Cesar Chavez, head of the United Farm Workers, is suffering from bouts of nausea, dehydration, dizziness, and malnutrition, his doctor said today as Mr. Chavez entered the 21st day of a fast to call attention to his boycott of California table grapes.

Elevated levels of uric acid could cause his kidneys to fail, Dr. Fidel Huerta said. Mr. Chavez is staying in relative isolation at the union headquarters here, about 150 miles north of Los Angeles.

Mr. Chavez's union has no contracts among the growers and is seeking a ban on five pesticides.
