FARM WORKERS ORAL HISTORY PROJECT

The project was sponsored by the California State University, Northridge, Provost's Committee on Chicana/o Labor History, School of Humanities, Center for Photojournalism & Visual History and the Urban Archives Center. The oral history project was designed in conjunction with several on campus events celebrating the role of farm workers in California history during the Fall of 1995. Interviews have been conducted over several years by Dr. Kent Kirkton, Dr. Jorge Garcia, Robert G. Marshall, Dr. Judith Marti and other members of the campus community. Draft interview transcripts have been prepared by oral history project participants and completed by the Oviatt Library under a Hispanic Serving Institutions grant from the U.S. Department of Education.
