Special Elections Issue

Revelle College Council, RCC, serves as the governing body of Revelle College. It makes decisions which affect the entire Revelle community. Two primary responsibilities of the Council are the appointments of Revelle students to existing committees, and allocation of funds to Revelle programming. Six elected members, College Senators, and campus-wide representatives to A.S. committees constitute the Council. In this election, registered Revelle students will be voting for the six primary members of the Council listed on the ballot. There will be no write-in candidates. Candidates for Revelle A.S. Senators will be featured in the April 9th issue of The UCSD Guardian.

As I feel that many of our problems and frustrations arise from a lack of communication, my first priority would be to improve contact between students, council, and other student organizations. This is important because students should know what their representatives do and what opportunities and activities exist on campus. Also, I feel the administration needs to improve its communication with the students, so that we know of and can have a voice in issues affecting us, such as construction and parking. I believe that, having been an RCC member this year, I have gained the experience necessary to accomplish these goals.

Antonina T. Cacciatore
Sophomore

As a member of RCC, I would like to see more of the issues facing commuter students specifically addressed. In our University of over 17,000 students, nearly 16,000 live off campus. Their needs are the needs of 94 per cent of our campus population.

Overall, we must work to keep all students better informed about decisions that affect them. The outrage that resulted from the passing of RIMAC stemmed largely from a lack of student awareness. This problem with publicity could have been avoided and must be avoided in the future.

The Revelle College Council Exists to serve the needs of all Revelle students. We have many important issues facing both Revelle College and UCSD. We must stress the necessity of student input to the University administration regarding the UCSD Master Plan so that we can prevent the Urey Hall fiasco from happening elsewhere on campus. We must also find an affordable solution to the parking problems that plague both resident and commuter students alike. As an RCC member I would pledge to make every effort to both search for students opinions as well as to fight for their concerns.

Junior

I believe that Revelle College Council should strive to improve Revelle College life. RCC is there to address student concerns and thus must be well-aware of issues affecting fellow students. Therefore, communication with peers should be of the highest priority for RCC. However, communication with Revelle students should surpass merely polling their views. Students college-wide must be informed not only of programmed events but also of the status of issues affecting them such as parking, registration, fees, new construction and other vitally important developments in both Revelle College and UCSD. As a continuing RCC member, improving Revelle College through increased student involvement would be my top priority.

Christy Hicks, Incumbent
Senior

In order for RCC to accurately represent Revelle College, I think the Council should strive to maintain an open line of communication between the student body and themselves, as the central governing committee at Revelle. From this input, RCC should respond to the student's needs and concerns accordingly. In my four years at Revelle, I have seen many of the issues that Revelle students are faced with. I would like to continue serving on the RCC so that I can continue addressing the issues facing Revelle students.

Being a 1989-90 Revelle College Council member and on the appointments sub-committee, I feel a new selection process is needed for appointments. An orientation of some sort is needed to inform students of all the Revelle leadership opportunities and enable the most involvement of Revelle students. It is apparent that many Revelle students are not aware of what RCC actually does and this needs to be addressed. Although all RCC meetings are open to students, not one student has been present for student input. I think it is important for Revelle students to be aware of what is happening with their college and to inform them RCC needs to program "RCC Awareness" events.

Kiki Lowrey
Senior

As UCSD moves into the 1990's it is a growing and changing place. Unfortunately, students seem to be getting lost in the shuffle. As an RCC member I will work to gain student input into important issues. I also feel that Revelle students should be well informed of campus changes so that situations like parking lot destruction and Urey Hall construction don't come as a surprise. I also feel Revelle College needs to strive to support a diverse community through funding for a wide variety of activities, seminars, etc.

William Mohler
Junior

First, I feel more should be done to open communications between students, faculty, and staff. The best way RC could do this is by establishing easy methods to increase student input. This may include petitions, mail, meetings, and discussions. Students at Revelle should have more opportunities to meet faculty and establish methods by which students can advance their academic career. Since students are molded by their college experiences, more programming and events should be planned. This can best be done by establishing methods to allow more interested students propose and plan events without necessarily joining a committee.

Attention Revelle Leaders:

The Student Committee for Cultural Appreciation cordially invites you to attend Revelle College's first annual Racial Awareness Retreat. The retreat will be held on April 21, 1990, from 9:00am - 5:00pm in the Price Center Cove Room.

As the population at Revelle College becomes more diverse, Revelle leaders need to keep abreast with the demands of a changing population. Revelle leaders are, therefore, strongly encouraged to attend. The Facilitator will be Lillian Roybal Rose, who has received national coverage for her work in promoting cross-cultural communication.

If you are interested in attending this free workshop on the 21st, please RSVP at the Revelle Dean's Office by Friday, April 13. Space is limited so reservations are on a first come first served basis.
