Dry Rush Hits Campus

Fraternaties to Promote Non-Alcoholic Parties

By Aimee Nielsen

Everyone knows the typical stereotype of a Greek, and who of us hasn't seen or at least heard about the film "Animal House?" Many of us identify Greeks with huge parties that get out of control, people who are so insecure that they must "buy their friends" and secret rituals that put initiates through embarrassing and sometimes even dangerous situations. But the fact is that Greek organizations have a side to them, a positive and selfless side, that is often overlooked.

The Dry Rush, sponsored in part by the Inter-Fraternity Council, is an example of the other side of Greeks. "Hell Week" has become "Help Week" at most major universities, and rushes are going dry. But as most Greeks will point out to you, this dry rush is not an attempt to make the Greek system "look good" for a week or so. Instead it is a recognition by the fraternities (for the sorority rushes have always been dry) that dry rushes promote membership that enhances the Greek system and separates those who want to commit to fraternity from those who want to party. The fraternities are also planning on sponsoring a Scholar-snip Cup which will recognize academic skills rather than social skills. Sororities and Fraternities alike a reaching back to the roots of their organization and emphasizing scholarship and philanthropy.

These events give students the chance to see the other side of the Greek system that is often overlooked. They provide social opportunities at schools that are academically oriented, and give people a chance to improve social skills that will become invaluable throughout their college years and beyond. At large universities, sororities and fraternities give students a chance to develop close and lasting friendships, and provide a sort of "home a way form home" where each member works to support and help other members in times of need and in times of success. Greeks recognize academic achievement, emphasize good study habits, and require that a certain GPA is maintained in order to remain in the sorority or fraternity. Greeks have philanthropy projects which support community need and national charities, and often include participation by the whole school, not just Greeks. And, like any other organization on campus, sororities and fraternities require money to make their programs possible, and this money comes from the fees that members must

The Greek system here at UCSD is unique in that there is no housing at UCSD for Greeks. As a result, Greeks are still very much a part of campus life at UCSD and the exculsiveness that may found at other campuses is not as prevalent. Because of limited space that Greeks have, the system is small, casual and relaxed. Members get a chance to become close to one another and are not just another face in the crowd. Member-ship fees and dues are almost half those at other universities, because fraternities and sororities do not have to support the upkeep of a house or a large membership. Greeks at UCSD more often than not must make a special effort to make their system and social events work because of limited space.

The Greeks at UCSD are not doubt a high visibility group because they have Greek letters that show who they are. But we should stop seeing the negative things in those letters and start seeing some of the positive things. It can be good to be Greek.

UCSD Establishes Microscopy Center

The marriage of advanced electron microscope technology and the rapid computing capabilities of the supercomputer will soon allow researchers throughout the Southwest to better explore the structure and function of the cell. A regional center for computer-aided intermediate voltage transmission electron microscopy and three-dimensional image analysis will be established at the UCSD School of Medicine with a $3.9 million Biotechnology Resource Grant from the National Institutes of Health.

The sophisticated intermediate voltage electron microscope (IVEM) will be linked to the Cray supercomputer at the San Diego Supercomputer Center on the UCSD campus, according to Mark Ellisman, Ph.D., professor of neurosciences at UCSD and director of the new Southwestern Regional IVEM and Image Analysis Resource.

"This microscope facility will allow investigators to obtain image information about biological materials in three dimensions and at a higher resolution than possible with any other technology," said Ellisman. "The relationship with the supercomputer gives us the potential for computer modeling of larger structures with greater speed and accuracy than previously possible.

"Our objective is to take existing technologies never before linked and put them together in a user friendly way to serve biologists throughout the region,"

The center will have five main components, Ellisman said: technology development, collaborative research, service to investigators, training and dissemination of information. A number of collaborative investigators are affiliated with the center. Researchers from UCSD, the Salk Institute, Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation and UC Irvine will be using the new facility for specific projects, primarily for studies of the structure and function of the nervous system.

The center will be based in newly renovated space in the Basic Science Building at the UCSD School of Medicine, and is expected to be operational in the fall of 1989.

David Kaplan Freshman

A general perception exists among students that the university's policies do not represent the needs or interests of the student population. This perception works to the detriment of both the college and the students because it inhibits cooperation and interaction between the two groups. I would like the RCC to work toward the destruction of the barriers to college unity by reinvigorating the sense of Revelle's mission at UCSD, and through serving greater student needs; greater input into disciplinary policies of the college, improvement of services from student organizations, and by guaranteeing the presence of a governing body that responds to needs that arise.

Meredith Knobler Sophomore

In RCC I would like to see activities at noon to one be moved into 12:30 to 1:30 so that students that have twelve o'clook class will be able to go to the activity as well. A big factor will be the new Price Center and the supposed "shift of campus". I think Revelle will have to program more activities during the weekdays to keep the crowd on the plaza. Also, we need to somehow revise the selection process for committee appointments to make it more efficient and enable more student involvement.

Eva Vadasy Junior

I believe that the most important priority of the RCC is to govern Revelle College in a way that creates a good atmosphere for students. This type of atmosphere can be created only through active participation and attention to student issues. Some of the important issues facing Revelle College next year will be the new student center, parking, student safety, resident programming and commuter-resident relations. I think that the student center will have an effect on student programming for Revelle College because the plaza will no longer be the focus. Also, there should be active collaboration and planning among all of the colleges in order to create more unity. I feel that the most important priority for the RCC is Revelle students.

1989-90 RCC Candidates

These nine students are running for posi-tions on the Revelle College Council. Each candidate was asked to describe the priorities they would like to see the Revelle College Council establish, and their views on important issues affecting Revelle students.

Stephen Chow Senior, Incumbent

Should I be elected to RCC, I would make sure that RCC doesn't lose sight of what our main objective is. which is to further the interests of the Revelle College student. It is our responsibility as RCC members to act as the main liaison between the student body and the administration. I will do my best to make sure that the voice of Revelle College students is heard by and fairly represented to the administration.

Evan Weisenfeld Senior

My main concern for the upcominc year is Revelle's identity. The opening of the Price Center means that a lot of the activities on campus will be moving from Revelle Plaza. Also, a lot of the programming that Revelle does will now be competing against programming in the Price Center. I would like to see Revelle be the first college to really take advantage of everything the Price Center offers, but at the same time, maintain Revelle's identity. I would also like to see everyone more informed about the decisions that are made that will affect us in the future.

Les Bruvold

In my two years at Revelle College, I have carefully observed and noted what fellow students want from their university. I feel that I understand which policies students most desire from student government. Because of this, I believe that I can capably represent the best interests of Revelle's student body in dealing with the administration. As a member of the Revelle College Council, I will make every effort to better shape Revelle's stringent academic requirements to the students' needs. Also, I will strive to make Revelle student life as socially stimulating as it is scholastically

Armin Afsahi Senior, Incumbent

As an 88-89 RCC member, I have learned to understand the council and its role. Furthermore, I have become able to recognize its functions, responsibilities and my role within it. I have served on various leadership positions at Revelle: Dean's intern for two years, orientation leader, executive council to the Provost, and other campus-wide clubs and organizations. I have also undertaken projects on the council: appointments sub-committee, which appoints students to the revelle committees, and RCC awareness day. The council needs to set precedents for funds allocation, and implement a more effective communication medium, thus assessing student body needs.

Christy Hicks

In order for RCC to accurately represent Revelle College, I think the council should strive to maintain an open line of communication between the student body and themselves, as the central governing committee at Revelle. From this input, RCC should respond to the student's needs and concerns accordingly.

It seems that the students at Revelle can be easily overwhelmed by all of the event programming that is I think a more organized system of publicity and communication is necessary to effectively inform the students at Revelle of all of the activities and avoid misplaced efforts on programming during the same day or of the same type. In these cases, sponsoring groups should work together to insure a larger, undivided attendance.

Priya Jayachandran Sophomore, Incumbent

I believe that Revelle College Council should strive to improve Revelle College life. RCC is there to address student concerns and thus must be well aware of issues affecting fellow students. Therefore, communication with their peers should be of the highest priority for RCC.

However, communication with Revelle Students should surpass merely polling their views. Students college-wide must be informed not only of programmed events but also of the status of issues affecting them such as parking, registration, fees, new construction and other vitally important developments in both Revelle College and UCSD. As a continuing RCC member improving Revelle College through increased student involvement should be my top priority.

NPB Briefs

The Revelle College Noon Programming Board would like to welcome everyone back to school for the spring quarter! We hope that you're all relaxed and ready to enjoy some entertaining and exciting events on the plaza! We have a full quarter planned, including several bands, dance groups, and some large scale events. For example, we have planned a Spring Fashion show featuring all sorts of spring and summer attire (yes, including bathing suits!)... we will be needed student models, so if you're an aspiring model, keep your eyes open for upcoming announcements. We also have planned a "Fun in the Sun Faire" and a show featuring animals from the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

All of the events are included in the calendar section of this issue. However, due to past experience, sometimes dates may change due to the availability (or, actually, unavailability) of the performers. So please keep watching future issues of Revellations, as well as for posters, banners and fliers posted around campus. If you have any questions about the events, or have an idea for an event, please contact the Noon Programming Board Intern (Barbara) at 534-2519 most days between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. See you on the plaza!!!!

The Revelle Commuter Lounge will now close at the following times: Mon-Thu 7 p.m. 4 p.m.
