for Development would guide further spending.

He said promoting faster progress towards universal basic education in PNG will be a priority.

"Australia will work with the PNG Department of Education to increase primary and elementary enrolment rates towards a net enrolment rate of 70 percent by 2015. Support will also focus on increasing the percentage of female students and improving the quality of education with teacher training.

"We will work closely with our counterparts in the National Department of Health in areas such as reducing the prevalence of malaria and tuberculosis, immunising more children and increasing the number of supervised births by skilled staff.

"There will also be an ongoing focus on improving key national roads, ports and airports supporting the implementation of PNG's National Transport Development Plan and National Transport Strategy 2010-2030," Mr Kernish said.

He also said that Australia will continue its work in supporting the Government of Papua New Guinea in other key areas such as strengthening the public service, providing a strengthened, coordinated and effective response to the HIV crisis, providing support to the law and justice and higher education sector. ■

New NZ envoy encourages more business engagements in PNG

New Zealand's new High Commissioner to Papua New Guinea, Ms Marion Crawshaw says she will encourage more business engagements between the two countries during her term in office.

The new High Commissioner made this statement when she presented her Letter of Introduction to Prime Minister, Sir Michael Somare recently.

"New Zealand and Papua New Guinea are close friends and I'm delighted to be representing New Zealand here at a time when exciting opportunities are being realized.

"During my time here I'll be keen to encourage more business engagement from New Zealand companies in Papua New Guinea.

"There are good opportunities here which are not being realized. I'm also going to be taking a close interest in our aid program and the way in which it is aligned to Papua New Guinea's development strategies," Ms Crawshaw said.

Ms Crawshaw has a background in trade and economic development and security policy.

She is also a career diplomat who was previously Deputy High Commissioner to the Solomon Islands, Deputy representative to the OECD in Paris, as well as to Suva and Rome. She was seconded to the New Zealand Police as National Manager for Policy, where she established New Zealand Police's Policy Group.

Most recently, Ms Crawshaw was the Director of the Knowledge Services Division of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, developing a programme of knowledge management projects for the Ministry.

Her personal interests include, collecting New Zealand and Pacific art, gardening and handcrafts.

"I already have a few pieces of PNG art and handcrafts from previous visits here and I'm looking forward to adding to that.

"I'm also aware of the rich variety of plants from Papua New Guinea and will be adding to previous High Commissioners' plantings at the official residence," she said. ■

Kroton to manage State's LNG equity

The National Executive Council has approved the management of the State's 19.6 per cent equity in the LNG Project by Kroton No. 2 Limited.

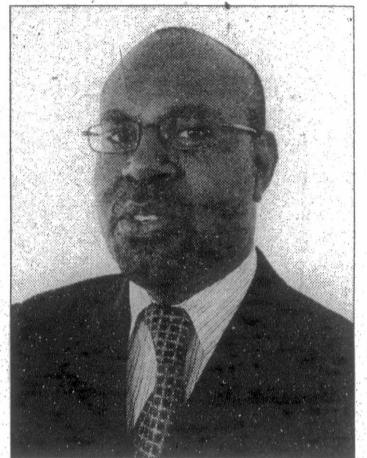

Prime Minister Sir Michael Somare said Cabinet recently endorsed the establishment of Kroton No. 2 as a fully functional petroleum company with the appropriate resources to adequately represent the State's interest in the PNG LNG Project.

Sir Michael said since Kroton No. 2 is wholly owned by the State through the General Business Trust, it is imperative that Kroton plays the leadership role in the commercial development of the hydrocarbon industry in the country.

"To facilitate this, Cabinet has endorsed the functional separation of Kroton No. 2 Ltd from the Independent Public Business Corporation (IPBC) to allow the former to develop into a national hydrocarbon development corporation while IPBC focuses on value-adding and management of the General Business Trust.

"IPBC will remain as a shareholder in Kroton No. 2 until the maturity of the existing funding arrangements with the International Petroleum Investment Company (IPIC) of Abu Dhabi. Thereafter, the shareholding will be reviewed," he said.

Sir Michael said Kroton No. 2 will represent the interest of the State in all future meetings relating to the LNG Project.

Minister for Public Enterprises, Hon. Arthur Somare.

NEC has also agreed to the establishment of an independent Board of Directors and an interim Chief Executive Officer.

The Minister for Public Enterprises, the Department of Public Enterprises and IPBC have been directed to fast track the necessary logistical requirements to enable the office to be fully functional and report back to NEC.

"In addition, the Secretary for the Department of Public Enterprises has been directed to lead the formulation of a National Hydrocarbon Policy, primarily aimed at maximising the State's participation and optimising value to the State, in close consultation with key departments and agencies.

"The government has acknowledged the achievements of the State in terms of the PNG LNG Project reaching its Final Investment Decision on December 8, 2009 and the Financial Close on March 12, 2010," he said. ■

ADF funds K4m sewerage plant

The Australian Defence Force (ADF) is funding the construction of a K4 million sewerage plant at the Goldie River Army Barracks near Port Moresby.

Work on the sewerage treatment project started on May 7, 2010 and is scheduled to finish at the end of September.

The new sewage plant will address the ongoing sewage problems the barracks has been experiencing because of lack of maintenance to its current facility.

Head of Australian Defence Staff in Papua New Guinea, Colonel Mark Shephard said: "This is the biggest Defence cooperation project for some time. I am pleased to assist the Papua New Guinea Defence Force (PNGDF) address basic infrastructure needs at Goldie River."

Commander of the Papua New Guinea Defence Force, Brigadier General Francis Agwi thanked ADF and the Australian Government for the assistance.

"The new project will solve the sewerage problems in this barracks. It is an environmentally friendly system and the public can be rest assured that the waste that finally comes out is bacteria free," Brigadier General said.

Australian Army Warrant Officer, Shane Stevenson is working alongside the contractors, Hebou Constructions (PNG) Limited and PNGDF personnel on the project.

He said the new settlement ponds will work better than the old trickle filter system.

The settlement ponds comprise of four treatment ponds - two primary, one secondary and one tertiary pond.

Sewerage from the barracks is transferred to a pumping station which grinds the waste and transfers it to the primary ponds where the solids fall to the bottom as sludge.

Over about 45 days, sunlight, wind and time will break up the waste and kill all the bacteria.

Warrant Officer Stevenson said the main difference between the two systems was maintenance time.

Every 5 - 7 years each pond needs to be shut off and the sludge - which is bacteria free, needs to be cleaned out.

"The current system had to be maintained on a daily basis, however the new system will only need to be maintained every five to seven years," he said.

Commanding Officer of the Gold River Army Barracks, Dennis Maniana, said the new system would cater for the up-building of the barracks.

He thanked the ADF and Australian Government for their assistance. ■

Pacific ICT Ministers meet in Tonga

Minister offers PNG's ICT help

Minister for Communication and Information, Hon. Patrick Tammur has offered Papua New Guinea's assistance to other Pacific Island countries in the area of ICT policy formulation.

In his closing remarks at the just concluded Pacific Regional ICT Officials and Ministers meeting in Nuku'alofa, Minister Tammur said PNG has made significant progress and was willing to assist the smaller Island nations.

"Many of our smaller Island nations are still in the process of discussing or designing their ICT policies, and I have volunteered PNG's willingness to share our experience with them, particularly in the area of ICT policy reforms," he said.

Minister Tammur said it was also encouraging that regional leaders had adopted the Tonga Declaration with the intention of "doing more work than talk."

"I implored my colleagues to talk less and collaborate more so we can make further headway in implementing our individual and collective ICT agenda for the benefit of our people and governments in our region," he said.

The Minister said the theme 'ICT for development, governance and sustainable livelihoods' was also in recognition of the continuing importance of ICT as a powerful tool for connecting and developing the region.

He said he was also encouraged by the fact that the conference brought together the public and private sectors, as well as regional and international organizations under the "many partners, one team" approach. ■

PNG making 'good progress' on ICT: Tammur

Minister for Communication & Information, Hon. Patrick Tammur returned from the Pacific Regional ICT Ministers' Conference in the Kingdom of Tonga pleased that PNG "is making good progress" on its ICT agenda.

"Compared to many of our Island nations, PNG has made much progress with its ICT initiatives which include universal access in telephony services, Internet access and related services.

"Interacting with colleagues Ministers from the region, I couldn't help but realise that PNG has advanced its ICT agenda quite considerably," Mr Tammur said upon arriving back in the country this week.

As an example, he cited the ICT Policy and the NICTA Act (2009) that has brought reforms to the ICT regulatory framework to improve services in the country.

"We already have our ICT Policy in place and an ensuing byproduct of this policy is the coming into force of the new NICTA Act on 2nd August 2010.

"Many of our smaller Island nations are still in the process of discussing or designing their ICT policies," he said.

He said two other major projects his Ministry and Department were taking the lead in included the rural communication and Integrated Government Information System (or the commonly known e-government) projects.

The Meeting was held from 14-18 June 2010 and was jointly funded by the Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC) and the International Telecommunication Union (ITU), and resulted in the signing of the Tonga Declaration.

Mr Tammur was accompanied by Director-General of PANGTEL, Charles Punaha and Deputy Secretary (Policy) of the Department of Communication & Information. ■

Minister meets Princess

PNG Minister for Communication and Information, Hon. Patrick Tammur met Her Royal Highness, Princess Salote Mafile'o Pilelevu Tuita on Thursday (17/06/10) during the recent Pacific Regional ICT Officials and Ministers' Meeting in Nuku'alofa, Tonga.

The meeting was from 14-18 June 2010 with the theme "ICT for development, governance and sustainable livelihoods." The Princess attended the Thursday (17/06/10) reception where he met the Ministers and also addressed them on Friday (18/06/10).

Minister Tammur said the Princess was quite ahead of the rest of the region on ICT by having her own satellite slot at a time when the Pacific community had not even heard of the internet yet.

He said the Princess was also in tune with issues in PNG, and enquired about the health of Prime Minister, Grand Chief Sir Michael Somare, and when he would finally retire from politics. She also enquired about the LNG project.

Minister Tammur informed her that the decision to retire from politics was entirely the Prime Minister's.

He said while the ICT Ministers adopted the Tonga Declaration, he also reaffirmed PNG's assistance to the smaller Island nations, especially our own experience in the area of ICT policy formulation.

"Compared to some of our smaller Island nations, PNG has made much progress with its ICT agenda, including the establishment of our ICT Policy, the coming into force of NICTA by 02 August 2010, the Rural Connectivity and the e-government projects.

"We are willing and prepared to share our experience with fellow Pacific islanders, particularly in the area of ICT policy reforms," Minister Tammur said on his way back to PNG. ■

The Tonga Declaration...

We, the representatives of the Countries and Territories meeting in Nuku'alofa, Tonga:

Noting the important role of ICT in meeting the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs);

Recalling the Resolution 64/187 of the UN General Assembly, of 21 December 2009 recognising the importance of partnerships with all relevant stakeholders in enhancing access to ICT and that ICT has the potential to provide new solutions to development challenges;

Recognising the unique challenges faced by Pacific Small Island Developing States and Territories in ICT development;

Noting that the Pacific Plan as endorsed by the Forum Leaders' Meeting in Madang, Papua New Guinea in October 2005 provides a framework for strengthening regional cooperation and integration between Forum countries;

Recalling the Wellington Declaration of the 2006 Pacific Islands Forum Communications Ministers meeting set priorities and identified challenges to be addressed in implementing the Digital Strategy;

Recalling the 2009 Pacific ICT Ministerial Forum Communiqué that was endorsed by the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) Pacific member states;

Acknowledging the important role of development partners in progressing ICT development in the Pacific region;

Noting that Forum Leaders requested in their Cairns Communiqué that the Digital Strategy, an essential component of the Pacific Plan, be reviewed and revised;

Acknowledging the review of the Digital Strategy by the Pacific Islands Forum Secretariat (PIFS);

Acknowledging the development of the Framework for Action on ICT for Development for the Pacific by the Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC) in partnership with Council of Regional Organisations in the Pacific (CROP) agencies and development partners;

Declare that we:

1. Are committed to using ICT as a key tool for the development, governance and sustainable livelihood of the people of our countries;
2. Recognise that while ICTs have enormous potential for socio-economic development, they pose risks to our communities that need to be carefully managed;
3. Will work together to support the advancement of Pacific countries through improved employment and use of ICTs in our societies; and
4. Endorse the concept of 'many partners, one team' in progressing a more coordinated and coherent approach to ICT development.

Accordingly, we:

- (i) Endorse the recommendations in the Pacific Regional ICT Officials' Meeting Report and Outcomes;
- (ii) Endorse the Framework for Action on ICT for Development for the Pacific;
- (iii) Request SPC to work with USP, PICTs and development partners to develop the three year rolling Strategic Action Plan that will be updated annually, and to report back on targets set in the framework, and outline upcoming ICT activities in the region;
- (iv) Request SPC to coordinate the implementation of the framework in collaboration with USP, and other CRDP agencies and development partners;
- (v) Agree that the Framework be reviewed before mid-2013; and
- (vi) Agree to convene a Pacific ICT Ministers' meeting after the review to consider the findings and provide direction to the implementation of the Framework.

Chief Magistrate sets priorities

Newly appointed Chief Magistrate, Jack August has pledged to work with the law and justice sector agencies to address the impact of the LNG gas project.

"I'm in support of the idea of addressing impacts of the gas project. If one agency has a strategy to control law and order in those particular areas of the project, they will also need other agencies to come in with the type of services they provide.

"If police arrest law breakers, they will then need a court house, a magistrate, a lawyer and jail to complete the process," he said.

Mr August said that the Law and Justice Sector will have his support and input in planning to address issues arising from the LNG project.

"Firstly, Magisterial Service will really have to look at our manpower in those impact areas. We are in the process of recruiting more magistrates to put in those areas," he said.

Chief Magistrate August said the priority areas would be National Capital District, Gulf and Southern Highlands provinces.

"It really is a challenging role for me. With the experiences that I've gained, I'm equipped with the knowledge and skills this job requires.

"I basically know what my magistrates want out there on the ground. It's like a full circle which I've just completed, being here as a clerk, I now went out to the field and now I'm back here as the Chief Magistrate," he said. ■

Law enhances landowners' rights

Minister for Environment and Conservation, Benny Allen has assured Papua New Guineans that the recent amendment to the environment laws recognize traditional and customary rights to the uses of water, forest, marine environment and land-based resources.

He clarified that the amendment does not deny the rights of landowners nor stop them from raising complaints relating to environmental impacts to their land or water against the State or a developer.

"The amendment further enhances the department's capacity to regulate and manage potential environmental impacts and concerns associated with development projects in the country," Mr. Allen said.

He said the Environmental Permit, is the key Government approval, when granted by the Ministry and Department of Environment and Conservation, sets the developer to secure other government approvals to construct, build and operate a project.

"In doing so, Project Development Agreements and Contractual Agreements and Memorandum of Associations and other relevant agreements are then signed between the relevant parties, which include the State, developer, landowners and the provincial government concerned," he said.

One example is the Ramu nickel mine project, in which its approved Environment Permit is now being contested in court by various NGOs, landowners and interest groups to stop the deep sea tailings placement component of the mine.

"The recent amendment passed by Parliament provides a safety net for State, developers and environment permit holders who were granted permits under the previous repealed legislations.

"To ensure such third party litigations do not occur in future to disrupt resource developments and activities, the recent amendment passed by Parliament ensures that appropriate statutory authorizations are in place so that the environment permits granted by the Department are exercised without undue delays," he said.

Mr Allen further added that the development projects followed due process under PNG's statutory laws.

"The amendment in effect gives added certainty and confidence to development projects, who following due process, obtained relevant environmental approvals before the Environment Act 2000 came into operation.

"This amendment gives full effect to the provisions of the environment Act so that the full extent of the activities that have been authorized under an environment permit to be exercised by the permit holder is indeed carried out and completed as intended by the State when granting the permit.

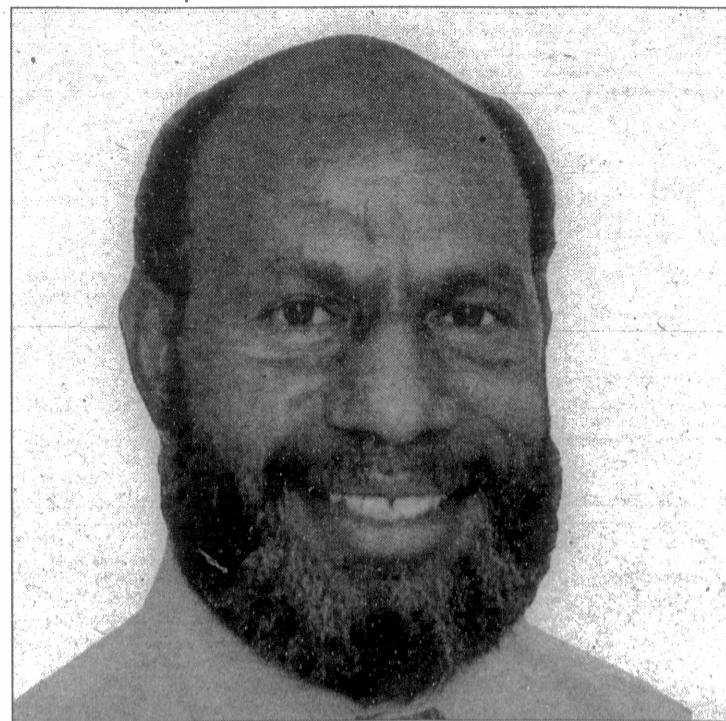

"Current statutory environmental requirements under the Environment Act 2000 remain," he said.

In the meantime, the amendment also enhances the Director of Environment to issue additional authorizations on merits where it is deemed necessary.

The Environment Permit itself is an Authorization Instrument and interest parties can use where instances of negligence occur on the part of a permit holder.

Papua New Guinea's current environment regulatory systems has very strict measures as per the conditions of the environment permits issued by the Director of Environment, and current operational mines, such as Porgera and Lihir are being managed under some of the world's most stringent environmental controls.

The public and environment permit holders are encouraged to contact the Department of Environment and Conservation for further clarification on the amendment. ■

ENERGY

PNG to receive US assistance in energy sector

Papua New Guinea is to receive assistance from the United States of America on capacity building in the energy sector.

Secretary of State, Hillary Clinton's Coordinator for International Energy Affairs, David Goldwyn, arrived in Port Moresby on a multi-agency visit on June 16 to gauge the nation's interest in the newly designed Energy Governance and Capacity Initiative (EGCI) program.

EGCI is designed to assist emerging resource-rich nations to optimize the value of new resources for development. PNG is one of eight nations under consideration.

Coordinator Goldwyn and representatives from the U.S. Department of Treasury and the U.S. Geological Survey met with officials of the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Treasury and Finance as well as PNG LNG, PNG Power and members of the business community.

"We are here to offer PNG technical assistance in the areas of resource assessment, environmental safety standards and transparent resource management.

"We think that this is a critical moment for PNG. The world's attention will be focused on how the country manages its revenues and how the investment climate develops. The time to set up a transparent management system and to embrace international standards like the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) is now. The U.S. stands ready to help PNG develop these systems," Mr Goldwyn said.

Mr. Goldwyn said the team examined oil and gas resource assessment methodology and capabilities; oil resource data collection, management, archiving and storage; oil and gas sector revenue management and related governance and efficiency; optimization of budget policies and financial management mechanisms and associated legal and regulatory issues that have an impact on revenue management.

During meetings with Ministry and agency officials, the EGCI team said that PNG would benefit from enhanced technical expertise to independently determine the size and quality of oil and gas reserves.

PNG government officials also expressed interest in obtaining assistance regarding development and management of a sovereign wealth fund as well as enhanced auditing capabilities for oil and gas revenues.

Following the assessment team's visit, a proposed EGCI technical assistance program will be drafted.

This program will be tailored to the specific needs identified during the team's visit and designed so that its objectives can be achieved by the end of a three-year timeframe. ■

PNG/Aust undertake joint military exercises

A joint PNG Defence Force and Australian Defence Force Exercise 'Olgeta Warrior' is taking place in PNG between 27 June and 6 September 2010.

Exercise Olgeta Warrior has involved around 200 PNGDF and 300 ADF personnel and military assets including Chinook helicopters, C-130 Hercules and Kingair aircraft, trucks and 4-wheel drive vehicles.

Exercise Olgeta Warrior combines three separate exercises within an integrated training framework:

Exercise Wantok Warrior - an infantry skills training exercise from 27 June - 22 July

Exercise Helicon Luk - a high density altitude rotary wing exercise from 12-27 July

Exercise Puk Puk - an engineering activity to develop PNGDF infrastructure and engineering skills from 19 July to 6 September Exercise Wantok Warrior will see a company from 2nd Battalion, the Royal Australian Regiment (2RAR) deploy to Moem Barracks at Wewak on 3 July to exercise with a company from 2nd Battalion, the Royal Pacific Islands Regiment (2RPIR).

The companies will undertake live fire training within Moem Barracks and tactical infantry training in the environs of Wewak.

In the same period, Exercise Helicon Luk will operate out of Madang. Two Army CH47 Chinooks will undertake training flights over Morobe, Madang, Eastern Highlands, Simbu, Western Highlands and Oro provinces. The aircraft will also insert ADF and PNGDF troops during Exercise Wantok Warrior, and be available for aero-medical evacuation.

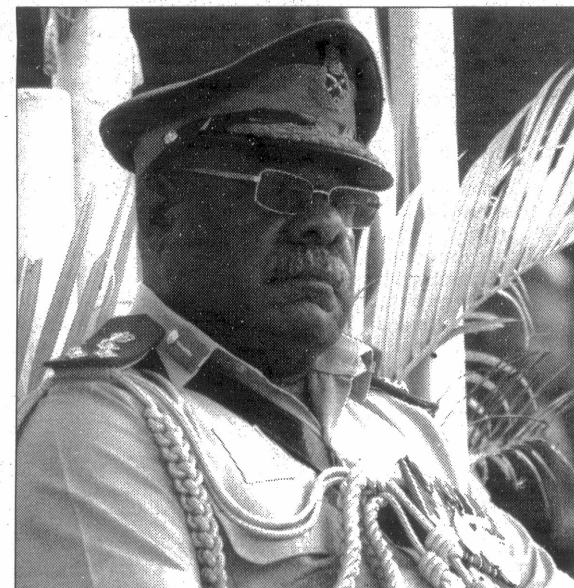

Exercise Wantok Warrior will end on 22 July, Exercise Helicon Luk on 27 July, both giving way to Exercise Puk Puk, which will upgrade facilities within Moem Barracks until 7 September.

By combining the three existing exercises, Exercise Olgeta Warrior aims to provide challenging training for the land and air components of both the PNGDF and ADF. This will enhance the ability of the two defence forces to work closely together.

Exercise Olgeta Warrior is a partnership between two nations who share a common interest in maintaining a stable and secure Pacific region and will further strengthen ties between the two countries' militaries.

Exercise Olgeta Warrior presents a unique cultural experience for both the ADF and PNGDF and provides valuable opportunities to share skills and knowledge between the two defence forces. ■

GG praises China for assistance

New Chinese Ambassador to PNG, Mr. Qui Bohua with Sir Paulias after he presented of his credentials at Government House recently.

The People's Republic of China has been commended for various development and technical assistance to Papua New Guinea.

Governor-General, Grand Chief, Sir Paulias Matane said Papua New Guinea and China were developing countries that shared fundamental values and principles based on mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, human dignity and development aspirations, aimed at enhancing the interests and well being of the respective peoples.

Sir Paulias, while officially accepting the Letter of Credentials from the new Chinese Ambassador to Papua New Guinea, Mr Qui Bohua said one such valued assistance was the Vice Regal's official residence and the State House, which were renovated by the Chinese Government in 2006 through its Development Assistance Program.

"Papua New Guinea continues to appreciate China's efforts in advancing the interests of developing countries at various regional and international fora," Sir Paulias said.

Mr Qui said the Chinese government had attached great importance to her relations and commitment to the development of friendly relations and cooperation with Papua New Guinea.

Papua New Guinea established diplomatic relations with China in 1976. ■

Forum seeks regional views

The Consultative Implementation and Monitoring Council Secretariat has continued hosting regional development forums in selected provinces within the four regions in 2010, focusing on transport infrastructure.

So far this year, Popondetta has hosted the Papua Regional Forum in mid-April, Kokopo for the NGI region in May and Wewak for the Momase region in June. Goroka will host the forum for the Highlands region in July.

The CIMC Secretariat wants to vary the location of the regional forums so that people within the respective regions will have access to these avenues of discussions.

The theme for the 2010 Regional Forums is "Access to Adequate Transport and Communication Infrastructure and Services: The vital links in the development chain."

At these regional forums, there have been calls for more government funding to maintain existing roads, bridges, wharves and jetties throughout the country.

Speakers have highlighted the need for service delivery agencies of government to ensure that communication and transport infrastructure is highly prioritized in the national budget to lift the standard of services to rural communities.

Agencies who have provided overviews of plans and programs at these forums included the Departments of Works and Transport, Provincial Affairs, and Communication and Information, PNG Ports Corporation, Independent Consumer and Competition Commission, National Maritime Safety Authority, National Road Authority, Civil Aviation Authority and respective provincial Works managers.

East Sepik Governor, Hon. Peter Wararu opened the Momase Regional Forum at the Kaindi Teachers College campus of the Divine Word University on June 17, where he provided a synopsis of transport and communication requirements of the Momase region and his province. The Forum was chaired by the East Sepik Provincial Administrator, Samson Torovi.

Of the three regional forums, Governor Wararu is one politician who has fully participated in the discussions at the Wewak forum, contributing valuable ideas and suggestions on ways of delivering adequate and reliable services to the people.

At the Popondetta forum, the MP for Sohe, Hon. David Arore facilitated the opening and closing ceremonies of the Southern regional forum with a call for the opening up of the region with a road network linking Oro, Central, Milne Bay, Gulf and Western Provinces.

He also called for the speedier restoration of Oro roads and bridges devastated by the cyclone that hit the province.

The NGI Forum was well attended and many participants expressed the need for greater dialogue with the national government to maintain existing road infrastructure and improve water transportation requirements of the people in these maritime provinces.

The Forum, chaired by the Provincial Administrator, Mr Akuila Tubal was well attended by prominent leaders, including the Deputy Governor, the former Kokopo MP and senior statesman, Sir Rabbie Namaliu, business leaders and public servants.

CIMC is an independent organization that brings together civil society, private sector and government partners to develop policy and directly influence and monitor government decision making for the long term development of Papua New Guinea.

The CIMC was established by the National Executive Council after the National Economic Summit of February 1998. The private sector and civil society representatives who attended the Summit called for a consultative mechanism to be put in place so that recommendations made by the community would be followed up within government circles and implemented through law and policy.

The goal of the CIMC is to ensure that dialogue, through ongoing consultation processes, is sustained between government, private sector and the community at large and recommendations made to government are implemented. ■

Papua New Guinea has capacity to move forward

Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Mr Manasupe Zurenuoc says Papua New Guinea has sufficient capacity, a comprehensive master plan and a resource envelope to move the country to the next level.

Mr Zurenuoc said the situation today is a lot different from what it was back in 1975 when PNG gained independence.

Mr Zurenuoc made this known to participants at a week-long induction program for Southern Highlands Provincial program managers in Mendi recently.

He told the participants that PNG had few university graduates then, with little knowledge and experience in running the affairs of the country.

"We did not even have the resources to support our economy and a home-grown development plan to deliver for the people.

"However, today the scenario is quite different. We now have our government's home-grown comprehensive master plan, the Vision 2050.

"Every year, we also have thousands of young, aspiring Papua New Guineans who graduate from the universities and tertiary institutions. We are also experiencing a boom in our mineral and energy sector brought on by the government's prudent macro-economic fiscal regime," he said.

He said the country now has all the ingredients to move onto the next level.

"PNG can move forward like any other country if we utilize what we have wisely for the benefit of our people," he said.

Also present at the Workshop were the Minister for Inter-Government Relations, Job Pomat, Southern Highlands Governor, Anderson Agiru, Member for Imbongu, Francis Awesa, Member for Komo/Magarima, Francis Potape, representatives from Exxon Mobil and senior public servants. ■

NRI launches publication for community empowerment

The National Research Institute has launched a new publication aimed at empowering communities to become development actors rather than passive recipients.

The book titled "Community Transformation: Unlocking the Development Potential of the People," captures success stories and challenges in community development programs around Papua New Guinea.

Contributions came from academics, policy analysts, researchers, private sector employees, and government officials, who attended a Community Transformation Conference in 2009.

The conference facilitated the sharing of the lessons learned around the country to help all those involved in various projects on community development.

Head of the Community Empowerment Program at NRI, and the Editor of the publication, Dr Michael Unage said that communities who took the initiative to access or create basic services and sustain their livelihood in the absence of government services, provided the role models for his research, and his publication.

"Most community development initiatives are done at the grassroots level and escape public knowledge.

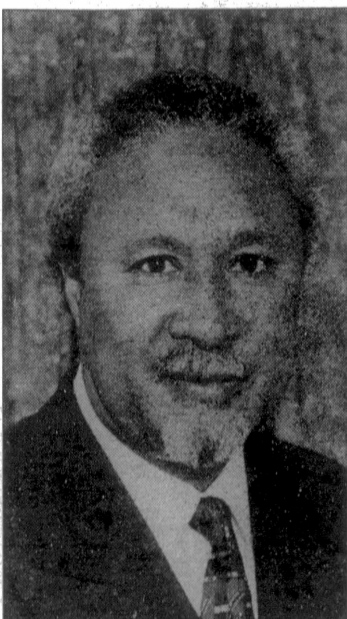

This local knowledge must be captured through research to further strengthen development initiatives and policies about community empowerment," Dr Unage said.

Dr Unage urged the government to learn from successful community development initiatives to improve service delivery to people and to facilitate the process of community ownership of development.

The publication intends to assist government policy makers and community development implementers to create and share knowledge that can be used to help community groups.

Chairman of the Taskforce for Government and Administrative Reform, Sir Barry Holloway, officially launched the publication at the National Research Institute conference room. ■

Deputy Prime Minister launches MV Abau

Deputy Prime Minister, Puka Temu

Deputy Prime Minister, Sir Puka Temu recently launched the MV Abau for his electorate at his Kavari village in Central Province.

The occasion was witnessed by thousands of people, as well as several Cabinet Ministers and Members of Parliament.

Expressing gratitude to the Government for purchasing MV Abau, Sir Puka said his people were deprived of basic services over the last 20 years.

However, with the purchase of the new boat, the people of Amazon Bay will now be able to do business with the outside world.

The boat transported its first shipment of rubber and coffee out of the Amazon Bay recently.

"We are very proud that the vessel is providing an invaluable service for our commodities and passengers to and from Port Moresby, something which could not be done previously," Sir Puka said.

He said this is just one example of the many positive developments that the current government has done for people out in the rural areas.

Sir Puka said village people are capable of rising up to the task and being self-sufficient. However, they need proper resources to be able to do so.

The vessel was built in the Milne Bay Province before a crew from Abau brought it to their electorate.

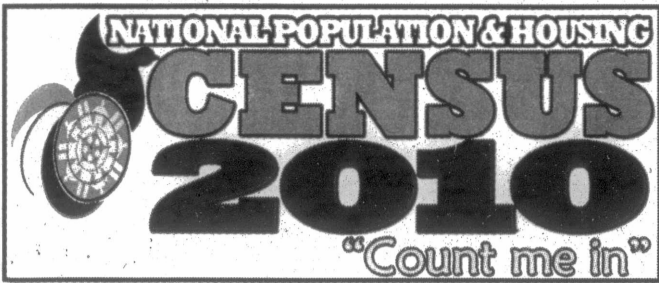

Sir Puka said the boat will be managed by the Abau Economic Development Corporation. ■

Focus on Kokopo District improvement

Kokopo in East New Britain is experiencing a boost to public amenities through the District Services Improvement Program (DSIP).

Under the program, various projects to improve basic services like health, education, roads, bridges, electricity, rural water supply projects have been identified by the District administration for funding.

And the Minister for Communication and Information and Member for Kokopo, Hon. Patrick Tammur says his electorate is taking the pace of development to a new height through the DSIP.

He said many schools in the electorate had collapsed in the last 10 years due to lack of funding while many of the roads leading into Kokopo had deteriorated.

He said the Local Level Governments of Kokopo-Vunamami, Raluana, Bitapaka, and the Duke of York Islands will fully benefit under the DSIP.

He said several projects have been identified for funding by the Joint District Planning and Budget Priority Committee of his electorate and will be rolled out in phases.

Minister Tammur made this known at three separate occasions in his electorate from 9 - 12 June, where he opened several classroom buildings, school libraries and presented cheques for several community projects.

When opening a new library at Birar, he told the people that he will focus more on education to upgrade the rate of literacy in all schools in his electorate.

He said libraries are very important in the upgrade of learning and improvement in education as required by the national department of education.

Many speakers said that it was the first time for a school library to be built in the area in the last 20 years.

Mr. Tammur also said communication infrastructure was also important for students to communicate with the outside world and promised to donate a VSAT equipment to the school.

The Minister said once the VSAT was installed at the school, students and teachers would have access to internet, e-mail and telephone services.

He also toured Watara Village in the Duke of York Island to open a pastor's house on June 10; where he was received by hundreds of school children and locals.

He told the people that he would rebuild the island's ring road, which was started by his father many years ago.

He also presented cheques worth more than K80,000; K20,000 to Molot United Church, K10,000 to Watara Soccer Association, K10,000 to Watara Primary School, K20,000 to Watara SDA Church, K6,000 to Watara United Church, K5,000 to Nabual church.

He also commended the youths at Watara and the SDA church for upholding family values through the work of the church, which he said was very important for human development.

He said ward development was vital for the electorate and committed K10,000 each to the four local level governments in his electorate and urged ward councilors to work together.

"It's time to work and develop our wards in terms of roads and other infrastructure. The District administration must speed up processes and procedures without excuses.

"It's time to roll out the programs that were identified under DSIP by my officers," he told the people of Watara.

The Minister also assured the people of Bilur that he will soon distribute 1,500 water tanks to the people in the 17 ward areas under the fresh water supply project.

He said fresh water supply was important for the people, especially the rural villages. ■

Birar primary school gets new buildings

The Birar Primary School outside Kokopo town now has a new double classroom building and a new library.

The installation of these infrastructure was a result of the Kokopo Joint District Planning and Budget Priority Committee's hard work under the Chairmanship of Kokopo MP and Communication and Information, Patrick Tammur.

When opening the buildings on June 9, Minister Tammur told the students and the people of Birar that his government has placed education as a priority to broaden the knowledge of students.

He said access to information was also important to widen student's knowledge and raise the standard of understanding as expected by education agencies in the country.

He also assured teachers and parents that he will donate a VSAT dish to connect the school to the outside world through internet services, electronic mailing, and telephones.

Headmistress of the school, Ms. Aloysia Pennie praised Minister Tammur and his district administration for funding the buildings.

She said it was a boost to the school which has enrolled 308 students.

"You have come to the rescue of the school and students here, where many new things will be learnt and made known to all of us," she said.

The new double classroom was built at a cost of K30,000 to cater for grades 7 and 8 students, who occupied old classrooms built during the 1950s while the library building cost K20,000.

Minister Tammur also donated a collection of reading books to the new library. ■
