Mission of the UCSD LGBT Resource Office

The LGBT Resource Office at UCSD is a diverse, open and public space for all members of the University community to explore issues relating to sexual and gender identities, practices and politics. It develops student leadership, builds workplace equity, promotes academic research, and provides resources. The office challenges existing definitions of variant genders and sexualities by engaging in community building on- and off-campus. This office sustains and develops visibility, sense of community, and knowledge of diverse queer people. (Adopted October 7, 2001)

The logo for UCSD Q Camp is set against a background of a tropical beach scene with palm trees and waves. The letters 'UCSD' are arranged in a vertical stack on the left. To the right, the word 'Q CAMP' is displayed, with the 'Q' being a large circle containing the letters 'A M P'. A rainbow arches over the 'Q' and extends to the right.

UCSD Q CAMP

LGBTQA holds 25th birthday bash

Resource office celebrates third year at UCSD

By LAUREN FERRIS
Contributing Writer

Celebrating its silver anniversary, the Lesbian Gay Bisexual Transgender Association gathered Nov. 14 at Mandeville Center to commemorate a quarter century of service to the UCSD community.

The group was also celebrating the LGBT Resource Office's third birthday. Members and allies of the LGBTQA gathered to enjoy refreshments, review the 25-year history of the group and to honor current and active members of the LGBTQA.

During a brief presentation, several former leaders of the LGBTQA from the past 10 years spoke about their experiences with the group and the impact that the existence of the organization had on them. Select members of the current LGBTQA were also honored and invited to speak.

Bringing people together for education, social gatherings and support is something that the members of the group emphasized.

"It's a catalyst for the queer community to come together for social events," said Tim McQueeny, a sophomore at Earl Warren College.

The LGBTQA describes its work as trying to build student leadership, equality, opportunity and academic research among the campus community. Along with celebrating the group's 25 years of existence, members were also celebrating the many programs and activities that are offered by the organization each year.

The LGBT Resource Office is an office on campus where students — regardless of sexual orientation — can go to ask questions about sexual identities, practices, politics, etc. The center also has a library available for students and faculty.

LGBTQA: Group celebrates past 25 years

LGBTQA Director Shaun Travers explained that the LGBTQA serves as a hub for communication within the campus community.

"The nonsexist dance is one of the biggest things the LGBTQA does for the community," Travers said.

The nonsexist dances and the resource office, Travers said, "provide a safe environment for the youth of the San Diego community."

Also in attendance were members of the newly formed Alliance, the group that trains students of any sexual orientation how to support and stand up for those around them who are of a different sexual orientation.

"It's a place for people from the LGBTQA and those who are not to voice their opinions," said Kristine Quiroz, a senior at Eleanor Roosevelt College.

Another program the LGBTQA organizes every year is Queer Camp. Queer Camp is a program for incoming freshman to get to know other students who have come out with their sexual orientation.

A raffle was held throughout the evening for gift baskets put together by different campus organizations such as the Cross-Cultural Center and the Women's Center.

As for the future plans of the LGBTQA and the Resource Center, Travers said he hopes for another 25 years of continuing work for the group and its mission.

"It would be nice to see a more open campus," said Earl Warren College senior Todd Tolin. "A.S. is doing a wonderful job of helping to make that happen."
